THE ATTEMPTED DRUMMOND STEAL.

A few days ago Mr. Tarte announced that the Drummond county railway deal would be carried through yet in spite of all that has been said and done to the contrary, and not withstanding the strong protests of some liberal journals in the province of Quebec. The announcement caused no surprise. Everybody knew that Mr. Tarte and Mr. Blair would carry out the scheme if they could. The contract has a cool million dollars in it for Mr. Greenshields. How much it may have for other people is not known. We have Mr. Tarte's statement that Mr. Greenshields has made large sacrifices for the liberal party, and it is pretty well known that his name has been on a large collection of election notes. Mr. Greenshields will get his contract if Mr. Tarte can procure it for him.

Now we perceive that the missionary work in behalf of the arrangement has been fairly opened in the government organs. The Toronto Globe leads off with a treatise. It begins by a strongly misleading statement concerning the suggestion of corruption. It says: "Senator Miller's motion for an investigation was promptly accepted by Sir Oliver Mowat, and he and his fellow liberals voted for the resolution. There was nothing to prevent the investigation going on, and on the conservative majority in the senate and on its committee must be laid the onus of the delay." Now the Globe knows that while Sir Oliver Mowat agreed to an investigation, he strongly urged that the investigation should be postponed until next session. In order to secure this postponement, the Minister of Justice gave his word that nothing would in the meantime be done to commit the country to lease the road or even to take over the rolling stock. Sir Oliver pleaded the late hour of the session and the desire of the members to leave, and contended that no interest would suffer by the proposed delay. Of course this plea did not prevent the investigation, but it was understood to be the reason that the inquiry did not take place.

Equally incorrect is the Toronto Globe's contention that Mr. Blair's statement of the prospective gain by the extension was accepted by the opposition leaders. It correctly states that the proposed payment by way of rental was $210,000, and that according to the argument of Mr. Blair, the increased earnings would pay the rent and leave a large margin. But when the Globe says the fact that Mr. Foster and Sir Charles Tupper refused to commit themselves as opposed to the idea leads to the suspicion that they are fairly well convinced that Mr. Blair's calculations are well founded it states the case unfairly.

Whatever the Globe may suspect the plain fact is that both Sir Charles and Mr. Foster opposed the whole programme, and exposed Mr. Blair's calculations to merciless and destructive criticism. They showed that the proposed extension would add one more to the already too numerous lines between Quebec and Montreal, that it would give a through route from Montreal to Halifax a good deal longer than that through St. John's, and one from Montreal to St. John's so much longer than the present route as to be out of the competition altogether. They, with Senator Wood, Mr. Powell and Mr. Haggart showed the utter unreasonableness of Mr. Blair's calculations as to the prospective revenue, and proved that it was proposed to pay double for the road what it was worth in the market, and give four or five times as much to the owners as they had invested in it. The Globe, of course, knows all this. But it seems to have accepted the job of arguing the case for the government in order to persuade the suspicious liberals who are making trouble. The undertaking must be the more unpleasing for the Globe, because before the contract was completed the Globe could see nothing but harm in the proposal. The order is now to rush the thing through and give Mr. Greenshields his mission, and all the government organs are expected to take a hand.—St John Sun.

THEY OUGHT TO BE PUNISHED

Sir.—Is there not a Board of Health in the East End? If there is I would advise them to visit the St. Peter's road near the bridge west of the cemeteries and they will find in the fields there contiguous to the public road as vile an accumulation of filth as was ever collected. The smell from this is so offensive that people are afraid to pass. The men who are guilty of this nuisance should be punished.

Purgatorial Pills.

The druggist would hardly smile if you asked for "purgatorial pills." There are many of them. But he would probably recommend a pill that did not gripe; a sugar-coated pill, gentle in action, and sure in effect. What are they called?

AROUND THE WORLD.

Frank M. Phelps in Town—Something About the Man and His Wager.

Mr. Frank M. Phelps, who is going around the world on a wager, and who has already travelled through all the countries in Europe, and worked through a good slice of Asia and considerable of Africa, touched through Australia and thence from San Francisco, whence he crossed the great American desert and is now working his way south, arrived in Charlottetown on Saturday evening and is stopping at the Hotel Davies. Mr. Phelps is an entertaining talker and takes pleasure in telling his experiences in the different countries he has travelled through. He must have been a great surprise to a lot of the heathens he ran across in his travels, for his make up is somewhat startling, even if it is in good taste. He wears a white cap, grey sweater with pink lettering, white jacket and knickers, green stockings, and tan canvas riding shoes. The effect is picturesque, and as this six feet of attenuated humanity walked into THE EXAMINER office this morning, somebody thought there was a fancy dress parade on hand. The gentleman was strictly business, however, and was not long in making himself known. He seemed pleased when some of the staff remembered that celebrated paper suit he started out in and the inconvenient time he had when a merciless rain came down and removed certain very necessary portions of it. Mr. Phelps, it will be remembered, made a side wager of $3,000 with a New York club that he would travel in every country in the world in three years time and return with $3,000 made over and above his expenses. He was to earn this money by selling and advertising, but was not allowed to put a price upon anything he sold. Neither was he allowed to beg or borrow, but there was no stipulation as regards stealing. He looks honest, however, and this probably accounts for the absence of the latter condition. Mr. Phelps, it may be further stated, had to start on his trip with no wealth excepting three postage stamps, and without clothes. He was locked up in a club room and his clothes taken from him. With two of the stamps he bought a New York World, out of which he made a suit of clothes, and the remaining stamp he auctioned for a dollar. He subsequently received another dollar for backing a pair of shoes for a member of the club. He afterwards earned from $5 to $10 a day by sitting in the windows of large departmental stores, and also worked as waiter in hotels and as a street advertiser. Mr. Phelps is in town to do business. Already he has accumulated $2,500 of his wager. He has eleven months to earn the remaining $500, and has yet to visit the principal cities of Mexico and South America. Mr. Phelps is selling his photographs in Charlottetown. The other party to the wager keeps track of Mr. Phelps by obliging him to register at every telegraph station when riding a wheel, which return, with a weekly report sheet, he must send in each week. He is also followed by means of the daily papers in each place he visits, and in other ways.

THE TURF.—A match race has been arranged between Star Pointer and Joe Patchen for a purse of $5,000, to take place in Hartford, Conn., the last week in August and first in September.

THEATRICAL.—The Miles Ideal Company will open one week's engagement at the Opera House, Thursday evening playing the new Michael Strogoff. John E. Miles, who made a most enviable reputation for himself during a notable career with the late Alexander Salvini appears in the title role. He is a clever young heroic actor who has captured public favor to an extent which places him among the favorite repertoire artists of the day.

ST. JOSEPH'S CONVENT.—It is understood that the Sisters of St. Joseph's Convent school have decided to open a department for small boys at the beginning of the coming school year. It is unnecessary to speak in terms of praise concerning the excellent work done by the teachers of this school since its inception. They have always shown themselves to be painstaking and conscientious teachers, and their exertions have ever been productive of the most satisfactory results. No doubt the step they are now taking in opening a class for boys will be welcomed by many parents who are desirous of having their boys receive a good training, not only in the ordinary curriculum of a public school education, but also in the many other requirements which are so necessary for the proper formation of good character. The enterprise of these lady teachers deserves the most favorable commendations of the public, and there is every reason to believe that the young boys who may have the good fortune to attend this class will receive a good education in the true sense of the word.
