PM Reports Warning Stopped Price Boost

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker said here his warning of "drastic action" against companies taking commercial advantage of dollar devaluation brought a halt in the trend to rising prices.

In a free-time election telecast on the CBC's national network he recalled his statement last week that "some greedy persons" were using the pegging of the dollar at 92.5 cents to raise prices, and his warning that fast and drastic action would be taken if this continued.

"What was the result? The practice did not continue. Almost at once, the largest oil companies said there was no reason for price increases. The same was said by the heads of two of the largest chain stores and by the largest manufacturer of bread in Canada.

"Over the weekend, business leader after business leader has echoed those sentiments. They are all getting on the 'no-price-increase' bandwagon and even those who had been talking about increases are finding other reasons for the action they contemplated."

SAYS BID DESPERATE

Mr. Diefenbaker accused the Liberal party of conducting planned political violence in a "desperate bid to regain power.

He denounced what he called "elements of intimidation," denial of free speech, "deliberate representations that have been made that are not true," which the Liberals had introduced into the election campaign.

He had seen with his own eyes "evidence of planned violence — political violence."

"I wouldn't have thought it possible in a Canadian election campaign," said Mr. Diefenbaker. "But, it's part of a picture. It stems from a desperate bid for power by those whom you dismissed from office for the same arrogance, and the same disrespect for our basic freedoms and institutions five years ago.

Mr. Diefenbaker charged that the Liberals want to rule "and if they don't rule they don't care what ruin they bring to Canada."

"They will say anything, even though their statements may bring ruin internationally to the national economy or to our reputation."

Blondie Makes Union Charges

WASHINGTON (AP)—Penny Singleton, blondie of the movies, charged Tuesday her union has opened its doors to "exotic dancers" who spend most of their time working as bar-girls.

Singer Pat Lynn Hackett told Senate investigators that in many Philadelphia night clubs an ability to persuade customers to buy more drinks was more important than any stage talents.

She said she once heard an agent whose main sales pitch for a dancer client was:

"This girl can drink any man under the table.'

Both women told the Senate investigations subcommittee their union—the American Guild of Variety Artists (AGVA)—had done nothing to enforce its rules against performers being required to mingle with customers.

In fact, Miss Singleton said AGVA had made an effort to enroll more exotic dancers, or strip-tease dancers. She said it was these new members who most frequently were forced to serve as B-girls and try to sell drinks to the customers.

Jackie Bright, AGVA administrative secretary, accused Miss Singleton of trying to "grab headlines at the expense of decent men and women" in the union.

Bright, who is scheduled to testify later, denied Miss Singleton's charges in talking with reporters and described her as once a great star out said"the parade has passed her by."

TO BE INSTRUCTED

BELGRADE (Reuters) — All Bulgarian citizens under 55 not serving in the armed forces will be instructed in civil defence against atomic, bacteriological and chemical weapons, the Yugoslav news agency Tanjug reported Tuesday from Sofia. This was stipulated in a parliamentary decree passed by the presidium of the Bulgarian National Assembly, the agency said.

SEAL BECOMES TOWN MASCOT

BURLINGTON, Ont. (CP)—This Lake Ontario town has the distinction of a newly acquired mascot that just sits on a cement pier 150 feet off shore and basks in the sun.

It is a seal that arrived from "no where" Sunday afternoon and has been here ever since.

While no one has given it a name (the sex is unknown) crowds of people have watched it jump off the pier and climb back up again.

Fish and game officials say it is protected by federal law although on the Atlantic Coast a bounty had been paid for years on the "hair" seal that robs fishermen's nets.

Hylton Lenz, who lives on the shore the seal has adopted, says it is a fur seal and not a hair seal. He is familiar with the hair seals of the West Coast.

No zoos or acquatic shows have reported the loss of such an animal and the mystery of the seal's origin continues.

Peace Corps Is Blamed For Unrest

DAR ES SALAAM (Reuters) John Mwakangale, regional commissioner in Tanganyika's Southern Highlands region, said here United States Peace Corps members are "undermining the Tanganyika government" and that "wherever they are stationed trouble starts."

Mwakangale's attack in a budget debate in Parliament was quickly denounced by Prime Minister Kawawa who said: "I've never heard such an irresponsible speech."

Mwakangale's voice was often so loud that his words were lost. He was interrupted eight times during his outburst and warned he faced suspension from Parliament unless he lowered his voice.

"Are the Peace Corps really here to make peace? It's just the opposite. We hear of people trying to overthrow the government. These people are not here for peace, they're here for trouble. We don't want any more Peace Corps."

He said he knew the Tanganyika government had invited the Peace Corps to send volunteers here but "the things they're doing are things which are undermining the government."

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

The bidding:

Opening lead—nine of spades.

Dear Mr. Becker: My name is Siegfried Munchausen. You may recall my illustrious father, who wrote the famous Tall Tales of Baron Munchausen. It is not generally known that my father, in addition to his many other high accomplishments, was undoubtedly the greatest bridge player in the world.

I give you here a sample of his exploits, which I encountered among his unpublished memoirs. He was playing at the time in the world championship, and his partner—naturally not of my father's class—contrived to land him in six diamonds.

This was not a good contract, but, as anyone can see, my father (South) had bid the hand perfectly. Remember, he was handicapped by having to contend with a partner who did not appreciate the fine art of scientific bidding.

West led a singleton spade. It is a peculiar thing, I might add, but many players in those days would foolishly attempt to defeat my father in any contract he happened to be playing. The West in this case found, to his sorrow — as had so many others before him—that this was next to impossible.

Baron Munchausen took the spade with the ace and drew four rounds of trumps, discarding two spades from dummy. He then played a low heart and, when West also played low, finessed the nine.

The nine won the trick, as my father was sure it would, and he next cashed the A-K of clubs, discarding the A-K of hearts from his hand. I realize that most players would have discarded their spades on the clubs, but this ridiculous type of play is what distinguished my father from less gifted players. If he had done this, he would have gone down.

Then my father led the jack of clubs from dummy and on it discarded the queen of hearts. West won the trick with the queen, but was forced to return a heart or a club to dummy, either of which plays gave my father the rest of the tricks and thus won him the world championship. Cordially and sincerely yours, S. Munchausen.
