MR. AND MRS. FRANCIS MacDONALD

Colorful Spring Wedding Solemnized At Parkdale

A pretty wedding was solemnized recently at St. Plus X Church, Parkdale, when Mrs. Edna, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Adrian Peters, Bay Roberts, Newfoundland became the bride of Francis Ian MacDonald, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph M. MacDonald, First St., Parkdale.

Mr. Rev. P.F. Macdonald, V.G. performed the double ring ceremony. James R. Flanagan was soloist, accompanied by Mrs. William T. Campbell, organist. The guest pews were decorated with lily of the valley and white satin streamers. The altar was adorned with vases of spring flowers.

Given in marriage by Kenneth Campbell, the bride wore a cocktail-length dress of pearl and long tapered sleeves. Her shoulder length veil was held in place by a crown of matching pearl de soie and she carried a nosegay of white and pink carnations.

Mrs. Carl Morton, sister of the groom, was matron-of-honor. She wore a street length dress of ice green brocade and carried a nosegay of green tipped carnations. Her headress was in a matching shade of net and velvet.

Kathleen Andrews, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Anderson of Bunbury was the winsome flower girl. Her gown was similar to the bride's in a shade of to say, "Don't think you aren't going to suffer (or pay) for this, along with us," now that their daughter has involved him indirectly in a worrisome embarrassment.

As for what to do, get first-hand confidential professional guidance from counsellors at the Family Service Agency, or the Legal Aid Bureau, or the social work office of the Florence Crittenton maternity home (for unmarried mothers) in your area. Get the telephone numbers from the information operator if you can't find them in your directory.

It may be that the girl is relying upon her pregnancy to stampede you into marriage, a responsibility for which he doesn't yet qualify. He can't even support himself at this time, much less provide the necessities of life for wife and children. And it seems the girl is no better prepared to be a competent helpmeet and mother.

The girl and her parents, rather than you, should be taking the lead in trying to engineer a civilized solution, with specialist help. It doesn't make sense for them to be harassing you as a kind of guilty defendant, especially in view of the girl's significant seniority to your son, age-wise.

As between boys and girls the same age, during the teens, the girl is approximately two years older than the boy in psycho-sexual development. A girl of 18 is about five years ahead of a boy, 16, in the area of maturing.

Hence this girl, 18, "compromised" by your son, 16, whom she has pursued for two years, likely was the aggressor and instigator of the specific chain of events that led to the pregnancy that her parents resent and "blame" on you.

You may be sure that seasoned family counsellors, as suggested above, will be mindful of these various factors, in responding sympathetically to your approach.

Given their steady advice and representation, you can study the problem calmly, freed of undue nervous stress, and make a judicious contribution to a fair solution, to the best of your ability, without submitting to bullying or exploitation by the other camp. M.H.

ELLEN'S DIARY

We Take Time To Listen To Sounds Of The Season

We stop a moment to leaf back with some curiosity to the tale of a winter day: "It was a dour wind that blew today. There was snowfall and drifting. Even the sparrows sought shelter."

But today, what a change! A warm wind was ours. Sunlight the valley was, the fields a glow-green. There was joy in the rise and dip of the swallows' wings, a warmth in the robins' trills, and a definite purpose in the feathered excursions.

"There was a near tragedy today," Jamie, eldest grandson reported when with his father, he came down from the fields, a load of saw-logs from a heap in the wood-yard in the truck. "Only that we chanced to notice her fly up, we would have driven over a bird's nest! A little juncos, it was. We had to detour to save it."

Extremely busy nowadays Island farmers are, ours no exception. These were sandwiched in this hauling to a mill in a "caught" moment in the cropping. The incident recalled a similar one to mind. Back in the years we overheard James inquire of a helper of Mr. C's at the sawing in the near mill, when the work of that busy season was in progress. "How is it you are piling the sawed pieces so far over from the mill this time, and not in the usual place?"

"Because" the other grinned a bit shyly, "there's a robin nesting there and we didn't like to disturb her. They'll be hatched and gone before too long. Then we'll put the sawings there."

"What are we going to do now?" Peter questioned soberly of his grandfather today.

"There's a swallow starting to build a nest on that light above the front door! We can't say 'No, now can we?' I guess," he said with a resigned air, "we'll just have to let her do what she wants to about it."

"Give her time. She may change her mind!" James advised with a twinkle. Please - the hours spent away - ours, in

Island Women To Attend ACWW Meeting In Dublin

In September, 1965, 1500 women will meet in Dublin to hold the Eleventh Triennial Conference of the Associated Country Women of the World.

Mrs. Philip Matheson, Oyster Bed Bridge, P.E.I., the national president, will be the leader of the Canadian delegation. Mrs. L. G. Ramsay, Indian River, will head the Island group which includes Mrs. Roy Drinnan, Eversley; Mrs. Harold Laird, Kensington; Mrs. Frank Ross, Parkdale; and Mrs. M. J. Doyle of North Rustico, most of whom will sail on the "Franconia" from Montreal to Southampton.

ACWW, the only international organization of country women in the world, has 176 members societies all over the globe. They are self-governing societies, groups or rural women working in their own lands to better the lot of women and children; working to get better nutrition, better education, better housing, and a happier life, by their own efforts and in their own way. "Their own way" is the operative and inevitable phrase for no one pattern could be laid down for women in lands so different as Greenland and Papua, the U.S.A., Jordan, Basutoland, Thailand and Australia. They have widely different climates, different creeds, different ways of life, but are united in their aims to improve conditions and in the warm friendship for their fellow members in other lands. Every third year they meet to report progress, make plans for the future, greet old friends and make new ones.

The theme of this Eleventh Triennial Conference is "Working Together" to tie in with International Co-operation Year. This thought will be further developed with a symposium on the topic, "Better Living Through Working Together". Speakers will be Mrs. Smvth, director of the Coady International Institute, Antigonish, N.S.; David Owen, UN Technical Assistance Board; Dr. Joseph G. Knapp, administrator, Farmer Co-operative Service, Department of Agriculture, Washington, D.C.; and Mrs. Greta Bergstrom, Swedish Consumers' Institute, Stockholm. They will also assist in the Symposium and serve as resource persons for the study groups on education for co-operation; production, purchasing, marketing; community services, and how we can help each other.

The Hostess Society, the Irish Countrywomen's Association, have arranged pre- and post-conference tours so that delegates from all over the world can see their land, meet the women in their homes, and attend a horse show, a Ceili (Irish singing) and attend the theatre in Dublin. But above all, says the report from the ACWW Central Office, London, England, these women will meet and discuss their problems with those from other countries, as they continue to carry on their programs through the Associated Country Women of the World.

MARY HAWORTH

Girl's Parents Hounding Boy's Mother For Money

Dear Mary Haworth: I am a cancer patient, recently operated on, and at this point the chances of recovery are undetermined.

I have suffered considerably of recent months; but on my doctor's advice, to boost my morale and because I need the income, I am still working, though I haven't much strength.

I am divorced and support almost entirely my son, 16, who is the apple of my eye. His father has remarried and contributes to his support. We are middle class people.

During my hospital stay, Ray was in his father's care, though he also had access to my home, to look after his dog. In this time he compromised himself with a girl, 18, who has been pursuing him for two years.

She is expecting his child in August, meanwhile continuing in school (she hopes) until the term ends in June, if she can keep her secret from school authorities. They would dismiss her or assign her to a special school if they knew. She has elected to keep the child. (There
