MISSOURI HAS HUGE MELON CROP

JEFFERSON CITY, Oct. 6.—(U.P.)—A crop of 2,939,750 watermelons was harvested in Missouri this year, according to state board of agriculture estimates. Size of the melons averaged 15 per cent larger than in 1930. Only 1,624,000 melons were raised last year. The tomato crop was much smaller than in 1930, averaging only 1.8 tons per acre against 2.2 tons last year.

COLLEGE CUTS ENROLLMENT

ALBANY, N.Y., Oct. 6.—(U.P.)—In order to avoid a surplus of teachers, 300 students have been denied entry to the State College for Teachers here. "There would be no point to training more students for the teaching profession than could be used," Dr. A. R. Brubacher, president, said.

COLLECTS OLD NAILS

SLEEPY EYE, Minn., Oct. 6.—(U.P.)—Picking up old nails is the hobby of J. L. Kiefer, who puts them in cigar boxes and files them away. Kiefer, although not especially fond of old nails, would much prefer seeing them in his cigar boxes than lying in the street where they puncture auto tires.

I love to lean upon my spade, As the day begins to close, To smell the fragrance of fresh-turned earth! The fragrance of the rose, I listen to the nesting birds, As they chirrup in the trees, And watch the bonfire smoke ascend As grey wisps in the breeze, I love to lean upon my spade—I am like my fellow-men—For when we're leaning on our spades We are not working them!

Reading that no member of a graduating class in a western university believes in hell, we can only ask mildly what the students of today are raising.

One person received a letter from a friend who wrote: "If I don't get a letter from you today, I'll eat my shirt; and I haven't time for chewing the rag these days."

The Vernon ladies held their regular monthly institute meeting on Tuesday, Sept. 16th, at the home of Mrs. Jack Huntley with the Pres. in the chair. Meeting opened with the Ode and women's Creed followed by roll call answered by ten members and one new member. The minutes of last meeting were read and approved and a discussion followed concerning the installation of the electric light in our hall and school. It was moved by Mrs. Fraser and seconded by Mrs. A. Sullivan that the light be installed and all being in favor the motion carried. It was decided to take $5.00 rent for the Hall out of the $7.75 that remained of the District Convention fund and pass the remaining $2.75 over to Miss Huntley, Secy. of the District Convention. No sick calls were made this month nor nothing needed in the school. Mrs. Fraser kindly offered to take the next meeting. LADIES' NIGHT AT ROTARY

Last night the Canadian National Hotel resounded with vocal and instrumental music in honour of "Rotary Ann's" who were privileged to dine with their Rotarian male relations—husbands, fathers, brothers. There was a very large attendance presided over by the President, Rotarian J. J. Hornby. A recherche dinner was served under the direction of the general manager, Mr. Mould, which was thoroughly enjoyed. Chorus by the Rotarians, by the Rotary Ann's, and altogether enlivened the proceedings and helped the digestion, while an orchestra, under the direction of Miss Earle, contributed lively instrumental music. Mrs. Roper contributed two humorous recitations, while a trio consisting of Messrs. Sterns, Dingwell and Rotarian Quigley rendered two delightful vocal numbers.

The President announced that the Directors had decided to raise money for the Crippled Children's Fund by putting on a race meeting on Thanksgiving Day, and called upon Rotarian Dr. Heath McIntyre to explain the details which he did. It is intended to raise $500, and every member is expected to sell the necessary number of tickets to put the event over without any trouble. The programme is a good one, and the vaudeville such as will appeal to a holiday crowd.

After dinner the dining saloon was cleared and dancing engaged in; while provision was also made for those who preferred to play bridge. The function was voted one of the most enjoyable and successful Ladies Nights yet held under the auspices of the Club.

Decks Cleared For Political Action In Great Britain

PRESENT STANDING

(Canadian Press) LONDON, Oct. 6.—On the basis of a straight fight between the National Government forces and Laborites, possibly aided by Lloyd Georgean Liberals, the standing of parties in the House of Commons which dissolves tomorrow is as follows: National Government 330; Laborites 13; Conservatives 263; Liberals 58; Independents 4; Opposition 276; Laborites 287; New Party 4; Ind. Labor 3; Irish Independent 2. Total 614. (1 vacant).

Just how many of the Liberals will support the National Government campaign is uncertain. There are at least 22 under Sir John Simon, and in addition a number of Liberal Ministers.

(Canadian Press)

LONDON, Oct. 6.—Parliament will be prorogued Wednesday as was previously arranged and it is expected to be dissolved Thursday, in which place the election would take place October 28.

The official announcement on these matters will not be made, however, until Mr. MacDonald has conferred with the King, which he will do tomorrow.

The Cabinet's decision came as a general surprise to everybody especially since lobby gossip during the evening emphasized an expectation that the cabinet would be disrupted following the Prime Minister's visit to Mr. Lloyd George.

The veteran Liberal leader, it was said, warned Mr. MacDonald that it would be a grave mistake to call an election, describing such a step as "a perilous adventure" and assuring him that if an appeal to the country were decided upon he would advise the Liberal party members to stand as Independents, opposed to the Government.

How well founded this gossip may have been could not be learned tonight.

(Canadian Press)

LONDON, Oct. 5.—Decks were finally cleared last night for the general election that has been expected for some weeks. Prime Minister MacDonald, apparently having failed to draw Rt. Hon. David Lloyd George into line with Liberal Ministers of the National Government, will issue, probably tomorrow morning, the manifesto which will form the basis of an appeal to the people by the National Government.

Conservatives, the bulk of Liberals, and Mr. MacDonald's own "extreme right wing" of the old Labor party will go to the country on a broad programme of national reconstruction, in which tariffs will undoubtedly play an important part, even if they are only incidentally mentioned in the Prime Minister's manifesto.

Prime Minister MacDonald, according to all observers tonight, has another success to his credit—the maintenance of unity in his Cabinet on the question of the basis of the appeal to the people. Tonight's announcement that the Cabinet was unanimous in the decision for an immediate election conveyed to all politicians the implication that Mr. MacDonald had finally secured agreement from Conservatives and Liberals alike on the platform which will be seriously opposed only by the Labor party.

The present Parliament was elected on May 30, 1929. The results of that election left Labor the largest of the three parties, though without a clear majority in the House. Rt. Hon. Stanley Baldwin, who had been Conservative Prime Minister from 1924, resigned without meeting Parliament and Rt. Hon. Ramsay MacDonald formed his second Labor Administration.

1929 STANDING

The party standing as the last Parliament opened in 1929 was as follows: Labor 287; Conservative, 260; Liberal, 59; Independent, 9; total 615.

The Labor Government continued in power with the support of the Liberals until Aug. 24, 1930. On that day the growing tenseness of the financial position, the need for balancing a budget which threatened to result in a deficit of more than half a billion dollars, forced the formation of a National "co-operative" ministry in which Conservatives and Liberals were represented, but in which only a small handful of Laborites, including the Prime Minister, remained. The great bulk of the Labor party crossed to the Opposition benches and thus the complexion of the House was entirely altered.

Today the actual party standings are: Labor 284; Conservative 263; Liberal, 58; New Party 4, Independent, 9.

PRESENT SITUATION

But the important happenings of the past few weeks, sweeping across party lines, render this standing of little value as a clear indication of the actual state of the Parliament that is drawing to an early close. To arrive at a true picture: First, from the Labor column must be counted a dozen or more Laborite members who have voted in support of the National Government and thereby alienated their Labor party support.

Second, the Liberals must be divided into free traders and protectionists. Twenty-two members of the Liberal party are ready to support Premier MacDonald in any course.

Thirdly, the new party is something of an enigma. It consists of Sir Oswald Mosley, Lady Cynthia Mosley, Dr. R. R. Forgan and W. E. Allen, all former Laborites except Mr. Allen, a former Conservative. The "little four" may be given an added punch after the general election if their latest recruit, Ted (Kid) Lewis—well known pugilist—wins a seat in London's east end where he is something of an idol.

The Conservatives are probably more of a unit than any other party, yet there is a strong element of the Conservative rank and file who insist more upon tariffs than anything else, but who have relinquished their insistence on tariffs first for the sake of unity under Prime Minister MacDonald's banner.

Premier MacDonald, who visited Lloyd George at Churt yesterday was unable to reach any agreement. A statement issued today, and which was said to reflect Lloyd George's view, quotes him in a sensational attack on the Liberal Ministers who remain in the Government. It charges them with gross betrayal alike of the interests of country and party to which they profess allegiance. The statement was not issued as an official Lloyd George declaration, and it scarcely appeared before there were doubts as to whether it accurately represented his view. But there is obviously much difference of opinion in the Liberal ranks. Sir Herbert Samuel had to face some rapid-fire questions when he addressed the Liberal Candidates' Association today. The meeting passed no resolutions, but the trend of the meeting is understood to have supported Lloyd George in opposition to the general election.

Will Run In Seaham Premier MacDonald will again contest the constituency of Seaham, and despite his election by the National executive of the Labor party, he will fight as a Labor man. He will be opposed, it is expected, by an official Labor candidate.

Rt. Hon. Stanley Baldwin fires the opening shot of the campaign at Birmingham today.

Voice of Confidence

The battle cry of election was promptly echoed by a voice of confidence—that of Rt. Hon. J. H. Thomas, Secretary of State for the Dominions. "I was never more confident of anything in my life than of the result this election will produce," Mr. Thomas declared today. "At the same time, frankly I am somewhat afraid of the impression which may be held in certain foreign places and perhaps to some extent in certain parts of the Empire, as to the exact position prevailing here. That is one reason I favor an early election, he said. "I am convinced the overwhelming mass of opinion in this country is behind the National Government and will support it even though its policy of economy may be severe. That of itself will convince the whole world of the stability of this country." He was more optimistic of the general position of the Empire than ever before.

May Accept Peerage

One of today's outstanding developments was the report that Rt. Hon. Philip Snowden, the "fighting chancellor" had decided to accept a peerage. Already Mr. Snowden had stated definitely he would not seek re-election in the coming general

Employees Of Maritime Electric Are Banqueted

Upwards of thirty five contented and happy employees of the Maritime Electric Co., were entertained at 7 o'clock Monday evening at an enjoyable banquet in the Parker House. Not only was it an enjoyable affair from the serving of the grapefruit until coffee and cigars, but the menu was one of the best.

Mr. Schwelkopf, who is in the city in connection with the campaign about to be launched, capably presided, with Mr. James McKee, Superintendent, on his right and Mr. Harry Williams, Accountant, on his left, captains of the two teams.

At the conclusion of the enjoyable repast Mr. McKee in a short address referred to the work they were facing. This campaign was somewhat different to the last one conducted in the city—it meant a lot of hard work, but he felt they were equal to it. He regretted the absence of Mr. Patrick McMahon, one of their oldest employees, but he with some others were on duty at the plant. In concluding he introduced Mr. Bell, the new engineer of the plant, and Mr. Clements of Montague.

Mr. Williams in an optimistic address said the idea of the campaign was raising money. The Associated System was spending a "lot of money" on the power house and have recently taken over the Montague plant with the intention of running the line to Montague.

A new line has been put through to North Wiltshire and the current on this circuit turned on last Saturday.

An ordinary business could be established on a small scale and expand. Not so with electrical energy. Before a kilowatt could be sold a great deal of money must be expended. To sell $10,000 worth of current from $10,000 to $50,000 worth of machinery must be installed. This is made possible by the investors.

All subscribers are treated alike. The man of ordinary means who takes one $100 share or the millionaire who takes hundreds. He reminded his co-workers that the company was not owned by the latter class but that the great bulk of the stock is held by the small investor.

Mr. Schwelkopf is here with a plan for "customer ownership." They were asked to give their attention to the work. In conclusion Mr. Williams stressed the fact that the stock they were selling would always be at par value. Associated Gas and Electric stock was always worth its face value and will not fluctuate. He reminded the employees that in seventy years the company never failed to pay a dividend and he urged all to meet the public with the fullest confidence in the stock they were selling.

Mr. Bell, the new engineer, addressed the men thanking them for their assistance since his arrival and asking for their continued co-operation. The chairman, in a short, encouraging address said whether or not they disposed of their quota he would make no alibi. They had a good reputation and if they made a record the credit would go, not to himself, but to Messrs McKee and Williams. He felt sure they would sell their quota and he was at their service every minute of the day—and night also if required. He referred to Mr. McKee's aim to electrify the entire Island and paid a worthy compliment to him, stating he was the most efficient man he had met and his men the most efficient and intelligent.

Mr. McKee graciously acknowledged the compliment, stating he was more pleased with the compliment paid his men. Short addresses were delivered by Mr. Clements who agreed with all that had been said about Mr. McKee and his staff, and by Mr. Reg. Cox, Line Foreman, and one of the oldest members of the staff who said Mr. McKee deserved all the good things said about him. He recalled the old systems of years ago and the many difficulties experienced in the power houses of those days, concluding with humorous anecdotes. During the evening piano music was furnished by Mr. Austin Connolly, who also accompanied the singing song. The enjoyable affair closed with the singing of the National Anthem.
