

Some cough mixtures smother the cough. But the next breeze fans it into life again.

Better put the cough out. That is, better go deeper and smother the fires of inflammation. Troches cannot do this. Neither can plain cod-liver oil.

But Scott's Emulsion can. The glycerine soothes and makes comfortable; the hypophosphites give power and stability to the nerves; and the oil feeds and strengthens the weakened tissues.

General White.

Lieutenant-General Sir George White, V. C., G. C. B., G. C. S. I. had long been spoiling for a fight. Of Irish extraction, although serving in a kilted regiment, and more Scotch than any Scotchman, he had the combativeness of his race, who when they see a head want to hit it. White, although his militant instincts were curiously keen, had till quite lately been denied much chance of active service. As a lad he had taken a small part in the repression of the Indian Mutiny, but he had reached the mature age of forty-four and had seen no more blows struck. Now at the outbreak of the second Afghan campaign, when his regiment formed part of Robert's Cabal army, he was on the verge of compulsory retirement. A year or two more and he must have been pensioned—of course, to his own deep chagrin—and, as has since been fully shown, still more to the public loss. The country would have missed in White a stout, stalwart soldier, with strong, natural aptitudes for the business of war, and needing no more than fitting opportunity to come conspicuously to the front. It is, indeed a curious commentary upon our whole system of army advancement that he should have been kept back by pure accident for so long, and that now, at the eleventh hour, when fast approaching man's appointed term of years, he should have the luck to be chosen for a most onerous and responsible command on the field.

White had soon shown his quality in Afghanistan. He was constantly engaged with his regiment in all the fierce conflicts around Cabul, Sherpur, Takhti Shah, Childulkean, Charasiah. At the last named he contributed largely to the success of the affair, for he led the attack on a fortified hill strongly held by the Afghans, and outnumbering the force he commanded by eight to one. In this business he advanced along a ledge of rock single-handed, carrying a rifle with which he shot the Afghan leader dead. This bold onslaught and the loss of their leader brought dismay among the enemy, who forthwith fled. For this White was deservedly rewarded with the Victoria Cross. Henceforth his progress was steadily upward. Rank and honors came to him quickly. He passed from major to major-general in seven years—eventful years filled with stirring episodes for his name was known now as that of an officer worth utilizing wherever hard work was to be done. So he went on Wolsely's staff to the Sudan, and a little later was given a brigade command in the last Burmese war, with results that more than justified the high opinion now formed of his military capacity. It was in this command, which was rewarded by both promotion and knighthood, that he won still more; the appreciative esteem of the then Viceroy, Lord Dufferin, who was heard to express his belief that White was the ablest military officer he had ever met. When in a few years more the appointment of commander-in-chief of the Indian army fell vacant, Lord Dufferin's support, it is said, availed much to secure the coveted distinction for Sir George White. The selection caused some heart-burning, for it meant, the superseding of several officers believed by many to be quite as fit for the post. But White got it, and did well with it. He was greatly aided by his intimate acquaintance with Indian military administration; he showed much sound sense, and was always personally popular. Courteous, kindly, ever considerate, lenient in judgment, and always a firm friend, Sir George White was undoubtedly a success.

Lord Rosebery's Opinion.

In the course of a recent speech referring to Majuba Hill, Lord Rosebery said Mr. Gladstone's action was determined by the belief that the power of Great Britain was so great she could afford to do things other nations could not afford to do without risk. The Boers regarded Mr. Gladstone's magnanimity as a proof of weakness upon which they could encroach. Dwelling upon the unfriendliness of the foreign press and of American public opinion, Lord Rosebery said:

"This is no little war. There are nations watching with eagerness every trip, every stumble, and much more, every catastrophe and disaster that may overtake your arms. War waged under these conditions, therefore, is not 'little war.' I do not know why we should attract so much ill-feeling. There is one simple test that will apply to the British Empire as compared with other empires who watch her with so much, I won't say malevolence, but candid feeling. (Laughter.) We would be only too glad at the present moment to strike a bargain with the rest of the world that every frontier should remain as now. 'Of what other empire can that be said? Yet we, who are not trying to gain but to maintain empire, we who, in the best and highest sense, are the most conservative force in the world, are the object of the concealed dislike of governments who, I think, are less single-minded than ourselves.' Lord Rosebery, in an impassioned peroration, calling upon the nation to maintain a united front, after speaking of Great Britain as 'this lonely island in the northern seas viewed with such jealousy, such hostility, such jarred ambition by the great empires of the world, who count their armies with embattled millions,' concluded amid stormy applause with Shakespeare's words: 'Naught will make us rue If England to herself remain but true.'

WEAK AND... PUNY CHILDREN

Become Strong and Healthy by using Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Food.

Children are frequently left weak and sickly as an after result of measles, scarlet fever, etc., and in this state are easy prey to nervous disorders, rickets, spinal disease, or consumption, diseases which do not affect robust, healthy children. The blood is weak and watery and the nerves improperly nourished. Feed the blood and nerves with Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Food, and the pale, pinched faces will soon become rosy and plump, and tiredness and weakness will give way to strength and animation. Mr. E. W. Day, 62 Close Avenue, Toronto, writes: 'My eldest daughter, aged eight, became very much run down. Her fretful, nervous, sleepless condition greatly alarmed her parents. She was taken from school, and in spite of the best nursing, the thin, weakened, bloodless face grew painfully worse. Fortunately we used Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. An improvement became apparent in a few days, it continued, and in a few weeks she returned to school built up anew, and greatly to our joy fully restored to health.'

AMBITIOUS CITY AGAIN

Mr. Harry Bawden, of Hamilton, Ont Cured of Lumbago by Dodd's Kidney Pills

Hamilton, Oct. 16.—Mr. Harry Bawden of this city corroborates the report printed recently relating to his cure of Lumbago by Dodd's Kidney Pills.

"For six years," he says, "I suffered with Lumbago and Kidney Disease. I tried everything under the sun, but absolutely nothing I ever took gave me the slightest relief. A friend advised me about one year ago to try Dodd's Kidney Pills. I finally decided to do so, and purchased one box and found relief. I used in all five boxes and am completely cured.

The case has created quite a stir and there are found, too many warm, endorsers of Dodd's Kidney Pills in this city. Little faith is put in the many imitations on the market, the verdict being that the original is the best.
