Inquest Opens In House Blast

OTTAWA (CP) — Commons Speaker Lucien Lamoureux has warned Dr. H. B. Cotnam, Ontario supervising coroner, that security precautions on Parliament Hill are under "the sole jurisdiction" of the Commons and Senate.

[illegible] contained in a letter read into the record a [illegible] opened an inquest into the May 8 explosion in the Parliament Buildings that killed Paul Joseph [illegible], 55-year-old transient.

Dr. Cotnam told the five-man jury that they had the right to make recommendations on how to avoid similar fatal bombings in future.

Dr. Hugh Horner, Progressive Conservative MP for Jasper-Edson, the first physician to attend Chartier, said Chartier was lying on the floor near a washroom door with his right arm blown off and his right side mutilated and burned.

Dr. Horner said Chartier died shortly afterwards without saying anything or making any movements or gestures.

SUFFERED FROM ANXIETY

Chartier suffered from chronic anxiety, a mild mental disorder and had psychopathic tendencies, said Dr. W. B. Spalding of McMaster University, Hamilton, Ont. He said Chartier went to the out-patient department of Toronto General Hospital June 28, 1965, complaining of black-outs, chest pains and choking.

These symptoms were psychologically produced and resulted from Chartier's anxiety state dating back to 1952 and occasional bouts of depression.

He said he saw Chartier again July 8 and Sept. 25, 1965, and he appeared to be improving.

He didn't hear from him again until January when Chartier wrote from Florida saying he had run out of pills. A money order was enclosed for a new prescription and the pills were mailed to him.

When Chartier wrote again Feb. 15, he asked for more pills. Dr. Spalding said he advised Chartier to see a doctor in Florida. He did not send further pills and never heard from Chartier again.

Rene Souliere, a Commons messenger, said a man wearing a trench coat approached him in the Commons public gallery shortly before the explosion and asked for directions to the nearest washroom.

"He had been drinking," Mr. Souliere said. He smelled of liquor and his eyes were "kind of glassy."

Constable Gerald Ladouceur, a Commons guard, said Chartier was observing the Commons in session minutes before he was killed.

He said there were about 230 MPs in the chamber at the time and the public gallery was filling up with children when Chartier asked him for directions to "the closest washroom."

He said Chartier appeared perfectly normal. Between five and 10 minutes later, Constable Ladouceur said, he heard a noise and, when called later to the washroom to which he had directed Chartier, identified Chartier whose body was lying on the floor.

Johnson, Pearson May Meet

QUEBEC (CP) — Premier Daniel Johnson said here that he and Guy Favreau, president of the Privy Council have met and discussed an eventual meeting between Mr. Johnson and Prime Minister Pearson.

"We discussed nothing in depth, but there was a question of an eventual meeting with Mr. Pearson. No date was set," the premier said, just before Tuesday's session of the provincial cabinet.

The three-hour talk, staged at the premier's Montreal home, ranged over a wide variety of subjects including Quebec - Ottawa relations.

"I strongly doubt that the federal government will admit the principle of two nations, and the writing of a new constitution," the Union Nationale party chieftain told reporters.

Mr. Johnson reaffirmed his intention of being uncompromising in dealings with Ottawa. However, he said the dealings will be held in the best climate possible, if Ottawa will accept certain basic principles.

Mr. Johnson said the prime minister had wisely chosen in sending Mr. Favreau to meet him. Mr. Favreau "is one of my very good friends."

The Privy Council president is responsible for federal-provincial affairs in the Pearson cabinet.

Earlier Tuesday, a Montreal newspaper, La Presse, said in an Ottawa report the first meeting between the governments was "to break the ice."

Quebec Agriculture Is Hit By Strike Of Gov't Officials

By CLAUDE RENAULT

QUEBEC (CP)—The Quebec agriculture department appears to be hardest hit by the continuing strike of 1,600 professional men employed by the Quebec government, who struck for higher pay May 9.

The strikers include engineers, geologists, geographers and other professional groups. In the case of the agriculture department, 300 agronomists and veterinarians in rural areas are on strike.

Three-quarters of the meat produced in Quebec is federal inspected, but the remainder, quich generally is inspected by Quebec officials, now is sold without government supervision.

An agricultural spokesman said his department has advised all these provincially-inspected slaughterhouses to hire their own veterinarians for the duration of the strike. As far as he knew, cities such as Montreal, Sherbrooke, Trois-Rivieres and Shawinigan had complied with this request, but he could not comment on slaughterhouses in smaller centres.

RESEARCH HELD UP

Agronomists went on strike just as the province's research centres and experimental farms were due to plant this season's crops.

Most government departments did not appear to be unduly affected by the strike, as it comes at a normally slack period. Finances for 1966 have already been planned and most of the needed funds already allocated, civil servants say.

Exception, however, was the roads department, where the absence of 222 engineers is said to have delayed many projects, and the revenue department, where 275 missing accountants are making it difficult to administer the collection of contributions to the new Quebec Pension Plan.

LINK SIX UNIONS

The professionals belong to six different unions, all affiliated with the Quebec - based Confederation of National Trade Unions and linked by a council known as "Interprof."

One point at issue that has been settled is the government's original refusal to recognize the group of six as a single body, preferring to negotiate separate contracts with each of the unions individually.

The government now has accepted the principle of the inter-professional group, and negotiators for both sides say the main stumbling block now is money.

The government has not made public any salary offers it may have made, but the union group has announced its demand for an average annual pay increase of $2,000. This, it says, will bring the pay of government-employed professionals up to the $10,000 level paid in the Montreal area.

Cartoonist Drops Ookpik

TORONTO (CP) — Ookpik has sailed off into the sunset for the last time. His creator, Al Beaton, was forced to dissolve his association with the diminutive Arctic comic strip character for health reasons.

"It was a difficult decision to make," says Beaton, a 42-year-old native of Vancouver who has been editorial cartoonist for the Toronto Telegram for the last five years.

"But my doctor said either it the strip died or I would. I decided reluctantly it would have to be Ookpik."

Ookpik first gained prominence about four years ago as a symbol of Canada's far north at Canadian trade commission displays in the United States.

Then about two years ago Mr. Beaton was asked his thoughts on making Ookpik a comic strip character.

"After some thought, I said yes and the venture has certainly been a success."

The strip has been syndicated to 47 daily newspapers in Canada, the United States and England.

Mr. Beaton previously was a cartoonist for the Vancouver Province. He will continue as editorial cartoonist for The Telegram.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X B
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.
