Canadian Navy Is Fitting Up Granby As Diving Ship

By DAVE McINTOSH
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—The navy is converting the 800-ton coastal escort Granby into its first deep diving ship. She will be ready for diving operations this summer.

Lt.-Cmdr. George Cook, George Medal and bar, chief of naval diving, explained Thursday in an interview that the vessel is needed partly because of the permanent stationing of three Royal Navy submarines at Halifax.

In case of a "subsmash" — a submarine crash — a rescue ship would have to be ready to speed to the scene and send down divers. Until the Granby is fitted out with the proper equipment, the Canadian navy will have no ship capable of carrying out such a job.

The Granby will also be used to train naval divers in mine clearance and disposal in depths down to 150 feet.

The navy already has several diving tenders used for salvage and inspection work in ports and harbor approaches. It has about 100 trained divers who, Cmdr. Cook estimated in an interview, save the defence department hundreds of thousands of dollars every year. They can carry out inspections which otherwise would require the drydocking of the ship, an expensive business.

OFFERED TO HELP

So keen are navy divers to get in more underwater training, Cmdr. Cook said, that most of them offered unofficially to help in clearance work in the Suez Canal. However, the navy has had no part in this task.

It is doubtful if the navy could have found a more experienced man for its chief of diving operations. Only a handful of Canadians have ever won the George Medal, let alone a bar to it.

A yacht designer from Lakefield, Ont., Cmdr. Cook, 44, became a bomb disposal artist in the Eastern Mediterranean during the Second World War. He won his first George Medal for gallantry and "undaunted devotion to duty" in 1941 by working five days to strip a German para chute mine on the banks of the Suez Canal. He won it again next year at Haifa, Palestine, by stripping a mine in 3½ hours through working mostly in total darkness. More than 14,000 persons had been cleared from the area. All told, he stripped 57 mines—and survived.

Cmdr. Cook said about 50 per cent of the sailors who volunteer for diving finish the courses. It takes a minimum of eight years for a naval diver to become fully qualified though this includes spent in various ranks and on courses all sailors must take.

The litterary phrase to describe diving is "the rapture of the deep."

NEVER LOST A MAN

Cmdr. Cook said with a grin that the mundane naval phrase is nitrogen narcosis. This blissful state, somewhat similar to mild inebriation, is brought on by breathing a lot of nitrogen in the compressed air.

Cmdr. Cook said the Canadian navy has never lost a diver and even a case of the "bends" is most rare. The "bends" is caused by nitrogen bubbles in the blood stream and is avoided by controlled ascent of the diver from the deeps.

Volunteers for diving undergo stringent medical exams, including tests for claustrophobia. And they must be able to swim. Salvage and inspection divers wear a copper hot/ breastplate and a flexible suit and the air is pumped down to them. Mine clearance divers wear lighter suits and carry their own air supply with them.

Seven New Members Inducted Into S'side Y's Men's Club

Seven new members were inducted into the Summerside Y's Men's Club last night at the regular weekly meeting of this group in the Green Street Y centre. The new club members are Maynard Schurman Cecil Webber, Fred Hunter, Carman Carle, Ron Whidden, David Morrison and Thomas Phillips.

The new members were inducted at an impressive candlelight ceremony by an induction team consisting of Clarence Mercer, George Clark, Charles Linkletter, Frank Cameron, George Key, Jr., and Jock Hopkirk. Following the ceremony, they were presented with pins by club president Jock Hopkirk and welcomed by all members.

The speaker of the evening was club member Frank Cameron, who paid his official visit as district governor to his home club at this meeting. In the course of his address he congratulated the new members, tracing the history and development of Y'sdom. Speaking to the club as a whole, he stressed the need for keeping the Christian emphasis to the forefront of all club activities.

To better enable the Y's Men's Club to accomplish its purposes and ideas he called for the full backing of all members, with more support to the Bishop's Fund, more and better world outlook program, better attendance and membership.

He was introduced by George Clarke and at the conclusion of his talk was thanked on behalf of the club by Jim Murphy.

The town canvass for the radio auction was officially begun at this meeting when canvass chairman Roy Boates allocated names of firms to be canvassed to the members. This is to be completed by next week's meeting.

Volunteers to sort stamps for the Bishop's Fund were requested to be present at the Y's Centre on Saturday at 2.00 p.m.

The young adult committee was asked to look into the possibilities of resuming the hymn sings this year.

Chaperons for this week's Hi-Y dance are to be Bob Hogg and Lloyd Gorrill.

Club members acting as Scout and Cub leaders were asked to notify their groups regarding the High School assembly program, on February 21st being conducted by the Scouts and Girl Guides of the town.

The chairman of the meeting was Eric Sheen with George MacLennan acting as song leader and Allison MacLean as finesmaster. Guests present were Lorraine Cameron and Barbara Clark of the Gamma Hi-Y group which recently donated a piano for use in the Y Centre.
