

Savage Harbour And Vicinity

Mr. John MacDonald, of St. Andrews, was a visitor to Peakes on Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Coffin, Mrs. Wilfred Coffin and Carol Coffin, all of Savage Harbour, were visitors to Charlottetown on Wednesday.

Mr. and Cyril Morrison of Savage Harbour, were visitors to Peakes on Wednesday, while there they were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Rogerson.

The many friends of Mrs. D. J. J. MacDonald, St. Andrews, will be sorry to learn that she has been obliged to enter the Charlottetown Hospital for treatment. All join in the hope that this friendly lady will make a speedy and complete recovery.

Mr. Wilfred Coffin had a valuable cow choke while eating turnips. Dr. Ings of Souris, was called in and in a very short time had the animal feeling like her old self again. One of the fine things that have been accomplished by the powers that be in the past few years was the establishing of veterinarians at convenient points throughout the Province.

On Thursday the government machines were working on the Point DeRoche Road. This road like the Savage Harbour Road needs to be rebuilt from the bottom up. Both roads are too low and need to be built up and adequate drainage provided. Citizens of both districts are toying with the pleasant thoughts that both projects will be carried out this season.

Lillian Mosher, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Mosher, is confined to her home through illness. Lillian, a brilliant girl, is a general favorite among her school chums, all of whom are pulling for her speedy and complete recovery and looking forward with pleasant anticipation to her return to school.

A large crowd attended the giant bingo held in St. Andrew's Hall, Mt. Stewart, on May 3, sponsored by the Catholic Women's League of St. Andrew's Parish. Lady Luck was kind to many during this delightful evening's entertainment but really beamed her broadest smiles at Mr. D. J. J. MacDonald, St. Andrews, Mrs. J. J. MacIntyre, Mt. Stewart and Mrs. Bertram MacDonald, Mt. Stewart.

The fishermen have run their lines and now the farmers are getting ready to begin their spring operations. The land is drying out wonderfully well. Mr. John Pigot was the first in the Savage Harbour area to shake up the old sods but in a very short time all will be at the ploughing and harrowing.

The lobster fishing season is now underway, but here at Savage Harbour the weatherman has not been at all friendly and up to the time of writing May 6, only one haul has been made. Most of the traps were in the water by Saturday evening and hopes were high for a bumper catch on Monday. But weather conditions were not good that day, only one fisherman reached the fishing grounds and he was obliged to return. Tuesday, however, all hands hauled and good catches were reported. Several boats landed from a thousand to fourteen hundred pounds each with the top boat shading the fifteen hundred mark. On Wednesday and Thursday the weatherman said "no," so with the first week rapidly drawing to a close only one haul had been made. Returns from the initial drag raised hopes for a good season but the oldtimers, the canny old sea-dogs say it is too early in the season to venture a prophecy.

The teachers of this area, Mrs. Cecilia MacCormack, Point de Roche, Miss Theresa MacDougall and Miss Mary Ledwell, St. Peter's Lake, Mrs. Alice McEwen, Canavoy, Miss Marion Kelly, St. Andrews, and Mrs. J. A. B. McConnell, Savage Harbour, met at St. Peter's Lake School on Thursday afternoon to continue their monthly meetings which because of adverse weather and travelling conditions had to be cancelled since the New Year. Inspector Gordon M. Rice was present and led the discussions which covered a great variety of topics. It was the general opinion of the meeting that pupils coming from the ungraded, single room schools. It was felt that the junior grades in the one room schools do not get a fair deal when grades nine and ten are also taught in the same classroom as too much of the school day is allotted to the senior pupils. The anticipated teacher shortage could. It was felt, he relieved considerably if many of the smaller schools with enrollments of from 8 to 15 could be brought together in a larger unit. The new arrangement for the grade 8 examinations were explained and those present considered it would be bound to be an improvement over last year.

The former Entrance Examinations make their bow this year under a brand new name the Provincial Examinations, they will extend over a longer period than formerly as a matter of fact seven days this year. The exams will get under way at the different centres on Thursday, June 24, continuing on June 25, Saturday and Sunday will be free with the writing continuing on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. It was felt this new arrangement would do much to ease the strain on the pupils and despite the fact it would tend to increase the expense of the average candidate, it was felt that the increased benefits would more than offset the slight increase in expenses. The teachers were given an opportunity to present any personal problems which they encountered in their work, to the meeting. Many problems were presented and the general discussions which followed were helpful to all present.

Mr. Rice asked the teachers to give as much publicity as possible, in their respective districts to the change in date of the annual school meetings, which starting this year will be held on the first Tuesday of June. This year it will be the first day of June. The meeting considered that this earlier date should prove helpful to both teachers and trustee boards throughout the Province. This group will meet again early in June at St. Peter's Lake School. It will be the final meeting of this school year.

Bristol and Vicinity

Mr. Gerry McAdam was in the city on Saturday on business.

Mr. Tom Kenny was a business visitor to the city Saturday on farm business.

Friends of Mr. Carol McAdam will be sorry to learn he is a patient in the Charlottetown Hospital, where he underwent an operation a few days ago.

Rev. Reginald Phalen of the S. D. Basilica staff, was here on Sunday on business and to visit his father at the same time.

Mrs. Bill Anderson was here from the city on Sunday. Her home is here but she has resided in the city for some years where she is employed.

The price of eggs to the farmers here dropped to mean low of 25 cents last week, the lowest in many a moon. The cream price has also dropped.

Mrs. Cecil McCarthy, R.N., is doing some private nursing at City Hospital and at present is attending her brother Carol McAdam.

is still hale and hearty. She has a remarkable memory and is blessed with the full enjoyment of all her faculties. Mrs. MacPhee enjoys a walk to the general store to do her shopping, and also to her House of Worship on Sunday. The best wishes of a host of friends goes out to Mrs. MacPhee for many more years of good health.

Mrs. Justin McCarthy R.N., has put on the white uniform again and has been serving at both Montague, and Charlottetown. Mrs. McCarthy was Marie Murphy, when she received her R.N., a quarter of a century ago.

Mrs. Gordon Hooper and daughter were in the city on Friday on business. Mrs. Hooper was one of the teachers here many years ago when the children walked to the old Harbour school long before Bristol school was even a dream.

The battle of the farm work got underway here last week with tractor men working early and late and a few with horses. Some of the early potatoes have been planted two weeks ago.

The lobster fishing has been retarded here with the poor weather continued. North-easterly winds have kept the fishermen from getting a lot of traps out and with much gear still on the shore, it's hard to guess if the fishing is good or bad.

Rev. Phalen McKenna was here on Thursday for the first time since he suffered a heart attack nearly two months ago. The Father has just left the hospital after seven weeks confinement and we all hope to see him back on duty again after a rest period.

Mr. M. B. Keefe, village barber, celebrates 30 years as a barber in this vicinity next month. Away back in 1924, Mr. Keefe, a young man looking ahead, left for Halifax to learn the business in all its angles and today, 30 years later, is still here.

OTTAWA (CP)—The Canadian Legion's executive council will meet here Wednesday for a three-day discussion on plans for the Legion's national convention at Toronto Aug. 1 to 6. The Legion is expected to renew attempts to obtain higher war veterans allowances from the government.
