Next month's roll call response will be favorite articles.

Refreshments were served by the hostess, Priscilla MacFadyen assisted by a committee.

STELLA MARIS CWL

Mrs. W.V. Gaulbier presided at the March meeting of Stella Maris Catholic Women's League.

Committee reports were given, correspondence heard and various agenda items discussed including the sale of prizes for education week and the possibie purchase of a stove for the hall kitchen.

Nominating committee for the annual meeting includes Mrs. Jerome Gallant, Mrs. Leo it. Doiron and Mrs. John Gauthier.

The spiritual director, Rev. Francis Cerceran, spoke briefly, offering advice and encouragement.

TIGNISH CWL

The regular monthly meeting of the Catholic Women's League of Tignish was held in Dalton School, with 17 members present. The president Mrs. Harold Cormier led in the League prayer. Mrs. Howard Harper read the minutes and Mrs. Howard Foley the correspondence, including a letter from Rev. Thomas Walsh asking assistance for the Sacred Heart program; along with this a letter was received from the provincial spiritual convenor Mrs. B.W. DesRoches of Miscouche concerning the Rosary project.

Convenors giving reports were: Mrs. Emile Gallant, church work, Mrs. Frank Gaudet, social welfare, Mrs. Vilton Keough, entertainment, Mrs. Howard Harper, radio and TV and films, Mrs. Roy Gallant, publicity.

Mrs. Gallant also read an article from the League magazine entitled 'Our Purpose in Life' by Rev. G.J. MacCormack, the provincial spiritual director.

Rev. M.J. Rooney's topic for discussion was Welfare conditions.

WELLINGTON CWL

Wellington Catholic Women's League agreed that each parish would sponsor a card party Easter Week in aid of the Prince County Welfare Agency.

Members unanimously voted in favor of legalizing the sale of margarine.

It was decided to donate $15.00 to the Sisters of St. Martha gift from the provincial Catholic Women's League; $35.00 is also to be sent to the provincial SDG scholarship fund for girls. An Easter box for the Sisters of the Precious Blood is to be packed.

At an executive meeting April 5, preparations will begin for the annual meeting and for CWL week April 19-26.

Meeting closed with prayer and the blessing of the spiritual director, Rev. Leonard MacDonald.

LONG RIVER UCW

"Darkness and Light" was the Easter worship theme of Long River United Church Women led by Mrs. Ernest Dunning.

CST. AND MRS. DOUGLAS A. BUCK

Young Couple Are Wed At Moncton, N.B., Charge

St. George's Anglican Church, Moncton was the scene of a double ring wedding when Gloria Jean, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Pike, Corner Brook, Nfld. became the bride of RCMP Constable Douglas Allen youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Hiram L. Buck. The chancel of the Church was trimmed in a setting of red and white carnations.

The bride was given in marriage by a brother - in - law of the groom, Dr. Donald Brown of Amherst, N.S. She was attended by Mrs. Donald Brown, and Mrs. Arthur Buck. Kimberley Ann Buck, neice of the groom was the flower girl.

The bride was charming in a floor length gown of white peau de soie, made on the dutchess style. Long sleeves ended in points over the hands and a vertical row of white satin bows trimmed the front skirt. A slight bustle effect ended in a chapel train. Her waist length five - tiered bouffant style veil was held in place with a white orchid. Her only ornament was a cultured pearl necklace, gift of the groom. She carried a cascade bouquet of American Beauty roses centered with white orchids.

Mrs. Brown and Mrs. Buck wore street length dresses, of gold and green brocade respectively, made on similar lines to the bride's; they wore wedding - ring brocade headdresses trimmed with a stiffened circular veils. Cascade bouquets of matching poms completed their ensemble.

The flower girl wore a re-embroidered white nylon dress over a stiffened crinoline. Her head dress was a cap style cloche trimmed in multi-coloured sweet heart rose buds. She carried a basket of white, gold poms and white rose buds.

The bride's mother wore an "after 5" dress of black silk velvet, a gold peau de soie draped turban hat, gold jewelry and accessories and a corsage of talisman roses.

The groom wore the scarlet uniform of the force and was attended by Gordon Betts, engineering student of UNB. Terence Steeves and Arthur Buck were ushers.

Following a reception in the church hall the couple left on a honeymoon in Montreal and northern N. B. For travelling the bride chose a two piece pink hostle suit, black hat and accessories, and a corsage of white orchids.

Previous to the wedding the bride was tendered several showers. A shower for both bride and groom was held at the home of the groom's brother, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Buck.

They will reside in Deer Lake, Nfld. where the groom is grandson of Mrs. Archie Thacker, and the late Archie Thacker formerly of Breadalbane, is stationed.

Indian Student Addresses Provincial CWL Executive

Hardships suffered under communist rule in 1960 - 61 by me and his countrymen were retold by Robert Luiz to members of the Catholic Women's League provincial executive Wednesday evening.

Mr. Luiz, a native of Kerala State, India is studying engineering at St. Dunstan's University under a scholarship provided jointly by the League and the Charlottetown Council, Knights of Columbus. He pledged his best efforts to be a credit to the organizations sponsoring his education, and in a humorous vein described some of the difficulties he had upon arrival in P.E.I.

Provincial CWL president, I. Arsenault chaired the meeting with the opening prayer led by the director, Rev. George MacCormack.

Correspondence read by Mrs. F. A. Coyle included a thank - you note from Michael Hennessey, registrar at St. Dunstan's University for a scholarship received for a foreign student; a letter from Mayor Gaudet acknowledging receipt of a resolution passed at the CWL convention resuming fines for littering the streets and highways, and one from the town council of Alberton relative to the same subject which stated that this recommendation was being adopted in Alberton; letters from Premier W. R. Shaw and W. R. Jenkins, president of the P.E.I. Liberal Association, acknowledging receipt of a resolution re clean elections.

The president stated that an invitation had been received to attend the annual meeting of the Canadian Highway Safety Council in Toronto in early May and that it might be possible for her to take part in some of the sessions as she expected to be in Toronto at that time.

As the result of Regional CWL conferences held last October in all three counties, a letter was sent to the P.E.I. government listing the recommendations adopted at these conferences with regard to liquor laws, minimum wages, and assistance for farmers in the line of co - operative marketing and agricultural education.

Miss Arsenault reported that had sent to the national CWL president suggestions from this province to be included in a brief to be presented to the Senate Committee on the Aging, and to the Royal Commission Bi - culturalism and Bilingualism.

Provincial conveners giving reports which evoked discussion were, spiritual — Mrs. B. W. DesRoches of Mischouche; child welfare, nutrition and social action — Mrs. Ellsworth Noonan of Seven Mile Bay; resolutions and legislation — Mrs. Alex Arsenault of Georgetown; report forms — Mrs. Allan J. MacDonald of Charlottetown, radio, T.V. and films — Mrs. Ivan Berrigan, Charlottetown, The League Magazine — Mrs. James Cain of New Perth; Girl Guides — Mrs. Robert Coffin of Charlottetown; organization — Mrs. F. J. Steele, Charlottetown and Mrs. Aiden Mulligan, Kinkora, and Mrs. J. J. MacDonald, formerly of Souris but now residing in Parkdale; finance — Mrs. John L. Beaton, Parkdale; and press — Mrs. James Pendergast of Charlottetown.

Plans for the provincial CWL convention to be held at St. Dunstan's University June 21-22 were discussed, and the usual prize of $25.00 was voted for St. Dunstan's University.

The meeting concluded with prayer led by Father MacCormack.

At a recent meeting of the Ladies Auxiliary of the (Confederation) Wing, RCAF Association, plans were finalized for today's Shamrock Tea at the club rooms and also for an Easter Monday Dance, March 30. Tea conveners are Mrs. Byron Burns and Mrs. Ralph Jenkins. The meeting was chaired by club president, Mrs. John MacDonald.

Mrs. Ernest Martin, Brooklyn, New York, is visiting her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. James Shaw, Montague. Mr. Shaw is a patient in the Kings County Memorial Hospital.

Errol Caseley, Halifax, spent the past weekend at his home in Kelvin.

Mrs. Alan McCann, Belleville, Ont. arrived in Montague Tuesday to visit her mother, Mrs. John Clair who has been hospitalized but is now convalescing at her home.

Mrs. Kelr Duggan and Earle MacKay won the high prizes at a card party held in the Royal Canadian Legion, Kensington, Tuesday evening. Second prizes went to Mrs. J.A. Douglas and Roy Mountain, and consolation prizes to Mrs. Emmett Fitzsimmons and Albert Riehl. Mrs. R. Cotton received the lucky door prize. The final card party for the season at the Legion Home is scheduled for March 31.

Members of the Royal Edward Chapter, IODE, met at the home of the regent, Mrs. W. R. Brennan, North River Road to prepare nighties, toys and diapers for distribution where required in the city. Extras were made for needy children overseas.

Assisting the hostesses with light refreshments were Mrs. A. W. Gaudet, the first vice-regent, and Mrs. John Lewis.

A community shower in Murray Harbour Hall honored Mr. and Mrs. Irving MacKay. After the gifts were opened an evening of games was enjoyed and refreshments served.

Mrs. Jimmy MacKenzie, Summerside, has as her guests this week her son, Dan, of the photographic division of the Canadian Army in Ottawa; also Mrs. Louise Anderson, RN, of the staff of the Ottawa City Hospital.

Earle Callbeck of Hampton has left for Millis, Mass., where he expects to spend some time.

Russell Dingwell, North Lake; Stewart Cameron, East Point and Leland Dixon, Bothwell, left last week for a 10-day visit in Ontario.

Joycelyn Stewart, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Stewart, Charlottetown, has successfully passed her RN exams at the Royal Victoria Hospital in Montreal and has joined the staff of that hospital.

Devotions were led by Major E. Ferguson at the Monday afternoon meeting of the Rainbow Club at Sunset Lodge. Two new members were welcomed; a new staff officer, Captain E. Dow and Mrs. M. Clay.

Plans for the annual meeting were finalized with Mrs. P. Sharam as convener for the luncheon.

Mrs. Emma Holman, Summerside, entertained at a dinner party Saturday evening honoring Chief Justice and Mrs. Shane Campbell who sail from Halifax March 21 on the S.S. Sylvania for an extended tour of England and Scotland. Mrs. Holman also entertained friends at the tea hour on St. Patricks Day.

Among the 70 livestock farmers touring Ontario livestock establishments are Howard Glover and Perley Harris of Guernsey Cove and Axel Irving of Beach Point.

MARY HAWORTH

Woman Despairs Over Her Sister's Atheism

Dear Mary Haworth: In deep despair I am turning to you, seriously thinking of seeking admittance to a mental hospital. I am living on tranquilizers.

It all started a year ago when my younger sister (I am 42) returned from years abroad. She is a sociologist, 36, married to a Danish anthropologist (both are Ph.Ds). They've come back here to teach.

Jane is a beautiful blonde, very intelligent, very popular, of whom we've proudly expected great things. We were a religious family and she went to college planning to be a medical missionary. Now she is an atheist, as is her husband.

At first nobody took their ideology seriously. But she is so pretty, so charming, that she wins people over, one by one, with her husband's help. She says she isn't a Communist but her line is the same.

My husband used to think she was crazy. Now he agrees with her. So does my son, 19, our only child, who came strongly under her influence in just one week, when home from college for the Christmas holidays.

Last month my husband (a surgeon, very respected) left the church. Our son left, too. They say they are through with "superstition" and are now a part of the new "humanism," which is very loving and ethical.

When I told my husband I was losing my mind (I've lost 20 pounds since Christmas), he took me to a psychiatrist. The psychiatrist doesn't discuss religion. He wants me to admit that I am jealous of my sister, which isn't true. I've always loved her and still do.

I've had many talks with my pastor about the problem. He has met the pair, listened to them and walked out on them. He tells me to do the same: that they are part of the anti-Christ movement, very clever and evil to the core. He says I am to pray constantly for all of them.

I keep trying to pray and when in church, among good people, I feel better. But at home, oh, the situation is more than I can cope with. Tranquilizers aren't the answer. I can't imagine what you can do for me.

You probably will recommend books which my sister will call cheap irrational stuff. They've already torn apart Paul Tillich, so don't recommend him— or Catherine MarsShall. But maybe if you publish my letter, others similarly tried may back me in prayer.

Dear S.W.: In the Epistle of St. Jude (as translated from the Latin Vulgate in Rheims in 1582, and revised by Challener in 1752) it is written:

"When Michael the archangel, disputing with the devil, contended about the body of Moses, he (the archangel) durst not bring against him (the devil) the judgment of rading speech, but said: "The Lord command thee."

A footnote to this mysterious passage explains that the incident, nowhere else mentioned in Holy Writ, was originally known by revelation and transmitted by tradition. It construes that the devil's purpose was to have Moses' body buried in such a place and manner as to be worshipped by men.

So much for background. My point is, if the archangel Michael, ever in God's sight, "durst not" (in prudence) engage in wrangling debate with the devil (or his advocates), then certainly it behooves you, a mere mortal, to take refuge in peaceful silence and interior prayer when confronted by your sister's crusading unbelief.

Don't wrestle with her views. Don't offer yourself as combatant or target. Read Matthew 7 (in the New Testament) for guidance in keeping your mind stayed on God in the trying situation. As it says (among other things): "Give not that which is holy to dogs. Neither cast ye your pearls before swine, lest perhaps they trample them underfoot and turn and rend you."

Now, as bedside reading for your sister, may I suggest: 1. Sir Shane Leslie's "Ghost Book" (Sheed and Ward), a sensation amongst the eggheads when it came out a few years ago. It is a carefully researched, substantially documented collection of true stories of diabolic visitations experienced by various families, individuals and so-called great houses in the British Isles in the present century. Sir Shane, by the way, is a cousin of Sir Winston Churchill; their mothers were cousins.

2. The French encyclopedist Leon Cristiani's book "Evidence of Satan in the Modern World" (MacMillan, 1962) of which the publishers say: "Msgr. Cristiani documents, with scrupulous care, the still present phenomena of diabolical infestation, possession and temptation. He describes in detail many notable cases . . ."

My thought is to direct your sister's attention to the prime mover in her puppet show. It just might scare her back into a mood for prayer.

Mary Haworth counsels through her column, not by mail or personal interview. Write her in care of (the Guardian).

ELLEN'S DIARY

Since Winter Is Gone It's Spring I Know

Saturday!

Sunshine patterning fetching blue shadows on the snow. Icicles falling from the eaves, as stay warmed. March smiling to see the shade of Spring in deepening outline above the hilltops.

Last of the neighborhood went to their Saturday - morning games of hockey at the rink.

"Not the best work for a stick man" we overheard Mr. James remark with a twinkle to Mack setting out with skates on his shoulder, to join other members of his team "No stalens cleaned yesterday — at least not to the field. Cattle standing on their heads!"

"They've had their grain and hay. There's water in their bowls. And" Mack grinned "They can stand on their heads, as you say, unless you and dad clean the stables, until I come home! I sha'n't be gone long" he said stepping away.

By this, we remember, Spring will have come. Kept its date on the calendars, broken winter's icy bands.

"This has been a kind of winty week, Ellen" James remarked at supper. "Yes, coolish throughout. There's more snow around than there was a week ago."

"The new will help to take the old" we said.

James nodded. "It will go — in time. I hope we have no great thaw, to seep into cellars and wash drains in the fields."

Supper was the customary beans and brown bread? Not this time. The main dish was cod, browned, crisped in bacon fat, spiced at eating with a dash of vinegar, or maybe a dot of mayonnaise, altogether a favorite food of James', prepared as it was, after a method which goes back to his boyhood years. Stewed apricots, in a springtime fancy, sweet, but yet a little tangy was our dessert... The afternoon was dimmed then, turning without a sign of any brightening sunset, grayly toward the dusk. A wind stirred in the trees, where now we commence to notice, not so much the stark bareness, we saw there through the winter, but the buds of promise of the spring. Dim this night is. No sight yet of yesterday's moon. No star. But a mildness, come to take the week away, a nice hint in it that, by this, another season is here. A poetess, Helen Welshimer writes of it thus:

"I know it is spring... the sky's so blue,
The earth's high ceiling is practically new.
The iris is up; when the wind is blowing
I smell wet sod where the grass is growing.
And now and again my heart turns over
At the scent of lilacs or sweet white clover.

I know it is spring, for an old, old Book,
Where farmers, and gardeners, and townsmen look
For comfort and wisdom and joy and peace,
Says that the seasons never will cease
As long as the earth remaineth...
So
Since winter is gone, it's spring. I know."

Until Monday — Diary — Good - night.....

Tasty Mushrooms Are Mushrooming Business

YEAR by year the interest of good-food lovers in this country has been focussed more and more on fresh mushrooms.

Ten years ago we consumed 65 million pounds of fresh mushrooms a year. In 1964, however, 170 million pounds of mushrooms will be produced and used in dozens of ways to make pedestrian foods more flavorful and to turn finer foods into gourmet dishes.

Mushrooms reach the market in prime condition. For they are being shipped in refrigerated trucks and sold from iced vegetable counters in the stores.

WOODEN BASKET

Most mushrooms are packed in large, old-fashioned hand'ed wooden baskets because homemakers prefer this, as they like to dig into the baskets, scrutinize the mushrooms and select those that seem to be the best.

This stirring-up crushes some mushrooms, knocks off the tops and bruises others, so when the customers finish mushroom-mauling, an average of 20 percent of the contents of a 3 lb basket becomes waste. This, of course, tends to "up" the price to the consumer.

Why insist on this old-fashioned method of buying mushrooms?

Apples, bananas, carrots, cauliflower, Brussel sprouts, oranges, berries and many other fruits and vegetables are being specially packaged to protect their freshness. Why not co-operate and ask your supermarket managers to introduce packaged fresh mushrooms?

Measurements level; recipes for 6

CHICKEN MUSHROOM LAYER

½ lb. thin-sliced fresh mushrooms
1 c. chicken bouillon
1 tsp. instant onion
4 oz. pkgd. seasoned poultry stuffing
¼ c. butter or margarine (¼ stick)
½ tsp. powdered tarragon
1 tsp. lemon juice
1 tsp. instant onion
1 (3 lb.) broiler-fryer, sectioned and boiled
Simmer mushrooms in ½ c. bouillon for 5 min.

Meanwhile, brown poultry stuffing in 2 tbsp. butter and add mushrooms.

Stir in remaining bouillon tarragon, lemon juice and onion.

Generously butter 2½-qt. low baking dish. Alternately layer in mushroom-crumb stuffing and boiled broiler-fryer, bones removed, meat cut in bite-size pieces. Finish with mushroom-stuffing layer.

Dot with remaining butter. Cover. Bake 2' min. at 350 degrees F.; uncover and bake 10 min. more to brown.

2 c. sifted flour
½ tsp. salt
3 tsp. double-acting baking powder
1 tbsp. sugar
1 c. cookedrice
1 c. milk
1 egg
2 tbsp. melted butter or margarine

Sift together flour, salt, baking powder and sugar. Add rice; stir with fork until cooked kernels are coated with flour. Then stir into milk.

Beat and add egg, and melted butter or margarine. Drop by tablespoonfuls onto heated oiled heavy fry pan or griddle, keeping fritters 1½" apart.

Fry golden brown one side; then turn to brown reverse side. Allow about 3½ min. altogether.

Serve for dinner in place of potatoes; or use for breakfast or dessert with maple syrup, honey, jelly or marmalade.

THE CHEF RECOMMENDS

Mesdames: Of the new salads, the most exquisite was served at a recent dinner at the Forum of the Twelve Caesars in New York.

It is made with unconked white mushrooms, sliced paper-thin in profile, style, marinaed in a mild - seasoned French dressing of lemon juice and olive oil and served on Bibb lettuce.

Household Hints

Clean hairbrushes and combs by adding a generous amount of ammonia to warm water. Dust and hair oils vanish like magic.

After letting down the hem on a child's dress, disguise the old hemline with rickrack or embroidered braid.

To keep your kitchen clean and sanitary, choose washable paint or wallpaper as well as sink boards and counter tops that can be scrubbed with soap and water when you're remodeling your kitchen.

To help keep a roast from shrinking, add a pinch of soda to the salt you put on top.

Tomato juice and grapefruit juice mixed in equal portions make a delicious and different breakfast drink.
