Summerside Golf Club Had Successful Year

Various Reports At Annual Meeting Reveal Progress Made By Club.

The Summerside Golf Club held their annual meeting this year and the various reports showed that the club had made great progress and had become a great asset to the town.

Mr. MacDonald closed his address with an appeal that golf is one of the finest recreations there are. It promotes physical health and moral force; gives opportunities for courtesy, kindness and generosity to an opponent. Golf is a science, the study of a lifetime, in which you may exhaust yourself but never your subject.

Mr. MacDonald is pleased to state that the club property has steadily improved and enthusiasm is growing and membership has increased. This is due to the tremendous effort of the membership committee and their report shows an increase of thirty eight members.

The Green Committee have also done their part and it is safe to say that if the effort put up this year continues the Summerside Course will be within the next five years one of the best in the Maritime Provinces.

The Greens Committee have been active in sowing seed on the green and improving the fairway and getting ready to extend greens No. 5 and No. 6. By extending No. 5 and building new green on No. 6 length has been added to both greens, which is much appreciated by the members. The draining system of the whole course has been vastly improved. New equipment has been purchased to keep the course in perfect condition. A tractor has been purchased also new rollers and mowers. As the financial statement will show the Club debt has been considerably reduced this year and credit must be given to the ladies, who have assisted very materially in this matter.

Much credit is due to Mr. H. T. Holman as secretary of the Club as a great deal of its success has been due to his efficiency and interest.

Sixteen late members were received last year and it will be up to the new membership committee to see that they become full time members. Several suggestions were made by the president to be considered by the new executive.

Ringer scores should count only when made in competition play; monthly more organized play especially on Tea Days; husband and wife tournaons or family foursomes; team play—teams representing firms, offices, etc.; one tea day a month when the public generally would be invited; members who wish to donate prizes would assist by making their desire known early in the season.

Death Of Wm. R. Waite

The death occurred on Thursday morning at his home in Sherbrooke of Mr. William R. Waite after a lingering illness of over two years.

Mr. Waite was in his first year and was a very highly respected resident of the district. He resided on the old Waite homestead, where he was born and his home life on neighboring farms.

He was married twice. His first wife who died some fourteen years ago was Miss Lila Linkletter. His second wife, who survives him, was Miss Edith Milligan, of Sherbrooke. Besides his widow, his five sons are left to mourn, namely: Frank, Walter, Ray and Alfred, all residing in Sherbrooke; Harry on the homestead. Also one brother, James T. Waite, of Traveller's Rest and two sisters, Mrs. Sherman of Boston and Mrs. Benjamin Muttart of Edmonton, and to whom sympathy is extended - S.

PROFESSIONAL MODELS ARE PLANNING TO MARCH ON WASHINGTON

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15 - Spies stationed at strategic corners of Times Square report that the embattled New York models, who are bitter about society girls competing with them, will be on the march to Washington this week to have a good cry on Uncle Sam's shoulder.

Miss Gertrude L. Mayer, leader in the fight to drive the Junior League's out of the dress shops and back to the bridge tables, announces she is tired of fooling around with the local NRA officials in New York, and that on Wednesday she will come right to headquarters.

The NRA was so gratified by this impending visit that it issued a formal order of sending until Dec. 1 its study of the costs under the negligence code.

Washington probably the most thoroughly marched upon city in the world since Jericho, now has been marched upon by models.

It has been marched upon by hunger marchers, bonus marchers, Communist, chorus girls, herry pie queens, cheese queens, midlets, Socialists, boy orators and the Louisiana State football team. How to receive model marchers is what pondered. Once they get by the baffling official circles, Marvin H. McIntyre, assistant secretary to President Roosevelt, has agreed to inform the President that he is being marched upon. The odds are, however, that the models will be switched off the main line and sent to the NRA.

Miss Mayer says what she wants is a code for models—something she can wave under the tilted noses of the society girls and tell them to "scram" out of the modelling business or she will report them to the President. If a code is all she wants, she might as well stay in New York and get by her correspondence. Once she gets down here the NRA probably will give her two codes and some old blotters that General Johnson left when he moved out.

Miss Mayer might profit from the experience of the cloth manufacturer who walked in and timidly asked for a code. Before he could get out the NRA gave him three—textile code, garment code and woolen goods code. The supply of codes far exceeds the demand these days.

ENJOYABLE CONCERT AT HIGH SCHOOL

At the High School auditorium last night the Mount Allison artists under the direction of Professor H. S. Hain, gave the highly appreciated audience enthralled with their beautiful excerpts from Gilbert and Sullivan's lively light operas.

The vocalists were Misses Pauline Winters, Margaret Coffin and Professor H. S. Hain and A. W. Trueman, assisted at the piano by Miss Madelyn Dexter. Their delightful work will long be remembered by the music lovers of Summerside.

The one act skit "A Midnight Phantasy" was a cleverly acted presentation in which the dialogue was carried on by two ladies, one old fashioned, the other modern, who descended from their paintings at the haunting hour of midnight. The precision of speech of one, the slang of the other and the misunderstanding resulting from both were highly amusing to the attentive audience.

W. R. T. Flemington head master of Mt. Allison University gave a short and interesting address on the work and improvement being done on the campus. A hilarious reading entitled "Confessions," given by Miss Francis Coffin, was received with hearty laughter and applause by her highly delighted listeners. A sale of candy was held during the intermission.

RANCHERS DANCE AS BABIES WAIT

(Canadian Press)

ADELAIDE, South Australia, Nov. 15—"If the Duke of Gloucester goes uncourtesy it would amuse him to attend a rancher's dance," says a woman writer.

"The mothers and fathers, who come from long distances, have to bring their babies as they naturally cannot leave them unattended in their bush homes. The babies usually are parked in a part of the hall separated from the dance and as all babies will, howl lustily at intervals. A wonderful fact is that each mother recognizes her own baby's wail and breaks off in the middle of her dance to go and comfort him. The ranchers all do a 'turn' during the evening and the success of one entertainment was a rancher who recited a poem which cost nothing of his value despite the fact he had absentmindedly come without his 'top-sit'."

MEMORY AS GOOD AS POLICE NOTES

(By The Canadian Press)

LONDON, Nov. 4—"The extraordinary memory of a woman private detective was commented on at the Marlborough Police Court, Mrs. Violet Molock, detective, said for 14 years she never made a note of what she or a prisoner or anyone else had said.

As a test, she was asked to repeat long statements which she alleged that she and four others had made a week before. It was found that she repeated written notes word for word.

WHILE HUSBANDS AT HOME

NEW YORK, Nov. 15—Wives are taking the play away from their husbands, Henry Modell, New York sportsman, has found after some research.

They are going to gymnasiums and developing their muscles, he says, while the husbands who used to do just that are sitting home with a book.

Keen Competition In Borden Fox Show Opened Yesterday

Borden Fox Show got away to a real start with some 200 entries from the district. All classes were well filled and the competition was very keen, leaving the judges a very arduous task.

The Show was officially opened by His Worship Mayor Leard of Borden who in appropriate words expressed his appreciation at being asked to open such a show and congratulated the show committee on their foresight in erecting such a magnificent building for show purposes, which compares most favorably with many in the Maritimes.

The classifying committee of Messrs. Cliff Rogers and Mr. Cass finished their work and the first class judged got away at 2 p. m. Sharp, Judges Stephen Taylor of Shemogue, New Brunswick, and E. H. Monkley of Summerside found foxes all to be of high class and the close competition in all instances was well received by exhibitors and spectators.

The show continues tomorrow and promises to be larger and better than ever. A complete list of prize winners will appear later.

WOMEN OF U. S. MUST MAKE THEMSELVES NECESSARY IN POLITICS

JERSEY CITY, N. J., Nov. 15 - American women, Mrs. Mary T. Norton says will win political recognition just as fast as they make themselves necessary in politics.

She speaks with authority, for she is Democratic State chairman, the only woman ever to hold such an office in New Jersey, she was the first feminine Democrat to be elected to the United States Congress, having served continuously since 1928 and she is the only woman to be chairman of a House of Representatives committee.

Mrs. Norton, practicing what she preaches, has earned her recognition. She is a forceful public speaker and an executive. As such, she was head of the Women's Speakers' Bureau for the Democratic National Committee during the 1928 presidential campaign.

FINDING 1,000 SHARES IN BOOK AT AUCTION BRIGHTEN'S BUSINESS

CALGARY, Nov. 15 - It was perhaps the dullest ending to a sale of household effects the auctioneer had ever experienced. The unusual collection of novels, dictionaries and reference books was going very slowly. Suddenly there was a commotion in the corner and bidding became brisk and reckless. A woman customer had found 1,000 shares of oil stock in one of the books.

WHIFF COCKTAILS COME INTO FAVOR

(By The Canadian Press)

CHICAGO, Nov. 14 - A cocktail of perfumes is a new way to express feminine individuality.

Some women have their own mixed cocktail to their individual recipe at perfume cocktail bars installed by several stores to meet the new fact: others leave it to the "barmaids" to provide them with something tricky.

The cocktails are made with a dash of this, a few drops of that, just a whiff from the bottle and some more from another—in fact, like any other cocktail, success lies in making the fundamental components blend.

OLD FASHIONED GARDENS

In memory we raise the latch of an old garden gate

That for many long years has hung in its place

And walk by the hedge of hawthorn and ash.

We view the hollyhocks blooming in state.

The turf bordered flower beds, with roses rare,

Look down on the evergreen and garden musk here

The southern wood, marigolds, poppies, balsams,

Tiger lilies, great shadow, bluebells and columbine fair.

The grand old rockery that stood in its place,

Graced with portulaca, mignonette and ice plants so fine

Panaset, daisies, violets and sweet-for-get-me-nots

Here the wandering Jew and ivy geranium interlace.

In the twilight we wander, should grandmother return,

To this long forsaken garden to gather her pinks

And bouquets of bride's buttons, Maiden hair fern and bachelor buttons to place in her urn.

We all return to our loved gardens again

When the beautiful old fashioned flowers are a bloom.

Time cannot erase this loved vision so clear,

When we walk down the trail of memory's lane.

WOMAN CLAIMS N. Y. HOSPITAL HAS GIVEN HER WRONG BABY

NEW YORK, Nov. 15 - Mrs. Genaro Piscano today appealed to Mayor Fiore H. LaGuardia, the police department, the fire department, or any one else who would make a good Solomon.

On October 31, she said, she gave birth to a boy in a Manhattan hospital. The hospital she said, has given her a girl which she doesn't want.

Soon after the ordeal, she said the doctor told her:

"Congratulations, Mrs. Piscano. That's a fine boy. It was no boy. The next day a nurse brought the baby to her bed and Mrs. Piscano said she remembered her saying:—

"That's a beautiful baby boy you have, Mrs. Piscano."

Mrs. Piscano took her baby, noticing a head necklace around its neck tagged with the family name and the initial M (male). She unwrapped the infant to admire it, then screamed. It was no boy.

Yesterday, after hours and hours of debate with hospital authorities, Mrs. Piscano and her husband, a worker on relief rolls, angrily left for home. Half an hour later a hospital nurse came panting up the stairs of their tenement with the baby girl, thrust her into Mrs. Piscano's arms and fled.

The hospital said that regardless of Mrs. Piscano's memory of what the doctor and nurse said, she had her own baby, a girl. A careless nurse had put an "M" tag instead of an "F" tag around its neck, but that meant nothing, they said.

Mrs. Piscano has five other children—all blue-eyed blondes like their father. Mrs. Piscano is brunette. The baby still is too young for family characteristics to be discerned.

GRENADE THE SPICE ISLE OF THE WESTERN WORLD

The great change which has come over the world since ancient days in the matter of what was considered wealth is probably nowhere better shown than in the matter of spices. In olden days spices were synonymous with wealth and those countries which had them were usually considered rich.

Spices do not now occupy the same economic position relatively as they did in those far off days, modern methods of preserving foods having done away with one of the chief uses of spices which was to disguise the taste and make food which would otherwise be rather obnoxious more palatable.

Spices, however, still have their use and are produced on a fairly large scale on the island of Grenada, in the eastern group of the British West Indies, and many of the spices reaching Canada come from this island in vessels of the Canadian National Steamships.

Grenada is a good customer of the island of Grenada and in turn Grenada ranks second in the supply of goods to that island, the United Kingdom occupying first place.

Among the imports which Grenada takes from Canada are cheese, dried fish, flour, pickled and smoked meats, refined sugar, tobacco, lumber, boots and shoes, motor cars and parts, cotton piece goods, cotton manufactures, electrical goods, medicines, iron and steel goods.

FIJI ISLANDERS RIDE IN CANADIAN AUTOS

Canadian motor cars have made a name for themselves in the foreign field and in the case of the Fiji Islands, two well known Canadian makes are the most in demand. The construction of additional roads along with improvement of existing roads and bridges has created a greater demand for motor cars, states the Industrial Department of the Canadian National Railways. Along with the export of motor cars is a correlated trade in parts. Canadian motor trucks are also represented in the Fiji Islands, one Canadian make receiving favorable comment.
