

W. C. T. U. Notes Consecrated Lord Bishop Of Nova Scotia

ON THE HILLS OF HOPE I climbed, one day, to the hills of hope...

I found in the summit's faceless glow A pale and purest gold; Where myriad souls from the plains below...

I wondered whence that radiant scene, When the sun had dropped from sight; And saw o'er the summit's golden sheen...

O let me live on the hills of hope, With the love-crowned years remain; Nor glance again down the shadowy slope...

TRUE PATRIOTISM To love one's country is to regard with veneration and affection the righteous policies of government...

Patriotism is love—deep, lasting and true. We have enough of that blind love that is ready to die for the flag...

The man that shoots off cannon crackers on our national holidays, and sings O Canada until he is hoarse...

Our country wants the patriot, who uniformless, flagless, friendless, without a cheer of whiff of victory...

There are men who would heroically die that the drink traffic should be abolished, but who shrink from performing the glamorous, drudgery of duties that would kill the traffic without costing them a drop of blood...

Many people wish the drink traffic dead, but more are not more wishbone, but more backbone. Patriotism is not that love of country that sits in dreaming adoration...

Critics of prohibition are plentiful and propaganda against it is widespread. In the light of modern science, the hideous and tragic truth about alcohol stands revealed.

Alcohol is a protoplasm poison, a poison of all life, whether of plant, animal, or man. Alcohol is a habit-forming drug, a most alluring, deceptive and enslaving drug.

Alcohol is a specific cause of degeneracy, an active principle of death for body, mind and soul in the individual and in the nation.

Is not respect for God's laws the best long life insurance for any individual, or nation? Does it pay to call ministers to preach the gospel of love, charity, honesty, purity, forgiveness, and redemption...

Oh, for a patriotic devotion to home and country that can inspire the men of Canada to say to this blasphemer of God: 'Thus far thou hast come, Thou shalt go no farther.'

If every man would do the things the "other man" should do, Hunt the murderer, catch the thief, and watch the rascal crew...

Wrong cannot be protected by law—it must be prohibited. Prohibition is the remedy used to stave off other evils, and why should the liquor traffic, the greatest of evils, be made an exception?

Alcohol, even in the form of light wine is injurious to the human system. The Carnegie Nutrition Laboratory has been experimenting for many years to determine the effects of alcohol in conducting the tests, care has been taken to avoid the misleading results arrived at when as sometimes happens, the undergoing the tests are mistaken for a reaction to alcohol. We have found that the consumption of even a small quantity of wine retards eye-action to a point where it is unsafe for the person who has drunk the wine to drive an automobile.

(C. F. by Guardian's Special Wire) HALIFAX, Oct. 18.—With impressive Church of England ceremony Right Rev. John Mackenzie, B. A., D. D., successor to the late Archbishop C. L. Worrell, was consecrated Lord Bishop of Nova Scotia tonight in the Cathedral Church of All Saints before a large congregation.

Lady and clergy representative of most districts of the diocese witnessed the colorful procession and heard the new Lord Bishop deliver a sincere exhortation.

"The harmful effects of wine outweighs in every case the slight food value which it may possess when taken in small quantities. Wine does not aid bodily growth, and in no way can alcohol be said to be an essential part of human diet."

"One of the most conclusive results of our tests was the discovery that the 'eye-wine,' or motion of the eye-lid to cover the eye when necessary, for protection, was slowed down by a quantity of alcohol so small that no indication of intoxication was apparent. Similar tests revealed an increase of 40 per cent. in typing mistakes, and an increase of 85 per cent. in legibility of typing."

"A person who has taken only a few glasses of light wine is in no condition to be trusted at the wheel of an automobile, impaired as is his ability to glance quickly to his side by not less than 45 per cent.—Dr. Frances G. Benedict, Director of the Carnegie Nutrition Laboratory.

"To sin by silence when we should protest. Makes cowards out of men. The human race Has climbed on protest. Had no voice been raised Against injustice, ignorance and sin The Inquisition yet would serve the law. And guillotines decide our least disputes."

"The few who dare, must speak, and speak again To right the wrongs of many."

ADDRESS AND PRESENTATION A very enjoyable evening was spent at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Sellick, Brackley, Friday, Sept. 14th, when upwards of eighty friends and neighbors gathered to offer their felicitations and best wishes to Mr. and Mrs. Roland Sellick in their recent marriage.

The Duke of Roxburgh celebrated his coming-of-age by a four-day gathering at Floors Castle. The castle stands in a magnificent park overlooking the junction of Tweed and Teviot. It was built by Sir John Vanbrugh, the dramatist and architect, in 1718, and was entirely remodelled by Playfair in 1859.

The Duke of Roxburgh is descended from the old clan of Ker. The name means left-handed, and like the left-handed men of Benjamin, the Kers were a fierce and warlike who spent their time in raiding the English border (says the Evening Standard).

The Duke who was a pleasantly inefficient fag at Eton and is now a subaltern in the Horse Guards, has several famous forebears.

"The best known are the notorious 'Habbie Ker,' the first Earl and a cousin of the Duke of Devonshire, and John the fifth Earl, who, as Secretary of State for Scotland, did much to promote the Union. For his services he was made a duke.

DAFFODILS FOR WINTER CHEER The trumpet trumpets to which the name daffodil has popularly been given to distinguish it from the narcissus types with cups and crowns, is easily grown in pots in the house, ranking with the hyacinth in this respect.

As a tangible proof of our regard, we ask you to accept this cabinet, which we hope may prove useful addition to your home, and a constant reminder of the friends gathered here tonight. May all that is best in life be yours, and heaven's richest blessing abide with you as long as ye both shall live.

Although taken by surprise, the young couple responded in a very capable manner, and "For They Are Jolly Good Fellows" was heartily sung by all.

A dainty luncheon was then served by the ladies, and a programme of songs and instrumental music brought the evening to a close. (Patriot Please Copy)

BABY MACDONALD Today's Kodak picture shows John Basil MacDonald aged eleven months as he posed for his picture, which was taken by his mother Mrs. Ewen MacDonald of Bradshaw and mailed to The Reid Studio, Moncton, N. B., for developing and printing.

THE HOUSEWIFE (Continued from page 8) Now here was 'Totynail.' She had heard of lonely children, and even ones who weren't so lonely, manufacturing dream children, but it never occurred to her that one would come to live in her very own house with her boy, of all beings. She had thought that was for girls, sensitive, sweet, cuddly little girls who liked to play with dolls.

Jackie was all the dream child and she would kill him (or her) off for good. But would she allow it? It had to be decided now. She went on weighing the facts.

Jackie still was jabbering to Totynail. He was very kind and she decided that he loved the little friend because the friend was silent and admired Jackie in fact was the ideal person the little fellow craved and needed.

She went to the bookcase and turned the key. A time and place for realism, but a time and place for imagination. She took the book and went to the telephone and arranged for her friends to drive out once a week with their children. They decided to take turns having the party. And she decided that on Jackie's fourth birthday he would go to kindergarten.

CANADA'S UNSOLVED MYSTERIES

(By Sam G. Ross, Canadian Press Staff Writer) (Copyright, 1934, by the Canadian Press)

WINNIPEG, Oct. 19.—Five men loitered in the entrance to the Winnipeg Electric Railway Chambers just as officers were beginning the day's work Aug. 15, 1933.

One minute later and Winnipeg was given its greatest payroll robbery which today still stands on police records as an unsolved mystery crime. The five grabbed $87,478 in loot and faded away.

Carefully planned and carefully executed, the robbery was carried out within a minute while clerks, stenographers and business executives paraded into the building to start their labors for the day.

When Richard Shaw and Leslie Montgomery, carrying the payroll of the Winnipeg Electric Company which operates Winnipeg's street railway, stepped out of the car they arrived in, the five quickly fell into position.

While two guarded nearby entrances, two others stepped up with loaded guns to halt Shaw and Montgomery. The fifth slipped into the car they arrived in and jammed a revolver against the ribs of Sydney Krowler, chauffeur.

Shaw was ordered to stop, but when he attempted to race into the office 12 feet ahead he was clubbed with the butt of a bandit's gun. The robber pair grabbed the satchels and raced into the car. The two bandit-guards joined them. Krowler was ordered to "drive like hell."

Several blocks away the car was halted and Krowler was ordered out. One of the bandits took the wheel and sped away. But they never left the city in the car. It was found but no trace of the bandits or the loot was uncovered. Trails led many ways.

Police took up the trail from the scene of the robbery. They had Krowler guide them along the route he had taken the five and their loot. Out into the country points they followed leads, all with out success. They are still searching, but the clues are meagre.

(Continued from page 8) to turn out the gas under her broom and walk out and refuse to do another lick of work until she can get a stiffer factory adjustment of the money question. It wouldn't take long to bring a man to terms if he had to wrestle with the problem of cooking dinner for a lot of howling, hungry children when he got home from his work.

But of all the mean things that a man can do to a woman, the very meanest and most contemptible is for him to let her into marrying him in the belief that he is going to be generous to her, and that she is going to be his partner and share fifty-fifty in his prosperity, and for him to take all that she can give him and then begrudge her the very food she eats and the very clothes on her back. It is the lowest down confidence game in the world.

Nor is there anything meaner than a man taking all the work of a woman's hands, work so great and incessant that no money can really pay for it, and refusing to give her even a dollar as her just deserts. Money, she has earned herself, too!

The only way to deal with a tight-fisted husband is to avoid getting him, and I urge every girl who is thinking about marriage to have a definite financial agreement before she marries as to what percentage of the family income is to be hers. DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Dorothy Dix—Is it right for a working girl to accept a fur coat from her employer? A certain young woman tells me that her opinion of me will be very much changed if I take it, but I can see no harm in it and am sure no ties would be attached to it. JERRY.

Your friend is right. A deep, dark suspicion would attach to such a gift, and nobody would believe that such a present was innocently given or innocently received.

This is a hard-bolled world, my dear, in which there is nothing for nothing, and I think that if you accept the fur coat from your employer, you will have to pay a price that will bankrupt you. And the first payment will be forfeiting the respect of all who know you.

There is nothing so terrible as the fact that most of the girls who get wrong do not take their first step on the downward path through love or passion. Nor are they betrayed into it by villains.

They fall through love of finery, through the desire for silks and velvets and furs and jewels. They literally sell their souls for a yard of chiffon. I entreat you not to make this sorry bargain. DOROTHY DIX.

So! Mary is taking Music Lessons. Naturally her teacher has been chosen with care. An accomplished musician with an understanding of children—one who will instill in Mary a love and desire for fine music. But—what of the piano at home? Mary will spend many hours every week in practice. Her piano should be the finest you can afford. Tone should be smooth and clear. Action should be perfectly balanced and instantly responsive to the player's touch. It should be an inspiration to the young musician—an inspiration that will lead to genuine accomplishment and appreciation. That is why we say—it is important that Mary and all other young music students, be given a Heintzman, the finest piano that money can buy. The tone and action of the Heintzman have won the acclaim of teachers and concert artists the world over.
