BEWILDERING ARRAY OF LUXURY FABRICS

PARIS, Aug. 11.—The dizziest array of hybrid luxury fabrics Paris ever displayed today of the fortnight of dressmakers' winter exhibits now drawing to a close.

Designers no longer are content to cling to standbys, but sponsor a bewildering potpourri, mingling two or three materials into one fabric. There were changeable lame velvets, quilted lane taffetas, transparent silks, pailletted laces and quilts, elasticated crinkled velvets in vivid and subdued colors for evening wear.

Other items included gunmetal gold and silver lames, woven on a base of black; white, pale green, pink, purple and vivid red day fabrics, stressing rubberized materials and bumpy, crinkled wools, cloque crepes, quilted taffetas and satins with numerous lame weaves and lame ribbon trims.

Evening gowns of softly blended fabrics are designed for the season's favorite slender silhouette, sometimes with length tunics.

Skirts generally fall in narrow but easy fitting lines to the floor, but are no longer cut in under the hips. Often they are slit and sometimes trained.

Lights Attract Great Deal Of Attention

The show window of the Maritime Electric Company attracted a tremendous lot of attention last evening from the passers-by. Turning their eyes towards it they saw the cause which was two of the reflectors with 1500 candle power lights installed which will be used as part of the new lighting equipment for the Vaudeville Stage and Horse Arena in front of the Grand Stand at Exhibition Grounds. Stand will look down into this brilliantly lighted amphitheater and not only for the equipment but for the over size copper wire and all the other necessities to carry such a tremendous load of electricity. The management believe, however, that with the show they have put on they must give it the proper setting. The lights display will be a contrast! Other years less than 1000 candle power was used. Of course it cost a lot of money, is up town should see it. L-8400
