

"DARLING, NO MATTER WHAT HAPPENS...I'LL ALWAYS TRUST YOU"

"OR, TAKES YOU FOR GRANTED, RUN! Go ahead! GET OUT and SHOW HIM THAT A WOMAN DOESN'T WANT TO BE TRUSTED!"

Rosalind Don RUSSELL-AMECHE Kay FRANCIS

"The Feminine Touch"

Plus - Cartoon and Novelty

Prince Edward TO-DAY AND THURSDAY SHOWS 2.30-7-9

CENTRAL GUARDIAN

This column is reserved for news of a local interest... a survey nature may be inserted at a word, strictly payable in advance.

CRASWELL for Photographs.

RACE FANS - Cardigan Picnic for supper after the races. 8-5-11.

BAND CONCERT Queen Square Gardens Thursday night. Pipe and Drum Band sponsored by H. R. Large & Co. 8-5-21.

CONFEDERATION LIFE INSURANCE 1-978

DR. CARSON'S new location 201 Prince Street. 8-3-31

BAND CONCERT Queen Square Gardens Thursday night. Pipe and Drum Band sponsored by H. R. Large & Co. 8-5-21.

OBSERVATION POST COMPLETED - The observation post of the Aircraft Detection Corps is now established on the roof of the Charlottetown Hotel which is the highest in the city and affords a complete view of the harbor. A building has been erected as a protection against the elements for members of the Corps who will remain in the post on shifts every hour of the day. The small workers in the mounted with a gun turret which is of glass construction and revolves on a swivel giving the occupant a chance to keep looking on all sides. The work of the Corps is to watch for the approach of any suspicious aircraft. It is tied in with the Eastern Air Command of the Royal Canadian Air Force.

A. R. P. MEETING - Every citizen will eventually be supplied with a gas mask and will be instructed in its use, it was decided at a meeting of the Charlottetown sub-committee of the A. R. P. at a meeting held in City Hall yesterday morning. Plans were to have a grand parade of all A. R. P. workers in the Charlottetown area in the near future. It was also announced that the St. John's College Hall would be supplied with gas masks when the future First Aid lectures for the A. R. P. workers are given. Those attending yesterday's meeting included Mayor B. Roy Holman, chairman; Mr. A. J. Pallen, vice-chairman; Dr. J. A. MacMillan, controller of medical services; Coun. J. E. Sterns, controller of warden's; Coun. J. McKee, controller of public utilities; Mr. J. Messervy, controller of transportation; and Mr. Gordon Stewart, secretary.

INDIAN GIRL IN HOSPITAL - Miss Agnes Bernard, an Indian girl from Rocky Point, is in hospital with a fractured shoulder and injured back as a result of falling out of or being thrown from a car on Sunday night. She was en route to Milton that evening and apparently accepted a drive from two young men. She has been unable to give the details of what took place. Miss Bernard was found lying partly on the pavement and partly on the shoulder of the road by Mr. P. C. Kelly, who was driving. She was going along the Malpeque Road. The woman was unconscious at the time. Police are investigating.

GAME CONDITIONS SPLENDID IN KING'S COUNTY - Last night an R.C.M. Police game patrol returned from a two day check on game conditions in four different reports conditions re both migratory game and provincial game birds highly satisfactory. In several sections cover of black ducks are more numerous than last season. One district showed a decline whilst others are approximately the same as last season, which incidentally were from good Shore birds are here in large numbers. Hungarian partridge show the biggest increase in the several areas checked with a native partridge (Ruffed grouse) a close second in four different districts. It is easily double that of last year at this date. On a section comprising 8 farms, the total number of birds are approximately 18 birds each are located. The almost total absence of rain from May 10th till June 30th is given for the extremely high hatch of mortality among the chicks of the Ruffed grouse this season. A section man who covers a 3 mile stretch of track reports that there are three or four to a covey on his beat. This particular stretch of track passes through a terrain very favourable for the grouse and a sort of top things off a deer and a bear and two cubs have been seen in the Souris area.

NUTRITION IN SALADS GREAT - Experienced cooks know that you can never have too many salad recipes. Salad is a vital part in both our personal and our national life, and it is of more importance than ever. In this time of war, when we are serving our country in many ways, we should also be serving it in our salads. A well-arranged salad bowl adds beauty and color to the table as well as its quota of health, so serve some sort of salad at every meal. To help you in this laudable endeavor, we present some really tasty salad suggestions. Spinach salad made with unpeeled spinach leaves, washed and drained, served with a dressing of 5 cups of uncooked green lima beans, 2 cups of uncooked green peas, 1 cup of uncooked chickpeas, 1-2 cup chopped celery, 1-2 cup chopped onions, 2 chopped spring onions. Garnish with slices of 2 hard boiled eggs.

Limn Bean Salad - Those who like highly flavored salads will want to try a green bean mixture. Mix with a fork 2 cups cooked green lima beans, 2 tablespoons chopped parsley, one bud garlic (chopped) and Spanish onion, sliced thin. Gradually add 1-4 cup salad oil, then add, drop by drop, tablespoon vinegar. Or, thoroughly season with salt and pepper, and garnish with sliced tomatoes and onions. When fresh limas are used, rinse immediately after cooking with cold water. For a novel salad, serve a kippered herring salad. Steam one kippered herring in 2 cup water, cooking it high heat. When steamed, turn to simmer heat for about 5 minutes. Remove fish, drain, bone and shred. Add one cup diced cooked potatoes and 2 cup diced celery. Chop and add one green pepper, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1-4 teaspoon paprika, 1-8 teaspoon pepper and one tablespoon minced onion. Steam and chop hard-boiled egg. Add sufficient mayonnaise to moisten, and serve on lettuce bed garnished with pimento strips. Serves 6.

Molasses Milk Drink - The children will thrive on a molasses milk drink. Mix two cups each cold evaporated milk and cold water. Stir in 1-4 to 1-3 cup molasses and sprinkle with nutmeg. Makes 4 1-4 cups. To top off, mix a few drops of delicious honey parfait. For three pints, beat two egg whites with a few grains of salt until foamy. Add 2 cup strained honey, beat. Add all the time until mixture is quite heavy. Add two egg yolks and teaspoon vanilla extract. Continue beating only until blended. Whip one half can evaporated milk very stiff, after it has been well chilled. Fold into honey mixture. Pour at once into cold refrigerator trays. Set at lowest point for quick freezing.

WANTED - Fresh milk. Highest prices paid. Apply to G. & G. Pure Milk

RELIEVE SUFFERING QUICKLY WITH KELLOGG'S ASTHMA RELIEF

Charles Galbraith, who was serving in the armed forces in Newfoundland, was killed in an accident on Saturday, according to word from Halifax. Charles is well known in Charlottetown where he served as professional at the Belvedere Golf Club for a number of years prior to the outbreak of the present war. After the war broke out he was commissioned in a local unit and was stationed for a time in Halifax. No details of his death had been received at the time of writing.

FISHERMEN MEET - A meeting of the executive of the P. E. I. Fishermen's Union was held in the Board Room of the City Buildings yesterday afternoon. Matters pertaining to the finances of the organization were discussed. Mr. Napoleon Arsenault, Egmont Bay, president, was in the chair.

HAY BURNED - A hay barn owned by William Jackman of Village Green was burned Monday night. The hay in a barn runs as high as six or seven tons, it is said, though it was not known how much was in this particular one.

POLICE COURT - In the Police Court yesterday morning a drunk was fined $10 and costs or twenty days in jail. A second drunk was sent to jail for twenty days without the option of a fine. A party charged with reckless driving was fined $10 and costs or ten days in jail.

PERSONALS - Mrs. David Kelley, City, received word of the safe arrival of her son Edward in Great Britain.

Lieut. Fred A. and Mrs. Large and infant son, David, arrived this week from Egmont Shore where they were vacationing at Mr. C.M. Cox's cottage, Brighton Shore.

Mr. Forbes Rhude, superintendent of the Canadian Press for Quebec, arrived here yesterday to visit his sister, Mrs. T.G. Ives and Mr. Ives. He is accompanied by his son Foster Rhude.

SAUCEPANS FOR BRITAIN - LONDON (CP) - Good news for British housewives comes from Board of Trade President, Hugh Dalton. He announced plans for increased saucepan production. They've been hard to get.

TO MEET AT BERLIN - LONDON (CP) - A pledge between British and Russian air-men to meet in Germany was revealed in an exchange of letters between Capt. Grigori Kozlov, ace pilot of the Russian Air Force, and Sqdn. Ldr. G. L. Chestre of the R.A.F. when the Russian aviator congratulated the R.A.F. on their raids over Germany.

WIFE - George, dear, would you mind helping me with a little bit of arithmetic? Husband - Not at all. Wife - Well, if we pay the cook all the wages she wants, do you think we'll have enough money left to buy anything for her to cook?

THE NARROW silhouette has taken its biggest step forward, and while some designers stress it more consistently than others, it is possible to say that about 90 per cent of the skirts are narrow. In evening dresses, the percentage is even higher, for the wide-skirted dress is really the exception.

Reports Deer Seen On Farm At Souris Line Rd.

Peter Gillis, farmer at Souris Island Province. The water trip Line Road in King's County yesterday reported he had seen a fully grown buck deer in a grain field on his farm. He said the animal was feeding just before dark and that at first glance he thought it was a goat which had strayed from pasture. Then the animal caught sight of him. It took one startled glance and bounded away, going over a fence without trouble. Mr. Gillis declared he could see the rack of antlers. There was no mistaking the animal. Deer are not known to exist in this province and until now there has been no authentic case of one having been seen within the memory of persons now living. At least there are no records. Last fall a resident in the district south of lower Montague reported that he believed to be a deer but the story was generally discontinued. Since then, however, game officials have reported that a fisherman returning to this province from Picton, N. S. came upon a deer swimming in Northumberland Strait. He got the animal in his boat and later released it at Governor's Island in Hillsboro Bay. The deer was a young one, game officials said. It did not remain long on the small island in the Bay and it was presumed it swam ashore to this Province. The water trip would be less than three miles. A couple of summers ago the body of a deer was washed ashore at Little Sands, on this province's south shore. At that time it was thought the animal was probably chased into the water by hunters or dogs and swam until it died. In addition to the deer seen in the Souris district reports have been heard that a mother bear and two cubs are wandering about in the woods there. Members of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police to whom the story has been told are inclined to regard the stories of the presence of the bears as authentic. They said they had no doubt about the presence of the deer.

Bears have been extinct here for many years so far as is known. There are no large tracts of forest in the province where animals such as bear or deer could live for long without being discovered. If they have appeared it is supposed they either swam here or came across the ice in the winter or early spring.

The possibility was raised, too, that the animals may have been taken here by some one who had one reason or another has kept his activities quiet.

ANOTHER BISHOP TAKES TO THE SKIES

A great moment in the life of Air Marshal W. A. (Billy) Bishop occurred when he pinned the wings of a fighting R.C.A.F. pilot on his son, Leading Aircraftman Arthur Bishop, Canada's greatest ace of the great war is shown in the photograph as he pinned the wings to L.A.C. Bishop's tunic. Billy Bishop is credited in official war records with destruction of 72 enemy aircraft, 25 of which he shot down within 10 days in 1918. Official R.C.A.F. Photo.

SAUCEPANS FOR BRITAIN - LONDON (CP) - Good news for British housewives comes from Board of Trade President, Hugh Dalton. He announced plans for increased saucepan production. They've been hard to get. TO MEET AT BERLIN - LONDON (CP) - A pledge between British and Russian air-men to meet in Germany was revealed in an exchange of letters between Capt. Grigori Kozlov, ace pilot of the Russian Air Force, and Sqdn. Ldr. G. L. Chestre of the R.A.F. when the Russian aviator congratulated the R.A.F. on their raids over Germany.

New Sunday Air Service

WITH CONNECTIONS FOR MONTREAL, ST. JOHN, AND HALIFAX. Beginning Sunday, August 9th there will be a regular trip each Sunday provided by the splendid services of The Maritime Central Airways leaving Charlottetown 12.45 P. M., Summerside 1.15 P. M. and arriving Moncton 2.00 P. M. in time to connect with The Canadian National Railways Scotian Train for Montreal. Arriving Montreal 8.55 A. M. Monday. Connections can be made also with Trans Canada Air Lines arriving Montreal same evening. Train connections also for Halifax and St. John. The return trip will leave Moncton at 4.15 P. M. arriving Summerside 4.50 P. M. and Charlottetown 5.20 P. M. Passengers leaving Montreal Saturday evening by Canadian National Railways or leaving Halifax or St. John Sunday morning can connect at Moncton with this plane trip to Prince Edward Island. By Trans Canada Air Lines passengers can leave Montreal 10.30 A. M. Sunday morning and arrive here 5.20 P. M. Sunday afternoon.

The necessity for this trip is due to increased travel to this Province. It will also provide men on leave the opportunity of an extra day home with their families. THE REGULAR WEEK DAY SERVICES ARE IN EFFECT AS USUAL. THE PRINCE EDWARD ISLAND TRAVEL BUREAU. B. Graham Rogers, Supervisor, Charlottetown. 8-5-41.

Cardigan Picnic

WEDNESDAY, AUG. 5th. Supper-Games. Amusements. Supper for race fans after the races.

Scrap Iron

We pay spot cash for scrap iron and metal. Also copper, brass, aluminum, batteries and radiators. If you have any of the above mentioned items please write, phone or call B. Benjamin, 108 Richmond St. Phone 869.

New Sunday Air Service To Moncton

Prince Edward Island is now to be linked by air by the Maritime Central Airways with the main land seven days a week. Heretofore there has been no regular weekday services which are now to be augmented by a regular Sunday trip beginning Sunday, August 9th, served by rail bus and air to the Province is increasing. The new service will also enable members of the armed forces home on leave to have an extra day with their families. Previously during the summer months the latest time that passengers could leave here in order to arrive in Montreal Monday morning was by the one o'clock train Saturday afternoon. Now passengers can leave here Sunday at 12.45 connections can also be made at Moncton Sunday afternoon with the trains for Halifax and St. John and also with the Trans Canada Air Lines for Montreal and Halifax. In addition to this new Sunday air service there is also a bus service from the Island via Borden which makes connections by bus for Moncton and St. John, and also the bus services to the Nova Scotia-Prince Edward Island Ferry service via Wood Island.

Some of the travel to Prince Edward Island now is of an important nature. The rail, bus, and air services are heavily patronized these days. The daily pullman service to and from Montreal by Canadian National Railways is filled to capacity almost every day. The announcement in regard to the new Sunday air service was made late last night by Mr. B. Graham Rogers, Supervisor of the Prince Edward Island Travel Bureau. See advertisement elsewhere in this issue for particulars re schedule.

BIRTHS - RICHARDSON - At the Prince Edward Island Hospital, August 4, 1942, to Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Richardson, a son. CARR - At the City Hospital August 4, 1942, to Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Carr, a son. SILVER - At New Glasgow, N. S. on July 26, 1942, to Mr. and Mrs. Bertram M. Silver, (nee Eileen Ryan), a son, Edward David. DOYLE - City Hospital on August 3, 1942, to Mr. and Mrs. Leo Doyle (nee Mary Cannon) a son, William Leo. DEATHS - GREEN - At North Cardigan on June 29, 1942, Richard Green aged 54 years. GILLESPIE - At North Milton on Aug. 3, 1942, Samuel B. Gillespie, in his 66th year. Funeral today Wednesday, a short service at his late residence at 2 o'clock then to Milton Church for service at 2.30. Interment in Milton Cemetery. WOOLEY - At the home of Elmer Pearson, Chelon, on Tuesday, August 4, 1942, Frederick W. Wooley in his 84th year. Funeral Thursday afternoon, a short service at the home at 2 o'clock then to Baptist Church at Bedeque, Interment in Baptist Cemetery, Bedeque. GARNHUM - At Mount Stewart on Tuesday, August 4, 1942, James Garnhum aged 12 years, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Garnhum. Funeral from the residence of his parents this (Wednesday) afternoon service starting at 2 o'clock. Interment in the People's Cemetery at Mount Stewart.

Card of Thanks

Mr. Frank Boyle and family, Meadow Bank, wish to thank their neighbors and friends for the many acts of kindness shown them during their recent sad bereavement. Also those who sent letters and cards of sympathy. 8-5-11.

N. D. MacLean

UNDERTAKER EMBALMER. Charlottetown and North Wiltshire. Phone 149.

JIMMY LYDON AS HENRY ALDRICH in 'HENRY AND DIZZY' with Mary Anderson, Charles Smith, John Litel, Olive Blakeney, Vaughan Glaser. Directed by HUGH BENNETT. Original Screen Play by Val Burton.

CAPITOL TO-DAY ONLY - SHOWS 2.30-7-8.45. Conny Bennett-Jeffrey Lynn 'LAW OF THE TOPICS'

EMPIRE - Starts TOMORROW THE 3 MESQUITEERS THE PHANTOM PLAINSMEN with Bob Steele, Tyler Davis, Rufe Collier. EXTRA-TUNE TIME - Musical Comedy. NOTTY NEWS - Cartoon and KING OF THE TEXAS RANGERS

Battle Star Fish as Oyster's Arch Enemy. "Mop them up" is a term heard more and more these days. Usually when one thinks of mopping up enemies one has in mind either the troublesome Hun or the wily Jap. But down on the Atlantic coast fishing experts are doing some "mopping up" on their own account. They're after enemies, too, but in this case it is the enemies of the oyster that are on the receiving end of the mopping up operations. Starfish rank as No. 1 pest on the oyster beds, and it is this fellow that is receiving the mopping. Canadian oyster production is becoming increasingly important under the impact of war conditions which have stopped purchases of these tasty shellfish from other countries and thus added attention has been focused on the natural enemies of the oyster family. To combat the nuisance "starfish removal" is carried out with "mopping" the most common procedure. Recent tests made by fisheries scientists to check the efficiency of this method of starfish control have brought most satisfactory results. Mops are made from cotton waste tied to a piece of wire, each mop being three or four feet long. A gang of mops - usually seven or eight - are attached to one side of a heavy iron triangle measuring five or six feet to a side, and the gear is towed over the infested area by a motor boat. The starfish become entangled in the mops and may be picked off by hand or killed with hot water. Two sets of mops are used by each boat, one being in operation on the oyster while the other is being cleared of starfish. The mops according to scientists of the federal Fisheries Research Board, are effective in picking up starfish one-half inch in diameter and larger, and it is these sizes which are of most importance as oyster enemies. Smaller starfish cause damage only to settled spat. As a test of the efficiency of the mopping method, 1,600 marked starfish were set free on an area of about one-twentieth of an acre and mopping was carried out to secure data as to recovery. In two and one-half hours of mopping 90 per cent of the starfish were recovered. In 12 hours 72 per cent of the total were recaptured. In a similar experiment an additional 3,000 marked starfish showed a recovery of 86 per cent in 28 hours of mopping. In addition to the starfish actually recaptured it is estimated a good number would be killed due to mechanical injury occasioned by towing the heavy mops. Oysters are taken in Canada on both coasts. On the Atlantic, Prince Edward Island, Nova Scotia and New Brunswick all produce oysters in considerable numbers. On the Pacific, British Columbia waters yield several species. Increased demand during recent months has

Comedy Of Marital Jealousy Expertly Acted By Star Cast

The green monster of jealousy was just so much apple sauce to the college professor of philosophy in "The Feminine Touch," the new comedy now playing at the Prince Edward Theatre. It should be excellent tidings to know that Rosalind Russell, Don Ameche, Kay Francis and Van Heflin, of the New York stage, offer one of the most amusing four-cornered love affairs yet to reach the screen. The idea is sound and original. Miss Russell, as the wife, is inclined to disagree with the theory of the young professor that jealousy is a contemptible and moribund emotion. He writes a book on the subject, which is bought by a New York publisher, portrayed by Van Heflin. Miss Francis is his beautiful and sophisticated aide-de-camp. Who decides that the professor, Don Ameche, is her type. The opportunity for retaliation afforded the professor's wife is the publisher himself, a playboy attracted by every pretty face he sees. When her far-from-suppressed jealousy is fired by the attentions paid her husband by the publisher's assistant, the situation is further complicated by the fact that Miss Francis, who actually is in love with the subject, which is bought by a New York publisher, portrayed by Van Heflin. Miss Francis is his beautiful and sophisticated aide-de-camp. Who decides that the professor, Don Ameche, is her type. The opportunity for retaliation afforded the professor's wife is the publisher himself, a playboy attracted by every pretty face he sees. When her far-from-suppressed jealousy is fired by the attentions paid her husband by the publisher's assistant, the situation is further complicated by the fact that Miss Francis, who actually is in love with the subject, which is bought by a New York publisher, portrayed by Van Heflin. Miss Francis is his beautiful and sophisticated aide-de-camp. Who decides that the professor, Don Ameche, is her type. The opportunity for retaliation afforded the professor's wife is the publisher himself, a playboy attracted by every pretty face he sees. When her far-from-suppressed jealousy is fired by the attentions paid her husband by the publisher's assistant, the situation is further complicated by the fact that Miss Francis, who actually is in love with the subject, which is bought by a New York publisher, portrayed by Van Heflin. Miss Francis is his beautiful and sophisticated aide-de-camp. Who decides that the professor, Don Ameche, is her type. The opportunity for retaliation afforded the professor's wife is the publisher himself, a playboy attracted by every pretty face he sees. When her far-from-suppressed jealousy is fired by the attentions paid her husband by the publisher's assistant, the situation is further complicated by the fact that Miss Francis, who actually is in love with the subject, which is bought by a New York publisher, portrayed by Van Heflin. Miss Francis is his beautiful and sophisticated aide-de-camp. Who decides that the professor, Don Ameche, is her type. The opportunity for retaliation afforded the professor's wife is the publisher himself, a playboy attracted by every pretty face he sees. When her far-from-suppressed jealousy is fired by the attentions paid her husband by the publisher's assistant, the situation is further complicated by the fact that Miss Francis, who actually is in love with the subject, which is bought by a New York publisher, portrayed by Van Heflin. Miss Francis is his beautiful and sophisticated aide-de-camp. Who decides that the professor, Don Ameche, is her type. The opportunity for retaliation afforded the professor's wife is the publisher himself, a playboy attracted by every pretty face he sees. When her far-from-suppressed jealousy is fired by the attentions paid her husband by the publisher's assistant, the situation is further complicated by the fact that Miss Francis, who actually is in love with the subject, which is bought by a New York publisher, portrayed by Van Heflin. Miss Francis is his beautiful and sophisticated aide-de-camp. Who decides that the professor, Don Ameche, is her type. The opportunity for retaliation afforded the professor's wife is the publisher himself, a playboy attracted by every pretty face he sees. When her far-from-suppressed jealousy is fired by the attentions paid her husband by the publisher's assistant, the situation is further complicated by the fact that Miss Francis, who actually is in love with the subject, which is bought by a New York publisher, portrayed by Van Heflin. Miss Francis is his beautiful and sophisticated aide-de-camp. Who decides that the professor, Don Ameche, is her type. The opportunity for retaliation afforded the professor's wife is the publisher himself, a playboy attracted by every pretty face he sees. When her far-from-suppressed jealousy is fired by the attentions paid her husband by the publisher's assistant, the situation is further complicated by the fact that Miss Francis, who actually is in love with the subject, which is bought by a New York publisher, portrayed by Van Heflin. Miss Francis is his beautiful and sophisticated aide-de-camp. Who decides that the professor, Don Ameche, is her type. The opportunity for retaliation afforded the professor's wife is the publisher himself, a playboy attracted by every pretty face he sees. When her far-from-suppressed jealousy is fired by the attentions paid her husband by the publisher's assistant, the situation is further complicated by the fact that Miss Francis, who actually is in love with the subject, which is bought by a New York publisher, portrayed by Van Heflin. Miss Francis is his beautiful and sophisticated aide-de-camp. Who decides that the professor, Don Ameche, is her type. The opportunity for retaliation afforded the professor's wife is the publisher himself, a playboy attracted by every pretty face he sees. When her far-from-suppressed jealousy is fired by the attentions paid her husband by the publisher's assistant, the situation is further complicated by the fact that Miss Francis, who actually is in love with the subject, which is bought by a New York publisher, portrayed by Van Heflin. Miss Francis is his beautiful and sophisticated aide-de-camp. Who decides that the professor, Don Ameche, is her type. The opportunity for retaliation afforded the professor's wife is the publisher himself, a playboy attracted by every pretty face he sees. When her far-from-suppressed jealousy is fired by the attentions paid her husband by the publisher's assistant, the situation is further complicated by the fact that Miss Francis, who actually is in love with the subject, which is bought by a New York publisher, portrayed by Van Heflin. Miss Francis is his beautiful and sophisticated aide-de-camp. Who decides that the professor, Don Ameche, is her type. The opportunity for retaliation afforded the professor's wife is the publisher himself, a playboy attracted by every pretty face he sees. When her far-from-suppressed jealousy is fired by the attentions paid her husband by the publisher's assistant, the situation is further complicated by the fact that Miss Francis, who actually is in love with the subject, which is bought by a New York publisher, portrayed by Van Heflin. Miss Francis is his beautiful and sophisticated aide-de-camp. Who decides that the professor, Don Ameche, is her type. The opportunity for retaliation afforded the professor's wife is the publisher himself, a playboy attracted by every pretty face he sees. When her far-from-suppressed jealousy is fired by the attentions paid her husband by the publisher's assistant, the situation is further complicated by the fact that Miss Francis, who actually is in love with the subject, which is bought by a New York publisher, portrayed by Van Heflin. Miss Francis is his beautiful and sophisticated aide-de-camp. Who decides that the professor, Don Ameche, is her type. The opportunity for retaliation afforded the professor's wife is the publisher himself, a playboy attracted by every pretty face he sees. When her far-from-suppressed jealousy is fired by the attentions paid her husband by the publisher's assistant, the situation is further complicated by the fact that Miss Francis, who actually is in love with the subject, which is bought by a New York publisher, portrayed by Van Heflin. Miss Francis is his beautiful and sophisticated aide-de-camp. Who decides that the professor, Don Ameche, is her type. The opportunity for retaliation afforded the professor's wife is the publisher himself, a playboy attracted by every pretty face he sees. When her far-from-suppressed jealousy is fired by the attentions paid her husband by the publisher's assistant, the situation is further complicated by the fact that Miss Francis, who actually is in love with the subject, which is bought by a New York publisher, portrayed by Van Heflin. Miss Francis is his beautiful and sophisticated aide-de-camp. Who decides that the professor, Don Ameche, is her type. The opportunity for retaliation afforded the professor's wife is the publisher himself, a playboy attracted by every pretty face he sees. When her far-from-suppressed jealousy is fired by the attentions paid her husband by the publisher's assistant, the situation is further complicated by the fact that Miss Francis, who actually is in love with the subject, which is bought by a New York publisher, portrayed by Van Heflin. Miss Francis is his beautiful and sophisticated aide-de-camp. Who decides that the professor, Don Ameche, is her type. The opportunity for retaliation afforded the professor's wife is the publisher himself, a playboy attracted by every pretty face he sees. When her far-from-suppressed jealousy is fired by the attentions paid her husband by the publisher's assistant, the situation is further complicated by the fact that Miss Francis, who actually is in love with the subject, which is bought by a New York publisher, portrayed by Van Heflin. Miss Francis is his beautiful and sophisticated aide-de-camp. Who decides that the professor, Don Ameche, is her type. The opportunity for retaliation afforded the professor's wife is the publisher himself, a playboy attracted by every pretty face he sees. When her far-from-suppressed jealousy is fired by the attentions paid her husband by the publisher's assistant, the situation is further complicated by the fact that Miss Francis, who actually is in love with the subject, which is bought by a New York publisher, portrayed by Van Heflin. Miss Francis is his beautiful and sophisticated aide-de-camp. Who decides that the professor, Don Ameche, is her type. The opportunity for retaliation afforded the professor's wife is the publisher himself, a playboy attracted by every pretty face he sees. When her far-from-suppressed jealousy is fired by the attentions paid her husband by the publisher's assistant, the situation is further complicated by the fact that Miss Francis, who actually is in love with the subject, which is bought by a New York publisher, portrayed by Van Heflin. Miss Francis is his beautiful and sophisticated aide-de-camp. Who decides that the professor, Don Ameche, is her type. The opportunity for retaliation afforded the professor's wife is the publisher himself, a playboy attracted by every pretty face he sees. When her far-from-suppressed jealousy is fired by the attentions paid her husband by the publisher's assistant, the situation is further complicated by the fact that Miss Francis, who actually is in love with the subject, which is bought by a New York publisher, portrayed by Van Heflin. Miss Francis is his beautiful and sophisticated aide-de-camp. Who decides that the professor, Don Ameche, is her type. The opportunity for retaliation afforded the professor's wife is the publisher himself, a playboy attracted by every pretty face he sees. When her far-from-suppressed jealousy is fired by the attentions paid her husband by the publisher's assistant, the situation is further complicated by the fact that Miss Francis, who actually is in love with the subject, which is bought by a New York publisher, portrayed by Van Heflin. Miss Francis is his beautiful and sophisticated aide-de-camp. Who decides that the professor, Don Ameche, is her type. The opportunity for retaliation afforded the professor's wife is the publisher himself, a playboy attracted by every pretty face he sees. When her far-from-suppressed jealousy is fired by the attentions paid her husband by the publisher's assistant, the situation is further complicated by the fact that Miss Francis, who actually is in love with the subject, which is bought by a New York publisher, portrayed by Van Heflin. Miss Francis is his beautiful and sophisticated aide-de-camp. Who decides that the professor, Don Ameche, is her type. The opportunity for retaliation afforded the professor's wife is the publisher himself, a playboy attracted by every pretty face he sees. When her far-from-suppressed jealousy is fired by the attentions paid her husband by the publisher's assistant, the situation is further complicated by the fact that Miss Francis, who actually is in love with the subject, which is bought by a New York publisher, portrayed by Van Heflin. Miss Francis is his beautiful and sophisticated aide-de-camp. Who decides that the professor, Don Ameche, is her type. The opportunity for retaliation afforded the professor's wife is the publisher himself, a playboy attracted by every pretty face he sees. When her far-from-suppressed jealousy is fired by the attentions paid her husband by the publisher's assistant, the situation is further complicated by the fact that Miss Francis, who actually is in love with the subject, which is bought by a New York publisher, portrayed by Van Heflin. Miss Francis is his beautiful and sophisticated aide-de-camp. Who decides that the professor, Don Ameche, is her type. The opportunity for retaliation afforded the professor's wife is the publisher himself, a playboy attracted by every pretty face he sees. When her far-from-suppressed jealousy is fired by the attentions paid her husband by the publisher's assistant, the situation is further complicated by the fact that Miss Francis, who actually is in love with the subject, which is bought by a New York publisher, portrayed by Van Heflin. Miss Francis is his beautiful and sophisticated aide-de-camp. Who decides that the professor, Don Ameche, is her type. The opportunity for retaliation afforded the professor's wife is the publisher himself, a playboy attracted by every pretty face he sees. When her far-from-suppressed jealousy is fired by the attentions paid her husband by the publisher's assistant, the situation is further complicated by the fact that Miss Francis, who actually is in love with the subject, which is bought by a New York publisher, portrayed by Van Heflin. Miss Francis is his beautiful and sophisticated aide-de-camp. Who decides that the professor, Don Ameche, is her type. The opportunity for retaliation afforded the professor's wife is the publisher himself, a playboy attracted by every pretty face he sees. When her far-from-suppressed jealousy is fired by the attentions paid her husband by the publisher's assistant, the situation is further complicated by the fact that Miss Francis, who actually is in love with the subject, which is bought by a New York publisher, portrayed by Van Heflin. Miss Francis is his beautiful and sophisticated aide-de-camp. Who decides that the professor, Don Ameche, is her type. The opportunity for retaliation afforded the professor's wife is the publisher himself, a playboy attracted by every pretty face he sees. When her far-from-suppressed jealousy is fired by the attentions paid her husband by the publisher's assistant, the situation is further complicated by the fact that Miss Francis, who actually is in love with the subject, which is bought by a New York publisher, portrayed by Van Heflin. Miss Francis is his beautiful and sophisticated aide-de-camp. Who decides that the professor, Don Ameche, is her type. The opportunity for retaliation afforded the professor's wife is the publisher himself, a playboy attracted by every pretty face he sees. When her far-from-suppressed jealousy is fired by the attentions paid her husband by the publisher's assistant, the situation is further complicated by the fact that Miss Francis, who actually is in love with the subject, which is bought by a New York publisher, portrayed by Van Heflin. Miss Francis is his beautiful and sophisticated aide-de-camp. Who decides that the professor, Don Ameche, is her type. The opportunity for retaliation afforded the professor's wife is the publisher himself, a playboy attracted by every pretty face he sees. When her far-from-suppressed jealousy is fired by the attentions paid her husband by the publisher's assistant, the situation is further complicated by the fact that Miss Francis, who actually is in love with the subject, which is bought by a New York publisher, portrayed by Van Heflin. Miss Francis is his beautiful and sophisticated aide-de-camp. Who decides that the professor, Don Ameche, is her type. The opportunity for retaliation afforded the professor's wife is the publisher himself, a playboy attracted by every pretty face he sees. When her far-from-suppressed jealousy is fired by the attentions paid her husband by the publisher's assistant, the situation is further complicated by the fact that Miss Francis, who actually is in love with the subject, which is bought by a New York publisher, portrayed by Van Heflin. Miss Francis is his beautiful and sophisticated aide-de-camp. Who decides that the professor, Don Ameche, is her type. The opportunity for retaliation afforded the professor's wife is the publisher himself, a playboy attracted by every pretty face he sees. When her far-from-suppressed jealousy is fired by the attentions paid her husband by the publisher's assistant, the situation is further complicated by the fact that Miss Francis, who actually is in love with the subject, which is bought by a New York publisher, portrayed by Van Heflin. Miss Francis is his beautiful and sophisticated aide-de-camp. Who decides that the professor, Don Ameche, is her type. The opportunity for retaliation afforded the professor's wife is the publisher himself, a playboy attracted by every pretty face he sees. When her far-from-suppressed jealousy is fired by the attentions paid her husband by the publisher's assistant, the situation is further complicated by the fact that Miss Francis, who actually is in love with the subject, which is bought by a New York publisher, portrayed by Van Heflin. Miss Francis is his beautiful and sophisticated aide-de-camp. Who decides that the professor, Don Ameche, is her type. The opportunity for retaliation afforded the professor's wife is the publisher himself, a playboy attracted by every pretty face he sees. When her far-from-suppressed jealousy is fired by the attentions paid her husband by the publisher's assistant, the situation is further complicated by the fact that Miss Francis, who actually is in love with the subject, which is bought by a New York publisher, portrayed by Van Heflin. Miss Francis is his beautiful and sophisticated aide-de-camp. Who decides that the professor, Don Ameche, is her type. The opportunity for retaliation afforded the professor's wife is the publisher himself, a playboy attracted by every pretty face he sees. When her far-from-suppressed jealousy is fired by the attentions paid her husband by the publisher's assistant, the situation is further complicated by the fact that Miss Francis, who actually is in love with the subject, which is bought by a New York publisher, portrayed by Van Heflin. Miss Francis is his beautiful and sophisticated aide-de-camp. Who decides that the professor, Don Ameche, is her type. The opportunity for retaliation afforded the professor's wife is the publisher himself, a playboy attracted by every pretty face he sees. When her far-from-suppressed jealousy is fired by the attentions paid her husband by the publisher's assistant, the situation is further complicated by the fact that Miss Francis, who actually is in love with the subject, which is bought by a New York publisher, portrayed by Van Heflin. Miss Francis is his beautiful and sophisticated aide-de-camp. Who decides that the professor, Don Ameche, is her type. The opportunity for retaliation afforded the professor's wife is the publisher himself, a playboy attracted by every pretty face he sees. When her far-from-suppressed jealousy is fired by the attentions paid her husband by the publisher's assistant, the situation is further complicated by the fact that Miss Francis, who actually is in love with the subject, which is bought by a New York publisher, portrayed by Van Heflin. Miss Francis is his beautiful and sophisticated aide-de-camp. Who decides that the professor, Don Ameche, is her type. The opportunity for retaliation afforded the professor's wife is the publisher himself, a playboy attracted by every pretty face he sees. When her far-from-suppressed jealousy is fired by the attentions paid her husband by the publisher's assistant, the situation is further complicated by the fact that Miss Francis, who actually is in love with the subject, which is bought by a New York publisher, portrayed by Van Heflin. Miss Francis is his beautiful and sophisticated aide-de-camp. Who decides that the professor, Don Ameche, is her type. The opportunity for retaliation afforded the professor's wife is the publisher himself, a playboy attracted by every pretty face he sees. When her far-from-suppressed jealousy is fired by the attentions paid her husband by the publisher's assistant, the situation is further complicated by the fact that Miss Francis, who actually is in love with the subject, which is bought by a New York publisher, portrayed by Van Heflin. Miss Francis is his beautiful and sophisticated aide-de-camp. Who decides that the professor, Don Ameche, is her type. The opportunity for retaliation afforded the professor's wife is the publisher himself, a playboy attracted by every pretty face he sees. When her far-from-suppressed jealousy is fired by the attentions paid her husband by the publisher's assistant, the situation is further complicated by the fact that Miss Francis, who actually is in love with the subject, which is bought by a New York publisher, portrayed by Van Heflin. Miss Francis is his beautiful and sophisticated aide-de-camp. Who decides that the professor, Don Ameche, is her type. The opportunity for retaliation afforded the professor's wife is the publisher himself, a playboy attracted by every pretty face he sees. When her far-from-suppressed jealousy is fired by the attentions paid her husband by the publisher's assistant, the situation is further complicated by the fact that Miss Francis, who actually is in love with the subject, which is bought by a New York publisher, portrayed by Van Heflin. Miss Francis is his beautiful and sophisticated aide-de-camp. Who decides that the professor, Don Ameche, is her type. The opportunity for retaliation afforded the professor's wife is the publisher himself, a playboy attracted by every pretty face he sees. When her far-from-suppressed jealousy is fired by the attentions paid her husband by the publisher's assistant, the situation is further complicated by the fact that Miss Francis, who actually is in love with the subject, which is bought by a New York publisher, portrayed by Van Heflin. Miss Francis is his beautiful and sophisticated aide-de-camp. Who decides that the professor, Don Ameche, is her type. The opportunity for retaliation afforded the professor's wife is the publisher himself, a playboy attracted by every pretty face he sees. When her far-from-suppressed jealousy is fired by the attentions paid her husband by the publisher's assistant, the situation is further complicated by the fact that Miss Francis, who actually is in love with the subject, which is bought by a New York publisher, portrayed by Van Heflin. Miss Francis is his beautiful and sophisticated aide-de-camp. Who decides that the professor, Don Ameche, is her type. The opportunity for retaliation afforded the professor's wife is the publisher himself, a playboy attracted by every pretty face he sees. When her far-from-suppressed jealousy is fired by the attentions paid her husband by the publisher's assistant, the situation is further complicated by the fact that Miss Francis, who actually is in love with the subject, which is bought by a New York publisher, portrayed by Van Heflin. Miss Francis is his beautiful and sophisticated aide-de-camp. Who decides that the professor, Don Ameche, is her type. The opportunity for retaliation afforded the professor's wife is the publisher himself, a playboy attracted