Leasehold Home Ownership Seen Holding Advantages

WINNIPEG (CP)—Leasehold home ownership, a system where the buyer of a new home purchases the house but only rents the land, has met with "exceptionally good" response in its first major experiment in Canada.

Metropolitan Homes of Winnipeg introduced the system here last year and recently announced the sale of its 100th home.

Myles Robinson, president of Metropolitan, says he expects leasehold to spread to other areas of Canada once the public and home builders fully understand its advantages.

Leasehold now is used extensively in England, Hawaii, certain areas of the United States and in Canadian commercil developments. The Winnipeg experiment is the first attempted for housing on a large scale in Canada.

Mr. Robinson said leasehold permits an exceptionally low down payment without involving the buyer in a high-rate second mortgage and its attached bonuses.

A buyer could obtain an $18,000 home for $700 down compared with $3,000 down in a conventional sale. The mortgage is less, permitting a lower down payment, because no land costs are involved, he said.

The home owner is protected against fluctuations in land values. If the value of the land goes up, he may buy it at its original cost. If land values drop, he need not invest in it.

With the lower equity involved families being transferred to another city find it easier to sell a home, Mr. Robinson said.

Mr. Robinson said under leasehold, which has the approval of Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation, the buyer of a home takes out a National Housing Act mortgage on the home and rents the land at an annual rate of six per cent of the land's initial market value. The rate remains constant during the 50-year term of the lease. The owner may buy the land at any time during the life of the lease at a value determined when the house is first sold.

The Winnipeg experiment has encountered on snag. A recent ruling by the provincial government said leasehold owners in the Greater Winnipeg city of Transcona could note vote on a school money bylaw because the Municipal Act places them in the same class as apartment dwellers—who may vote in municipal elections but not as ratepayers—despite the fact they pay full municipal taxes.

Mr. Robinson said leasehold owners in Britain and other countries have full voting rights and an application will be made to amend the Municipal Act to obtain the same recognition in Manitoba.

Tension Seen Building Up In Quebec

REGINA (CP)—Mr. and Mrs. Hans Reymer of Montreal say they are leaving Quebec after 10 years because of English-French tensions in the province and fears about the business future of English-speaking residents.

"The tension bothered us more than anything," Mr. Reymer said in an interview during a brief stopover en route to Vancouver. He said other English - speaking families in Quebec also were quietly moving out of the province.

"I definitely feel it's going to get more and more uncomfortable for a person speaking English," Mrs. Reymer said.

Her Norwegian-born husband said: "One mail-box bombing may seem like a small incident. But these things have created a real fear. Then there was the length of time it took to find the FLQ. It was the same in Norway during the war, when Norwegians hid members of the Norwegian underground. I think it means they have support of the people."

Mr. Reymer said: "French-Canadians want to run Quebec like Canada is running Canada.

... In Quebec, I'm called English. Everyone, even a Chinese, is called English. The French claim they are the only Canadians."

Until recently, Mr. Reymer was a cameraman with a French television network. He planned to set up his own handcrafted jewelry business but felt such a business run by an English-speaking person might be boycotted by French-Canadian.

Gov't Considers Grant For Games

OTTAWA (CP)—The government is considering a federal grant to cover part of the cost of holding the first interprovincial athletic games in Quebec in 1966, the Commons has been told.

John C. Munro, parliamentary secretary to Health Minister Judy LaMarsh, said the government has asked the promoters for an estimate of the capital costs involved.

He said in reply to a question by Guy Marcoux (SC—Quebec-Montmorency) the government has not made any representations to the promoters suggesting the games be postponed to 1967, the centennial year.

Atlantic Trust To Open Today

HALIFAX (CP) — Atlantic Trust Co., said to be the first Nova Scotia-owned trust company to enter the field in 30 years, opened its doors for business here Tuesday.

President is Harvey R. Doane, prominent Halifax chartered accountant. Clinton B. Harvey of Dartmouth, N.S., former general counsel with the Eastern Trust Company, is secretary and managing director.

Mr. Doane said the directors subscribed $250,000 to start the business. He also reported that an issue of 75,000 shares is selling well.

Atlantic Trust will offer all trust company services, Mr. Doane said, and is particularly interested in savings and chequing accounts. Guaranteed investment certificates for fixed-term deposits would also be available.

U.S. Tightens Fishing Laws

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House of representatives has passed a bill that would prohibit foreign fishing vessels in the territorial waters of the United States.

It would provide a fine of $10,000 or a year's imprisonment or both for violators, and also authorize seizure and forfeiture of any vessel and its catch found to be violating the law.

The bill is in response to many reported violations of the U.S. three-mile limit by foreign fishing boats, off Alaska, the Pacific coast, and in the Gulf of Mexico.

Existing law provides no penalties or seizure and was deemed ineffective by the house merchant marine and fisheries committee.

The bill, previously passed by the Senate, was amended by the House committee and now returns to the Senate for further action.

Clergymen Privileged With Police

TORONTO (CP) — Clergymen are a "privileged group" with traffic police, Rev. Harold Oxley, 36, a Roman Catholic priest with the Scarborough Foreign Mission Society, said here.

He told a panel discussion at the annual conference of the Canadian Highway Safety Council he has been stopped on four occasions for traffic violations and then let go with a warning "because I am a member of the clergy."

Father Oxley said this practice is widespread in North America and police who let clergymen get away with traffic violations are not showing due respect for the law.

The bidding:

East	South	West	North
1♠	2♥	Pass	4♥
4♠	5♥

East: 1 spade; 4 spades; South: 2 hearts; 5 hearts; West: Pass; North: 4 hearts.

Opening lead — seven of spades.

Let's suppose that the outcome of a hand depends upon the success of a particular finesse. If there are no clues from the bidding or the play to go on, and the declarer attempts the finesse, he will ordinarily have only a 50 per cent chance of making the contract.

But in many such hands the declarer can increase his chances by adopting a different method of play that avoids the finesse. For example, he may be able to establish a side suit, or else he may be able to work out an endplay that raises his chances of making the contract to more than 50 per cent and possibly to as high as 100 per cent.

The same general theory applies in cases where a favorable suit break is involved. Take this hand, for example. Let's say East wins the spade lead with the queen and continues with the ace. If South ruffs and draws two rounds of trumps, and then plays the ace and another club, hoping for a 2-2 division, he goes down.

But this would be the wrong way to play the hand. What he should do is ruff the spade, cross to the eight of hearts, ruff a diamond, cross to the king of hearts, cash the ace of diamonds, and ruff the last diamond.

With all the spades and diamonds eliminated from dummy, South leads a low club and plays the nine when West follows low. It turns out that East is forced to win the trick with the jack, and, having only spades and diamonds left, is compelled to return one or the other. South ruffs in his hand, discarding a club from dummy, and thus makes the contract.

This method of play guarantees the contract not only if the clubs are divided 2-2, but also if they are divided 3-1 with the singleton being an honor. Compared to relying solely on a 2-2 break, the chances of making the contract are approximately doubled.
