Nova Scotian Makes Mark In US

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — Horatio Fraser, 93, a Nova Scotian who claimed to have introduced the retail store lunch counter in Rhode Island, died Monday.

He had been a real estate and insurance broker before retiring a quarter century ago. He also prided himself on having been the first man to drive an automobile up College Hill, the city's steepest street. This was in 1889. He used a Baldwin Steamer.

Fraser was born Oct. 20, 1864 in Pictou County, son of John David and Christabel (Fraser) Fraser a direct descendant of Simon Fraser, Lord Lovat, and of the earliest settlers of Nova Scotia from Scotland. His ancestors crossed on the ship Hector.

BEDTIME STORIES

Mrs. Flathorns Wades

Be sure you keep your vision clear
To take each step devoid of fear.
—Old Mother Nature.

Croaker the Raven was upset, so much so that he was losing his temper. He had come over to a lone little pond deep in the Green Forest at the foot of the Great Mountain to get his breakfast. Before he had even a chance to get the breakfast he had hoped to get someone else had come to breakfast too. It was Flathorns the Moose.

Now while both had come to the little lily pond for breakfast they had come for very different kinds of breakfast. There were many Frogs in that little pond. Croaker had hoped to find some too far from the water to dive into it before he could catch them. Flathorns was there to breakfast on the lily plants, roots and all, in the water. They are a favorite food of his in summer.

They are a favorite food of his in summer.)

When Flathorns went splashing along in the water near the edge of the little pond, the noise he made sent all the Frogs on that side of the pond diving headlong into the water. Watching from high in a tree Croaker saw them plop into the water one after another ahead of Flathorns. Each time he felt that he was seeing his breakfast jumping into the water. Do you wonder that he felt more and more out of sorts? And there was nothing he could do about it.

No Frogs would be waiting anywhere near Flathorns. The only chance would be on the other side of the little pond. Croaker prepared to fly over to that side. Then, just as he was starting to spread his big black wings, someone stepped out from among the trees on that side. It was Mrs. Flathorns. With her was long-legged, awkward, homely Moosey, her calf. There would be no Frogs for Croaker's breakfast this morning.

For a moment or two, Mrs. Flathorns stood at the water's edge looking over the pond. It was a lovely sight, white lilies amid big green leaves that seemed to float on the water covering most of th surface. Mrs. Flathorns looked pleased. She was pleased. But it wasn't the loveliness of the sight that pleased her. No, sir, it wasn't that at at all. It was the thought of the good breakfas awaiting her.

Moosey, the calf, began to run along the shore, back and forth. Now and then he wet his feet, but he didn't really go in the water. Mother paid no attention to him. She began to wade out. She waded out up to her knees. She put her dead down in the water. It was out of sight. There she stood, looking as if she had no head at all. Presently she lifted her head and the water poured off on both sides. She had a mouthful of something which she was chewing. It was the root of a water lily. She ate it as if it was just about the best eating in all the Great World. I suspect she thought it was. It was a provoking thing for Croaker to watch. He looked over to the other side of the pond. Flathorns was also out in the water up to his knees and doing the very same thing that Mrs. Flathorns was doing.

Croaker spread his black wings and flew away in disgust. He would have to look elsewhere for a breakfast.

Opening lead—Queen of spades.

There is nothing unusual about declarer making a hand which could have been defeated. The declarer has a decided advantage over the defenders during the play period because he sees all the strength and weakness of his position while the opponents do not.

Declarer is therefore many times able to produce more tricks than he is entitled to on the strict merits of the cards. The skillful declarer can also many times capitalize on his natural advantage and increase it by the use of deception and strategy.

Examine South's problem when West opens the queen of spades. ents do not.

Immediately, a plan must be formed to attempt to save one of the four natural losers. An effort to steal a trick is in order. The only chance lies in develop- He sees there are two spades, a diamond, and a club to lose. South knows it, but the opponing a club trick, but this can be done only with the cooperation of the defense. The effort must be disguised so that the defenders will not suspect what is happening.

The spade lead is won with the ace and dummy is entered with a trump. A low club is led and the jack loses to the ace. West cashes two spade tricks and shifts to a diamond.

South wins with the ace, draws trumps ending in dummy, and leads the queen of clubs. East covers with the king and South ruffs. Dummy's ten of clubs is now a trick. Dummy is entered with the king of diamonds, and declarer's diamond loser is discarded on the ten of clubs.

East could have defeated the contract at trick three, when the low club was led from dummy, by going up with the king of clubs. It was a diffcult play to make.

The important point is that declarer should not tackle the clubs by leading the jack from the hand. If he does, East will win with the king and the contract will be lost.

Suggests Reprisal Against Jamaica For Blocking Cod

OTTAWA (CP) — Senator Calvert C. Pratt has urged the federal government to investigate the possibility of reprisal action against Jamaica for reportedly blocking imports of salt codfish from the Atlantic provinces.

The Newfoundland Liberal made his proposal Thursday in a notice of inquiry in the upper house to Senator John T. Haig, government leader. Senator Haig said he would place the suggestion before Trade Minister Churchill.

Senator Pratt asked whether the government is aware Jamaica is refusing to permit imports of Atlantic Coast salted codfish except at prices dictated by Jamaica.

He said that for some weeks purchases by Jamaican importers had been forbidden because Canadian prices did not receive official Jamaican approval.

SERVED NOTICE

He asked whether the government is aware that an official of the Jamaican government had served notice that unless Newfoundland shippers sign a contract guaranteeing there will be no price advance for one year "Canadian exporters will be prevented from selling any salted codfish to Jamaican importers at any price for a year hence."

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.
