PREPARATORY SERVICE for Sacrament of the Lord's Supper at Stanley United Church Saturday, Nov. 19, 7.30 p. m.

THE IDEAL CHRISTMAS GIFT to friends at home and abroad is Mr. Benjamin Bremner's "An Island Scrap Book," to be had at Carter's, Maritime Stationers', or the author's, 23 Fitzroy St., Charlottetown. 6480-11-14-1f

WHEATLEY RIVER SERVICE—Colonel MacLeod, Hunter River, was the chairman and the third speaker at the Memorial Service, Wheatley River. He stressed the necessity of taking an intelligent view of the world situation, that the war has not brought us the Utopia that was talked about, and as true patriots of our country we cannot expect Britain to disarm when all other nations remain armed. We are to be rational and sane in our outlook, keeping at the same time our ideals and strive for peace.

Scalloped Tomatoes
 Put sliced fresh or canned tomatoes in baking dish (using pulp from previous day's meal.) To them add 1 finely minced onion, 1 teaspoon salt and cover with 1 cup bread crumbs which have been mixed with 3 tablespoons melted butter. Heat through in oven until crumbs are golden.

Fresh Fruit Salad
 This consists of cubed barlett pears, cubed oranges, juice 1-2 Tiffin, 1 tablespoon honey and maraschino cherries to garnish.

Eat Celery For Health

It is doubtful if any one of the common vegetables can compare with celery as an aid to general health. Most physicians agree that as a blood purifier and for ridding the body of toxic substances, this vegetable is in a class by itself. Celery is also a valuable source of vitamins, being one of the best for vitamin B. Canadian celery so plentiful, this delightful vegetable should have an important place in the diet of every household. It provides an excellent appetizer and side dish and because of its mineral content is ideal for purifying the blood and lending general tone to the whole system.

Our celery has all the vitamins and medical properties mentioned above, and for the small sum of $2.00 we will send by express or freight to any booking station a case (half barrel size) with roots on for keeping. If your station is not a pay station the express or freight charges must be included in our remittance. Washed celery for present use per case $2.50.

A plan for keeping celery enclosed with each case.

FIRST BOTTLE BANISHES LIFE-LONG BRONCHITIS

There is renewed hope and a positive assurance of relief for every sufferer from bronchitis in the experience of Miss S. A. St. Catharines. She writes—"I have had bronchitis ever since I was a baby. Every winter I would catch cold and have bronchitis. I tried every kind of cough cure and none did me any good until I got a bottle of BUCKLEY'S MIXTURE. It helped me at once. This Fall I again caught cold. I took only three doses and my cold was gone."

BUCKLEY'S is a triple strength mixture. Why experiment with ineffective syrups or inhalants? Get a bottle of this tried and proven remedy from your druggist. "It acts like a flash—a single slip proves it."

IN MEMORIAM

MARTIN JOSEPH FOGARTY

The Angel of Death cast a deep gloom of sadness over the home of Martin J. Fogarty, Dover, New Hampshire, when it removed the husband and father on November sixth. Though ailing for nearly two years the end came quickly and the blow, though anticipated was bitter when it fell.

Marty, as he was familiarly called by all who knew him was born in 1887 on Aiton Road. At an early age he left his home to earn his way. Dover, New Hampshire, was the place he chose for his field of labor. There he settled, married and set up a home. He became a naturalized citizen of the United States and won the respect and esteem of all he came in contact with, to say nothing of the many friends he left on Prince Edward Island. He was a cheerful and home loving man. His wife and family were his first consideration. His cheerfulness was amply confirmed by the way in which he bore his illness. Though a great sufferer from asthma and kidney trouble he was never heard to complain. The end came on the above mentioned date and fortified by the last rites of the Roman Catholic Church he went forth to meet his Maker.

He leaves to mourn his wife, (nee Mary Lund) and five small children, namely: Martha, Mary, Martin, Bernadette and Urban, besides his mother and seven brothers, namely: John E. Anselm, William and Leonard all of Dover, New Hampshire; Patricia of Rumbold, Me.; Benedict of British Columbia and Daniel of Nova Scotia, and four sisters, Mrs. Francis Stewart, Aiton Road, Mrs. Peter MacDowd, Tracadie Cross, Mrs. Clifford Judson and Jessie, Hartford, Conn.

The remains were sent to old home parish for burial, accompanied by his brother, John E. Fogarty. They arrived in Charlottetown on November ninth and on the following day came by train to Mt. Stewart, thence to the home of his brother-in-law, Leo Lund.

The funeral took place on Friday morning to St. Andrew's Church where a Requiem High Mass was celebrated by the pastor Rev. A. P. McEllan and all that remained of a kind and loving husband and father was laid to rest in the adjoining cemetery near his father who predeceased him some seventeen years ago. The pallbearers were: James Evans, John R. Lund, Francis Stewart, Vincent Lund, Thomas Evans and Allen Lund. May his soul rest in peace. (Patriot Please Copy)

PERSONALS

Miss Gertrude Pethick is visiting her aunt, Mrs. Pethick, 299 Euston Street.

Mrs. Reuben E. Cadigan left this morning for her home in Jamaica Plain, Mass., after visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Driscoll, Johnston's River.

Persistent Asthma. A most distressing characteristic of this debilitating disease, is the persistence with which recurring attacks come to sap away strength and leave the sufferer in a state of almost continual exhaustion. No wiser precaution can be taken than that of keeping at hand a supply of Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Asthma Remedy, famous as the most potent remedy for eradicating the disease from the tender air passages.

Bibbs: "I believe in early rising, don't you?" Gibbs: "Well, there's no abstract excellence in early rising, it all depends on what you do after you rise. It would be better for the world if some people never got up!"

"I hear you are going to marry that old Mr. Gayboy." "Yes, I've decided to accept him." "You're making a mistake, my dear. He'll lead a double life." "Well, if I don't marry him I'll lead a single life, and that is worse."

Free Entertainment committee. An alphabetical contest, put on by Miss Helen Doull was educative as well as entertaining. Mrs. Hec-mac-Quinn was the happy winner of the prize. The Institute News were distributed to the members. It was moved, seconded and carried that a hearty vote of thanks be extended to the retiring officers. Dainty refreshments were served by the hostess and the meeting adjourned by singing the National Anthem. The December meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. W. H. MacEwen.

The annual meeting of the New Dominion Women's Institute met at the home of Mrs. William Taylor on Nov. 3rd. The president occupied the chair. Meeting opened by singing, its a Good Time to Get Acquainted. In keeping with Remembrance Day, roll call was answered by a patriotic verse. All members were present. Minutes of last regular and annual meetings were read also the financial statement and on motion were adopted. An address by the retiring president Mrs. A. K. MacPhee although short was one of inspiration to the members. A small bill was presented and paid.

The next order of business being the election of officers for the ensuing year: President, Mrs. Arthur Macdonald; vice president, Mrs. Hector Currie; secretary, Miss Elizabeth MacEwen; directors, Mrs. Hector MacEwen, Mrs. E. Premier Bennett's Masterly Address In Treaty Debate
 Closing Speech Of Prime Minister On Nov. 3 In Reply To Opposition Criticism Of Anglo-Canadian Agreement. Liberal Leader's Insincerity Scathingly Exposed.

Following is the full text of the speech of Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett, Prime Minister, which closed the debate in the House of Commons on the Anglo-Canadian agreement negotiated at the Imperial Conference:

Let us come to the province of Alberta. The hon. member for Macleod (Mr. Coote), the hon. member for West Edmonton (Mr. Stewart), and the hon. member for Medicine Hat (Mr. Gershaw) go back and tell their constituents that they do not want to export flour from the three great mills at Medicine Hat to the United Kingdom under a preference that will give them an advantage of ten cents on the dollar, no matter what may be the value. Let them tell that to their constituents. Let them stand in their places tonight and vote against this agreement, and in so doing tell their constituents that they no longer want a two shilling preference on wheat; that they no longer want an advantage in the markets of England for pork products and all the other articles I have mentioned. They want no advantage with respect to those commodities which may build up a great packing industry. What they want is to repudiate every concession that has been obtained, and to vote against every preference that has been given.

MR. VALLANOE: South Huron gave your answer.

MR. SPEAKER: If the hon. member for South Battleford (Mr. Vallanoe) cannot conduct himself as a member of the House should, the Speaker will be obliged to take the necessary measures.

MR. BENNETT: Let my old and valued friend the ex-Minister of Agriculture (Mr. Motherwell) go back and tell the farmers of Saskatchewan, those who produce wheat and honey, those who produce copper and other minerals from the mines of the north, those who produce timber products in a small way, and those who are concerned in the development of a great port, that they want none of this.

MR. MOTHERWELL: I sure will tell them all about wheat.

MR. BENNETT: Let him go back and say, "We want none of this. We struggled to get it, but now we do not want it." I listened to the hon. gentleman the other day, and apparently he could not differentiate between Argentine wheat and wheat from Canada. He said the effect of the agreement would be to reduce the price of wheat from Canada. But it matters not what the price of wheat may be, no bushel of wheat from outside the British Empire enters a port of Great Britain without paying two shillings on every eight bushels, while Canadian wheat sweeps in free. While a ship carrying Canadian wheat ties up to the dock and the wheat is unloaded free of charge, the wheat from any foreign country must pay two shillings a quarter. But the hon. gentleman will rise in his place tonight and vote against that. Although Sir Wilfrid Laurier struggled for it; although the right hon. leader of the opposition struggled for it; although the Liberal party fought for it, the leader from Saskatchewan, that great farming community, will rise in his place tonight and say "No preference; no free entry; no advantageous terms in the markets of Great Britain. Let us give the preference to someone else."

MR. MOTHERWELL: No bogus preference.

MR. BENNETT: And we are met with the delightful argument that it is bogus. What about Manitoba, with its newly developed mines, its copper, its other mineral deposits, its wheat and its pork products? Let the Manitoba members sitting opposite rise in their places and repudiate preferences. Let them go back and tell their constituents that they sat here in the House of Commons and voted against the Dominion of Canada making any agreement that would let pork products or wheat or copper enter a market of forty million people on more favorable terms than are given foreign countries.

We come to Ontario. Where are the apple growers, where are the potato growers, where are the cattle raisers, where are the mineral producers of that great province, as well as of Quebec? Copper, lead, zinc, gold, silver, all these great resources—where are they to be? Tonight their representatives opposite from Ontario will stand in their places and vote one after the other against a preference on apples and pears and peaches and plums, against having a better opportunity for markets than their competitors from foreign countries. They will stand and say: "We want none of these things; we only want to prevent Canadians having a preference in a market of forty millions of people." And the same with Quebec.

I have dealt with the question of timber, the struggle that we made to secure free entry of timber from this country, with protection against unfair competition; and we are met with the situation that when the agreement comes before this house the members from the old province will say: "We prefer to follow the leadership of the member for Winnipeg North Centre, against a preference being afforded to our products."

One thing more and I conclude. Coming to the Maritime Provinces, we heard the plea made in this chamber on April 26th last by the hon. member for Hants-Kings (Mr. Ilesley) for a preference on apples. We have secured it; yet tonight, only a few short months after, he stands in his place and says: "No I will vote against it."

MR. ILESLEY: How do you know? MR. BENNETT: I am asking, will he?

AN HON. MEMBER: You said no.

MR. BENNETT: Then I at once make myself right; I say: is he going to vote against it? I judge from his very ready response that he is not. What about the hon. member for Antigonish-Guysborough (Mr. Duff)? What about the fishermen? What about the struggle we made to secure for them a continuance of their preference in a market of forty million people? Where is he tonight? Hon. members opposite begin to realize that when they go back home and tell their constituents that they voted against a preference in a market of forty million people—

SOME HON. MEMBERS: Hear, hear.

MR. BENNETT: There is the story, sir.

AN HON. MEMBER: He is here now.

MR. BENNETT: Now, sir, what I said in the absence of the hon. member for Antigonish-Guysborough was that he would now stand up in his place and vote against the preference being afforded to Nova Scotia on fruit or fish in a market of forty million people.

MR. DUFF: Not worth anything.

MR. BENNETT: The answer he will give is that a dollar a barrel on apples is no preference, and that a similar preference on fish constitutes nothing.

MR. DUFF: Not worth a cent.

MR. BENNETT: Now, sir, I call on this Commons House of Parliament and the people it has sworn to serve, to witness the vote of the self-styled representatives of Liberalism. They will record their votes against this agreement. The country has the right to ask them why. Is it because the agreement stands for greater export markets? Is it because the agreement promises definite advantage to our agriculturists and industrialists? Is it because the agreement is the forerunner of more prosperous times? Is it because the agreement is the triumphant consummation of the earnest and unselfish efforts of the mother

 Get rid of the cause... take Fruit-a-tives

"I always felt miserable and tired as I was troubled with constant headaches for years. A lady recommended Fruit-a-tives and I gave them a trial and in less than a week was feeling like a new person."
 —Mrs. A. M. Warton, Ont.

There is something to Fruit-a-tives. Created after 15 years' research by a brilliant physician, Fruit-a-tives is not to be confused with ordinary pills, oil, roughage, which act upon only one organ or possibly two. Fruit-a-tives stimulate five vital organs to function naturally and thereby assure good health. Try them. 25c and 50c.

 MAKE AND KEEP YOU WELL

country and the dominions to make this empire of ours a greater economic power in the world, and a surer benefit to each one of us? Are these the reasons? Or is it this: that the leader of the Liberal party in this house, unable to promote the empire fiscal policy he once espoused, now turns in anger from it; that its leader, defeated in his personal ambitions, shuts out the light of reason and obdurately fastens upon those twin stars of pride and vanity? Or is it that its leadership has changed, and that under the old mantle is now found another form, the sign and symbol of a new economic and social creed, a creed that has no place in the hearts of men and women whose liberty and happiness have so long been buttressed and secured by the great free institutions of the British Empire? Is it the voice of Jacob but the hand of Esau? There must be a real reason for this default, for this betrayal of the past. For three long weeks this house has waited patiently to hear, and it has not heard it yet. In justice to Canada, in justice to this house, in justice to Liberalism itself, the reason must be made plain.

I now call on this House of Commons and the people it has sworn to serve to witness the vote of the Conservative party, and all those like my friend the hon. member for Hants-Kings and those besides who in fairness to Canada elect to give this agreement a fair and honest trial; to witness their vote, which is their pledge to support the agreement, which is their promise to keep faith, the proclamation of their belief in closer empire economic association, their denunciation of all forces that threaten it, and which is the crowning proof that they do not doubt that within the British commonwealth the welfare of this dominion is assured.

(The agreement passed by a vote of 128 to 80.)

ter may be added, also pepper and more salt if desired.

Baked Squares of Hubbard Squash
 To prepare Hubbard squash for baking, to speed process it may first be steamed, but this is not necessary. Cut squash in 3 inch squares leaving skin on. Brush with butter, sprinkle with salt and pepper and arrange on shallow baking dish containing very small amount of water. Cover during first part of baking—only uncovering when tender, to allow butter to brown.

Prune Jelly
 One half pound prunes, 2 cups cold water, boiling water, 1-2 cup cold water, 2 1-2 tablespoons gelatine, 1 cup granulated sugar, 1-4 cup lemon juice (or 1-2 cup orange juice). Wash and soak prunes overnight in two cups cold water, and cook in same water until soft; remove prunes and stone them and cut in quarters. To prune juice add enough boiling water to make 2 cups. Soak gelatine in half cup of cold water to make 2 cups. Soak gelatine in half cup of cold water for five minutes, then dissolve in hot liquid. Add sugar, lemon juice, then strain, and add prunes, and pour into mould and chill. Stir while cooling to prevent prunes from settling on bottom. Serve with whole milk.

NOTE: I am taking it for granted that you will not practise the false economy of stinting on whole milk and butter. See article of week of October 17, which appeared in this paper—also succeeding articles on value of dairy products in the diet.

Supper Menu 2
 Meat Balls in Tomato Sauce; Baked Potatoes; Creamed Carrots; Prune Jelly.

Meat Balls in Tomato Sauce
 To one and one half pounds minced stewing beef add 1 finely minced onion, 1-2 cup bread crumbs, 1 egg, salt and pepper to taste. One tablespoon finely minced green pepper may be added if desired. Mix all together well and form into round balls about 2 inches

Supper Menu 3
 (At the moment of writing the delicious odors of this very supper are wafting into my study.)
 Scrambled Eggs on toast points. Potatoes au Gratin; scalloped tomatoes; fresh fruit salad; coffee.

Scrambled Eggs on Toast Points
 Beat four eggs in bowl, add 1 cup milk and 1 teaspoon salt. Pour into top of double boiler which has been buttered generously and stir constantly over boiling water until eggs are cooked through and smooth. Pile each serving on four points of toast and garnish with paprika or parsley.

Potatoes Au Gratin
 Boll five medium sized potatoes with skins on until waxy but not tender enough to flake. Peel and cut in 1-2-inch cubes. Heat 1 1-2 cups milk. Blend together 3 tablespoons butter and 3 tablespoons flour, and 1 teaspoon salt. Add hot milk to it while stirring constantly, until it thickens. Put sautéed potatoes in cream sauce and pour all onto rather flat baking dish (pyrex plate serves nicely) and cover with thick coating grated cheese. Sprinkle with paprika and place in oven to melt cheese and brown slightly.
