Harlem Negroes Are Cool To Civil Rights Struggle

Throughout the U.S. South the fight for civil rights rages among Negro groups, but in New York's Harlem things are different. Instead of militancy, indifference; instead of unity, division. Associated Press staff writer Junius Griffin, a Negro tells of the squalor, the despair, seething turbulence and the status of the civil rights fight in Harlem, the largest "black metropolis" in the U.S.

By JUNIUS GRIFFIN

NEW YORK (AP)—Much of Harlem, the United States' largest "black metropolis," is cool to the point of indifference toward the civil rights struggle in the country.

But behind this indifference, lies a seething hatred of the white community by the lower-class Negroes and the unemployed Negroes. Many also loathe the Negro leadership which they claim brought false hopes of relieving overnight the community's social ills.

"Our leaders do a lot of talking but take no action," said Mrs. Rose Graham, 41, a mother of three daughters who live in a run-down tenement on West 124th Street.

Mrs. Graham is on relief. Her daughter's ages range from 11 to 15. All are in junior high school.

"I'm especially concerned about my oldest girl," she said. "The drunks and tramps in this neighborhood might do anything to her."

The Graham family is one of 15 that live in the five-storey walk-up tenement.

TELLS OF PLIGHT

While cooking a meal of red beans and rice over an ancient gas range, Mrs. Graham talked about her plight.

"What young girl would want to bring her friends into this firetrap?" she asked. "It's clean yes, but look around you."

You enter the apartment through the kitchen door. Under a worn linoleum, a rotting wooden floor creaks. The plaster is peeling from the walls and ceilings in every room. Furnishings are spare. Rent: "$45.14 a month."

Are you warm during the winter?

"Yes, but I'm glad the radiators in the hall have been removed," she said. "Because now we won't have tramps sleeping in the halls when cold weather comes."

I told her that I had noticed a vacancy sign in front of the adjoining building which was recently renovated and asked why didn't she move into it.

"The rent there is $35 a week for 1½ rooms," she said. "Who can afford it?"

RAPS LEADERS

"I'm just one of many living under these conditions in Harlem, and if our civil rights leaders would leave their ivory towers, they might find out what our needs are.

"No more demonstrating for me until someone demonstrates they care about me and my daughters."

Like many of Harlem's 500,000 Negroes who cannot afford high rents, Mrs. Graham either must live in squalor or public housing.

Some are content; others stay here because they have no choice.

Thomas Pipkin, 36, a post office employee, said "there is just no general interest among Harlemites for things like civil rights. . . . Most people just don't care . . . Our neighborhood community programs should include self help. There should be more demonstrations in New York, but we are tired of displaying ourselves in the streets."

A similar opinion was expressed by Frankie Brown of West 116th St.

"Our Harlem leaders are adequate for some people, but they are not concerned enough with the fact that we must help ourselves," he said.

NEED ECONOMIC EQUALITY

"There should be more done to relieve the community of derelicts, but Harlem's main concern has been to push for full social integration rather than integration that means economic and political equality."

Some of the "derelicts" were just across the street shooting dice under the watchful eyes of a police officer on the next corner.

I joined the game, lost $2 in about five seconds, but was able to start a conversation. When I told one of the street gamblers that I had to leave and go to work, he said:

"You're lucky, most of us haven't worked in more than a year.

"We had a chance to get jobs as construction helpers, but the civil rights groups want us to become skilled laborers now and hell, we don't have the qualifications for those type jobs."

Miss Sandra Tate, 22, said "civil rights activities in Harlem have not been particularly inspiring."

LACK DRIVE

"Our demonstrations seem to lack drive mostly because the leaders—political and civic—do not seem too interested in keeping the people roused on the issues of equality," she said. "Harlem leaders are too concerned with their individual security."

Rev. Richard A. Hilderbrand, executive secretary of the Harlem chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, disagreed.

"It could very well be that Miss Tate has come into contact with Negro leaders with qualities she described, but I doubt the validity of such a charge in a general sense. We all are not that way."

Paul Zuber, a Negro lawyer and a civil rights leader, said:

"Yes, we are devoid of political, social and civil rights leadership in Harlem. The people are still angry, but they have no one to turn to."

Council Receives Document To End RC Anti-Jewish Views

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The Vatican ecumenical council has received an official document aimed at ending anti-Jewish views among Roman Catholics and charging all mankind with responsibility for Christ's death.

Representing two years of work begun by the late Pope John XXIII, the document was submitted to the 2,300 council fathers by the secretariat for promoting Christian unity, headed by German-born Augustin Cardinal Bea.

At the same time a heated debate flared on the floor of St. Peter's Basilica as Joseph Cardinal Frings of Cologne, leader among Roman Catholic progressives, called for basic reform of the Holy Office.

The two developments made the day's gathering the most dramatic meeting of the council since it first assembled here 18 months ago.

Cardinal Frings denounced the Holy Office—the Vatican's guardian of doctrine — as "a source of harm to the faithful and of scandal to those outside the church." An Italian - born conservative, Alfredo Cardinal Ottaviani, is secretary of the Holy Office, which grew out of the inquisition. He defended its procedures. Both an administrative agency and a tribunal, the Holy Office handles such questions as heresy and crimes against the church.

SEES NEW ERA

The presentation of the document on Jews was hailed by the American Jewish Committee in New York as "an historic event." The committee's president, A. M. Sonnabend of Boston, said the proposed draft may well augur a new era in Catholic-Jewish relations.

The document stressed the church's ties with the Jews of the Old Testament. It affirmed that all mankind and not Jews alone were responsible for Christ's death, stated it is unjust to consider Jews cursed by God and called on priests and teachers of religion "never to present a contrary position," but to promote mutual esteem.

In Friday's debate, Cardinal Frings drew a burst of applause from the assembled cardinals and other prelates — though council rules forbid applause—with a declaration that the Holy Office's procedures are often unjust and that its methods "are badly in need of updating."

'NOT FAIR'

"It is not fair for the Holy Office to accuse, judge and condemn any individual without his having a chance to defend himself at a hearing," the German prelate said.

Council spokesmen, in relaying his remarks to reporters, said Cardinal Ottaviani later protested vigorously. He reminded the council that the Pope is always the prefect (chief officer) of the Holy Office and said such criticism is a reflection on the Pope.

Cardinal Ottaviani charged the attacks resulted from "lack of knowledge or worse." He said the Holy Office never accuses, judges or condemns anyone without a thorough investigation, "carried on with the help of competent consultors and experienced specialists."

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X B
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

By B. JAY BECKER

You are declarer with the West hand at Four Hearts. North leads the king of clubs and continues with the queen, South playing the six and then the two. You ruff the queen and cash the A-K of hearts, North discarding the six of spades on the second trump lead. How would you play the hand?

♠ K
♥ A K Q J 8
♦ J 8 7 6 2

N / W E / S

♠ 9 7 5
♥ 10 8 2
♦ A K Q
♣ 8 7 5 3

2. You are declarer with the West hand at Six Notrump. North leads the jack of spades. How would you play the hand?

♠ K 7
♥ A Q 6
♦ A J 8
♣ K 7 6 5 2

N / W E / S

♠ A 2
♥ K 7 5 4
♦ K 10 5
♣ A 9 4 3

1. Obviously, you can't draw South's two remaining trumps at this point because, if you did, you'd be out of trumps and would have no way of cashing five diamond tricks.

Whether the contract can be made depends on how the diamonds are divided. The best plan of play is to cash the A-K of diamonds next. If both opponents follow suit, proving that the diamonds are divided 3-3, you then draw two more rounds of trumps, discarding the queen of diamonds from dummy, and cash the remaining diamonds to make the contract.

If it turns out that the diamonds are divided 4-1, you would probably go down on this line of play if South has the singleton — but you would also go down on any other line of play. If North is the one with the singleton diamond, you would of course cash the queen of diamonds before drawing trumps.

2. Here the contract is certain to make regardless of how the adverse cards are distributed — provided adequate precautions are taken to guard against every contingency. There are ten high card tricks to begin with, and the obvious source for additional tricks is the club suit.

The only complication that can arise is a 4-0 club division, and appropriate steps should therefore be taken to guard against this possibility. The contract can be assured by winning the spade lead with the king and cashing the king of clubs. If both opponents follow suit, a club continuation guarantees at least twelve tricks, but if either opponent shows out the hand is still under control.

If North shows out, a club to the ace and a club back towards the jack holds South to one club trick. If South shows out, the same result is accomplished by playing a low club towards the A-9-4. Regardless of what North does, he cannot win more than one club trick.

Cardinal Leger To Visit Lepers

ROME (Reuters) — Paul-Emile Cardinal Leger, Roman Catholic Archbishop of Montreal here for the Vatican ecumenical council, plans to spend Christmas among lepers in Africa, his private secretary said here.

Msgr. Pierre Lafortune said the cardinal would leave by air Dec. 6, after the present council session ends, for Kenya, Uganda, Ruanda Urundi, The Congo, Ghana and the Ivory Coast.

Asked why Leger had decided to spend his Christmas holiday in leper colonies, Msgr. Lafortune said: "The cardinal feels it is in the spirit of the council to be with the poor on that day."

Bishops of various African dioceses had invited Cardinal Leger to visit the churches there and he had been happy to accept.
