MARKETING REPORT
Egg production on P. E. I. is not increasing to any appreciable extent, reports Mr. F. M. Nash, district inspector, poultry products. Quality of product is good and demand is strong. All supplies are finding ready sale throughout the Maritimes and Newfoundland. In past years at this season of the year, P. E. I. had a surplus of eggs over Maritime needs and was moving this surplus in carlots to Special Products Board. There is no surplus to date and the question arises—Where are supplies coming from to meet Canadian consumptive demand for season starting July 1950 and onwards unless present chick sales increase considerably. "RUSTY SAVES A LIFE" AT CAPITOL, SUMMERSIDE
"Rusty Saves a Life" carries the saga of Danny and his dog Rusty a step further along. Danny and his friends, with Danny's dog Rusty as their mascot, have a "clubhouse" for their meetings on the estate of a wealthy retired lawyer. The friendliness they evince to their host, leads to his promise of a substantial legacy some day. With his death, however, no will is found and the estate is turned over to the man's nephew. Uncompromisingly opposed to the youngsters and to the small town in which he is forced to reside, the heir's behavior wins him the enmity not only of his neighbors but of the boys themselves. Stephen Dunne is seen as the nephew; Gloria Henry, as the local girl who attracts his attention. Talent Ted Donaldson continues as Danny, with John Littel and Ann Doran seen as his long-suffering, sometimes misunderstanding and always sympathetic parents. "Rusty Saves a Life" was written by Brenda Welbes and directed by Seymour Friedman. Wallace Macdonald served as producer for Columbia.

"Not only are eggs rich in vitamins but they are also rich in high quality proteins, in fact the quality of the protein is such that it is often referred to as a balanced protein. Egg protein is usually easily and almost completely utilized. Digestibility and utilization is aided by cooking although eggs can be over-cooked and thus digestibility will be lowered. "We also find that eggs are an excellent source of easily digested fat and minerals. In fact the fat is so easily digested that it can readily be utilized by children as young as three months of age. In aprons are relatively high when compared with other foodstuffs, particularly the iron content. Eggs are also a good source of calcium and phosphorus; copper, iodine and a number of other minerals are also present in useful amounts. Here again the mineral content of the egg varies to some extent depending upon the amounts present in the feed which the laying stock is consuming. "Actually a single egg supplies from 3 to 16 per cent of the daily requirements of all except one of the nine essential nutrients that are most likely to be deficient in the average human diet. The missing nutrient Vitamin C is found abundantly in most vegetables and fruits. Canada's Official Food Rules in the Canadian Nutritional Program prepared by the Nutrition Services of the Canadian Council of Nutrition recommendation for per capita consumption of eggs should be at least 3 to 4 weekly with the added injunction to be sure to eat at least these amounts and more if one can!"
