Bond Programs Build Churches

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP)—"Thank you," wrote the minister, "for taking us out of the begging business."

The letter is a prized possession of A. B. Culbertson, whose germ of an idea a decade ago turned into a bustling investment business.

His idea also built hundreds of churches for booming suburbia.

The problem simply was this: Persons moving to the new suburbs are burdened with mortgages, car payments, the need to put up at least a decent front.

These people haven't $2,000 or $3,000 each to contribute toward the building of a church.

But Culbertson knew their credit was good.

Basically, says Culbertson, "we've given respectability to church obligations."

The system simply is that the church members, possibly meeting in someone's home or in a school, agree to a bond program to build a church structure.

Culbertson makes the arrangements and the church members sell the bonds. Mostly they sell bonds to themselves, borrowing the money from a bank.

The bonds are secured by the church property and are paid, along with the interest, from regular Sunday contributions dropped into the collection plate.

"It is a self-propelling proposition," says Culbertson, a spry, 70-year-old Baptist layman. "We just ride herd from the moment we sign up a church until the last bond is paid for."

Most savings and loan associations ignored churches' financial needs 10 years ago, Culbertson said in an interview. Bank standards were too rigorous to be met by new, struggling churches.

Now they're bidding for church loans," Culbertson said wryly.

Success of the A. B. Culbertson and Co. formula is reflected in hundreds of churches across 14 states.

The Culbertson concern now services about $65,000,000 in church and institutional loans.

Culbertson does not hesitate to crack down on a church failing to meet its bond payments.

"Any time a church doesn't meet its obligations, it ought to be foreclosed," he said. "We have repossessed churches, and so far we've sold all of them but one. It's up for sale now."

United States Steel Demand Is Booming

CLEVELAND (AP) — "Steel-makers are activating idle facilities and adding employees to payrolls to keep up with a booming demand," Steel magazine reports.

Steel says the heavy demand indicates mill output will reach a record of at least 120,000,000 tons this year.

Republic Steel Corp. is resuming steelmaking operations that had been idle for more than four years at its Massillon, Ohio, works, and three other companies activated seven open hearth furnaces, Steel reports.

The employment uptrend continues, the publication adds, and U.S. Steel Corp. which has recalled all employees on layoff status at its Lorain, Ohio, works, has begun hiring additional workers for the first time since 1960.

Latest industry figures show that June was the seventh consecutive month that employment figures increased. Employment of 557,844 (in June) was the highest since April, 1962, when the total was 566,271.

MAY TIGHTEN

If the auto industry can avoid crippling strikes, the steel market may tighten appreciably next month, the metalworking weekly says. The auto makers are expected to step up orders after Labor Day for fourth quarter delivery, and barring a crippling strike, the forecast is for production of 650,000 cars next month and as many as 800,000 in October.

Steel translates that into 2,600,000 tons of steel for the automotive market alone in the September-October period.

The magazine says that will mean a tighter supply situation in sheets and bars because "automakers and their suppliers will have to depend pretty much on new steel. They won't be able to live off inventories the way they did a year ago when they were trimming stocks they had built for strike protection."

Steel forecast ingot production would be slightly higher this week than the estimated 2,403,000 tons poured last week.

SLEEPY JUDGES ARE DEFENDED

LONDON (Reuters) — Britons are being urged not to pass a sleepy judgment on magistrates who sit with eyes tightly shut and heads nodding.

The Magistrate — official journal of Britain's lay judges —said if a judge's eyes were closed it was "to enable him to concentrate more intently on the oral evidence which assails his hearing."

It said judges had to contend with the soporific murmurings of lawyers, like busy bees in a hive; the hypnotic movements of police officers in and out of the witness box, like sheep jumping over the proverbial gate; the scratching of the clerk's pen and the ticking of the court clock.

With these types of lullabies why wonder if the head nods and the jaw falls open, it asked.

"But perish the thought any magistrate actually sleeps. He can say in the words of the song of Solomon 'I sleep but my heart waketh', the article commented.

It added that magistrates must have felt a special sympathy for the line judge at this year's Wimbledon lawn tennis championships who had the misfortune to doze off while on court duty.

Toronto Pair Quit Sea Voyage

TORONTO (CP) — Towering Atlantic waves and plenty of hard luck forced two Toronto men to give up their attempt to travel to Norway in a 22-foot canoe cruiser.

But Norwegian - born Haakon Sverdrup, 46, and Danish-born Otto Pedersen, 39, vow to make another try in June next year.

"We were 200 miles off the Labrador coast headed for Greenland when we ran into a storm with 30-foot waves," Mr. Pedersen said in an interview here. The engine stopped with valve trouble and they didn't have repair equipment.

Drifting for several hours, they were towed by a biological research boat back to Cartwright, Labrador.

Shortly after starting the voyage, their boat struck a shoal on the St. Lawrence River July 22. They were held up while the boat's propeller and shaft was replaced.

Bad luck struck again when the propeller was replaced a second time after it became entangled with a water ski tow rope.

They will resume their trip from Cartwright next year, using the same cruiser.

Mattress Size Sets Status

TORONTO (CP)—A mattress manufacturer has devised a status-scale that drops this city low down in the sophistication ratings.

And it all depends on the size of the mattress you prefer.

The bigger the mattress, the higher your rating. The manufacturer gives full marks to western Canada.

The true sophisticate, it seems, prefers twin beds, which places Edmonton, Calgary and Vancouver — where twin mattress sales account for more than half the nation's total—among the least rustic.

Maritimers and Quebec residents almost invariably choose double beds, the manufacturer says.

The trend to the massive mattress has added six to 10 inches to their length in recent years, a foot to their width. Standard length once was 74½ inches but lengths up to 84 inches have become usual.

An old double-bed mattress once gave each occupant 27 inches of room. Now 39 inches is a usual order.

BMC Reports Record Output

LONDON Reuters)—The Giant British Motor Corporation today announced record production figures for the second straight year.

The Corporation accounts for two-fifths of Britain's vehicle production.

The Corporation produced 858,775 vehicles in the financial year ending last month — up nearly 15 per cent from the previous record total. Of these, 320,181 vehicles were for overseas customers.

N.Z. TOURISM

New Zealand was visited last year by more than 109,000 tourists, who spent £9,000,000.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X B
L LONGFELLOW

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Opening lead — king of diamonds.

A play which is likely to gain in the long run, as compared to another play, is generally called a percentage play. The player who follows percentages regularly is bound to come out ahead in the end, even though the indicated percentages will occasionally betray him.

South is in six spades. The contract appears ironclad when play starts, but when declarer leads the ace of spades at trick two, West shows out and complications set in.

South has no entry to dummy to take a spade finesse against the queen. He also has a heart loser to worry about, and he therefore has a real problem on solve in trying to escape the loss of both a spade and a heart.

The actual declarer went down quickly. After playing the ace of spades he cashed the A-K of hearts, with the result of which he was down one.

Alternatively, after cashing the ace of hearts, South could have played the king and another spade to establish an entry to dummy, planning to lead the ten of hearts later and finesse. However, this method of play would have failed if it turned out that West had been dealt the Q-x of hearts.

The proper play — the percentage play— would have succeeded. Declarer's best chance is to lead a low heart to the nine at trick three. East takes the ace and returns a diamond or a club, which South ruffs. After entering dummy with a heart, South leads the jack of spades and finesses.

The bidding tell declarer that West, who bid up to four clubs single-handed, is practically sure to have 6-5 or 6-6 distribution. On this basis he cannot possibly have three hearts. Once it is clear that East has two or more hearts, the low heart play at trick three guarantees an entry to dummy to take the proven spade finesse.
