Rudy Vallee Is Living In Present And Future

By GENE HANDSAKER

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Up and down long stairways, nimble as a mountain goat, Rudy Vallee led a tour of his hilltop mansion.

To a photographer and a reporter trailing him, he bawled cheerfully:

"No pictures with the damned megaphones! To hell with the megaphones and the saxophones! I live in the present and the future."

To a generation of his fans it may seem unbelievable, but next Thursday the grand-daddy of crooners will be 65 years old.

Valle 65? That slim, smooth fellow with the wavy hair, who led the Connecticut Yankees dance band? How long ago could it have been that you danced dreamily past the bandstand with Rudy standing there in ice-cream pants, smiling, suavely leading the musicians?

In his early days he sang through a megaphone. Remember I'm Just a Vagabond Lover, The Maine Stein Song, The Whiffenpoof Song, The Daring Young Man on the Flying Trapeze? Him 65? Impossible!

Yes, said Vallee:

"I've made out my medicare forms and, like the late Adolphe Menjou probably will drive to the social security office and collect my $125 any month I don't work."

WORKS ON BIRTHDAY

On his birthday he plans to be starring at the Melodyland Theatre in suburban Anaheim in How to Succeed in Business Without Really Trying. The Pulitzer Prize musical comedy brought him back from obscurity to three triumphant years on Broadway.

Vallee recently completed his same role of pompous, snappish business tycoon in a movie version of the show. It's his first major film assignment since The Helen Morgan Story, in 1957.

After Melodyland there will be two-week stands in How to Succeed at Nyack, N.Y., and Houston, Tex., and "then probably Las Vegas or another picture."

Did the prospect of turning 65 hold dismay?

"Not in the slightest. I don't feel it and I don't look it."

He has a modest paunch, but the greying hair is still thick and crinkly, the pale blue eyes still twinkle.

Since 1941 he has owned the huge, Spanish-style house, built in 1930 by Ann Harding on the crest of one of Beverly's highest hills.

The front-door chimes ring the first five notes of his old-time theme, My Time is Your Time — faintly on the first "time" because he has found no one to repair the mechanism.

A chamber beneath and as big as the tennis court has a rubber doormat announcing "Rue de Vallee."

SAVES ARRANGEMENTS

There are great racks of Vallee orchestrations — "$230,000 worth," he said. . . . Stacks of sheet music with his picture on the cover—Betty Coed, Every Little Girl Wants a Rudy Vallee. . . . All of the scripts from his famous radio hour, which spanned the decade 1929-39 and was second only to Amos 'n' Andy in popularity.

Every record he ever made is stored, every movie script, every program from tens of thousands of appearances.

There are panels of photos. Radio co-star John Barrymore, astronaut John Glenn and President John F. Kennedy at How to Succeed; some of the stars whose radio careers he helped launch, such as Kate Smith, Eddie Cantor, Bob Hope, Edgar Bergen, Red Skelton, Bob Burns.

There are great racks of bottled wine, much of it spoiled. "I just stupidly never used it," said Vallee. There are shelves full of large scrapbooks, now numbering 222, in which he pastes newspaper clippings, letters, photos, theatre programs and other mementos.

On other shelves are Vallee's old saxophones, and megaphones from his vaudeville days. "In the boxes they said they couldn't hear me. The first megaphone was made by a harness maker from a piece of black fibre. Then they said they couldn't see me, so I had one made of glass."

WANTS POWER NATIONALIZED

MONTREAL (CP)—Claude Jodoin, chairman of the Canadian Labor Congress, called for nationalization of all forms of power supply throughout Canada.

He also called for the nationalization of Bell Telephone Co. of Canada Ltd. The labor leader made his statements during an interview on the CBC's French-language television network.

Asked to be more specific about all forms of power, Mr. Jodoin singled out hydroelectric and atomic power. Hydroelectric power, he said, already is under public control in Quebec, Ontario and other provinces.

Mr. Jodoin said Bell performs an excellent service, but nationalization of public utilities is a matter of principle. Communications organizations should not escape it, he added.

Opening lead— two of clubs.

This hand occurred in a match between Austria and England, played in London wayback in 1937.

In those days Austria had the best team in Europe, and it was not at all surprising that Schneider, Jellinek, Herbert and von Blüdhorn, who composed the Austrian team, defeated the British team by 10,910 points in the 300-board match.

The bidding may seem strange by present-day standards, but that's the way it went when England held the North - South cards at the first table.

Harrison-Gray made a rather light opening bid of one heart, and Merkin eventually became declarer at the somewhat precarious contract of five spades. West led a club and South succeeded in making 12 tricks for a score of 680 points. The only trick he lost was a club.

The bidding at the second table, where Jellinek and Schneider where North-South for Austria, was also far from routine. It went, oddly enough, as follows:

North	East	South	West
Pass	1 ♦	2 ♣	2 NT
Pass	3 NT	Dble

Mathieson, playing with Konstam, became declarer at three notrump doubled on the sequence shown. Schneider laid a trap by overcalling one diamond with two clubs in the hope that his opponents would eventually contract for three notrump, and Mathieson fell right into the trap when he elected to bid two notrump instead of raising diamonds. Certainly a simple bid of two diamonds would have given a more accurate picture of his hand than his actual bid of two notrump.

North led a club and Schneider took it with the ace and proceeded to cash six spade tricks. He then played a heart and Jellinek scored the A-Q to defeat the contract five tricks — 1,400 points. The Austrian team gained 720 points. The Austrian team gained 720 points as a result of Schneider's imaginative bid of two clubs.
