Wood Buffalo For Museum Specimens

EDMONTON, Alta., Oct. 29.—Professor W. H. Brown, of the University of Alberta, with his assistant, W. McDonald, has returned from the Wood Buffalo reserve at Fort Smith, following a successful expedition into the Northland, for museum specimens of wood buffalo. He brought out with him the skulls, hides and requisite skeletal remains of two buffalo bulls, and also a number of old skins found on the reserve.

The Alberta professor stamps as incorrect the stories to the effect that the plains buffalo were trekking south. Rangers who have made careful observations of the plains buffalo according to Professor Brown, found that the animals were settling down well and were mixing amicably with the larger woods buffalo. The rangers declared, were drifting to the southern end of the preserve, bordering on the Slave and Peace rivers.

The party left by wagon for the preserve, accompanied by rangers and guides, but most of the actual hunting was done on foot, with occasional trips on horseback.

The expedition left Edmonton on September 1. Permission had been secured to take three bulls and a cow, but animals were found to be scarce and difficult to catch. The parks superintendent, Mr. McDougall, has undertaken to secure for specimen purposes, the largest bull on the range, during the coming winter, as the ranger knows the particular haunts of this animal and can get him when favorable opportunity presents itself.

Photographs of the woods buffalo were difficult to get, and light conditions were unsatisfactory when photographing the specimens shot by the expedition. Rangers estimate that of the large herd of plains buffalo moved to the woods buffalo reserve this summer, about 37 have crossed the Peace River to the wooded lands to the south. These animals are being watched as carefully as possible and every effort will be made to protect them even though they wander outside of the preserve.

Bootleggers "Get" "Lone Wolf" Asher

CHICAGO, Oct. 30.—James Asher known as the "Lone Wolf" of the prohibition enforcement service, here, died suddenly today under circumstances which led police and enforcement officials to suspect that he may have been poisoned by bootleggers whom he had continually harassed during his three years as a federal agent.

This morning Asher complained to his wife, Mary, that his head ached. A little later, after a hot bath he went to bed, saying he thought he was dying. A physician at his hotel managed to keep him alive for an hour and a half. He pronounced death was due to a cerebral hemorrhage.

During the last few weeks Asher had been working as an "undercover" man and it was upon his complaints and warrants that several federal injunctions closed the place owned by "Sawed-off," whose nickname was affixed to President Coolidge, defying him to enforce the dry law here.

Asher gained considerable notice when he cleaned up Peoria, which was called by prohibition officials the wettest town in Illinois.

Immigrant Outlook Bright For Canada

(Canadian Press)
WINNIPEG, Man., Oct. 30.—Prospects of the 3,000 family scheme for next year are exceedingly bright and Canada should have no difficulty in securing the proposed quota of 1,200 families in 1926, according to Major R. V. Gyles, liaison officer of the department of immigration and colonization, who has charge of the scheme as far as western Canada is concerned.

"If the number per family averages the same as during the past season and we obtain 1,200, it will mean the settlement throughout Canada in 1926 of 6,000 to 7,000 British-born farm lands," Major Gyles said.

Up to the present time, he declared that between 200 and 300 families had been approved for next season. This was particularly gratifying considering that the 1925 quota will not suit for Canada for another six months.

Major Gyles stated that 365 families had been located during 1925 in the West out of the 600 families which had come to Canada under the scheme. Manitoba had taken 75, Saskatchewan 90, Alberta 135 and British Columbia 65, he said.

"I think," Major Gyles, continued, "that as a whole the scheme has proved most satisfactory. The majority of the families have during the past summer, written letters home to their near relatives and friends expressing high appreciation of the manner in which they have been treated. In most of the letters state they have received more than they anticipated. A large number of letters too have been received by the department direct. These letters to my mind are the best boost that 3,000-family scheme could receive. It speaks for itself, and will have a material offset in securing families for next year."

Baroness Orczy's Will Write Of Life's Beauty

(Canadian Press)
WINNIPEG, Man., Oct. 30.—The two novels with Canadian settings which Baroness Orczy intends to write of historic Quebec, and life on the Prairies when she returns to her villa at Monte Carlo, will be written in the same romantic style which has characterized her other work; there will be none of the sex problems, which she declares seems "inevitable in much of the modern literature."

According to the Baroness, when she was in Winnipeg it is the duty of a novelist to bring beauty into the life of the reader and take him out of everyday surroundings, "so often filled with monotony and cordidness."

"It is not refreshing to read about the sorrows of others, but only intensifies one's own," she said. "Modern people," she added, "have a very bad habit of introspection. They analyse their reactions too much and demand the same thing in their reading. Why not forget themselves in delightful romance?"

When asked if she thought it possible for a woman to combine marriage and a career, the Baroness replied with a very expressive shrug of the shoulder: "I have done it. Why not others?"

The Baroness feels that many of the books which have an uncompromising angle to married women in professions, are written by men who still have the old-fashioned idea of marriage.

Baroness Orczy gives definite hints to the supervision of her household either in London or at her charming home on the shores of the Mediterranean. It is only during her hours in the "studio" that she draws herself apart. This is a large room commanding a superb view of the sea, which she

INSIDIOUS EYE STRAIN

We use this adjective advisedly. Sufferers from Eye Strain may have perfect vision and therefore do not suspect the presence of any eye defect.

The active power of the entire human organism is Nerve Energy.

Normal eyes, if computed utilize about 20% of this Nerve Energy, but when Eye Strain is present, a much larger proportion is required. Hence defective eyes, through their consumption of an excessive amount of Nerve Energy, may seriously affect the functioning of other organs of the body, and produce ill health.
