

America Act, has some jurisdiction over its educational curriculum. It would appear that no constitutional rights of any racial group are being violated should English and no other living language be taught in the public schools outside Quebec.

Example At Geneva

Commentators are belatedly taking note of the fact that at the Geneva discussions on the future of Laos, Communist China participated as a full member of the conference. In the formal declaration of Laotian neutrality, which was approved by all 14 nations at the conference, the "People's Republic of China" was formally named in the same sentence as "the United States of America."

This of course, does not constitute diplomatic recognition of Communist China by the United States. It does constitute recognition in practice, however, of the existence of Communist China as an independent state, with which it may be necessary to negotiate and to agree upon international treaties. It is, in practice, recognition that the Communist state is sufficiently well established, and sufficiently legitimate, to carry out an international agreement in company with the United States and 12 other countries.

Herein lies its significance. We have never been able to understand why, in the United Nations, moral barriers should be raised against Red China and not against Red Russia. The United States policy has heretofore been adamant on this point; but there is a growing feeling, there as elsewhere, that this is making a distinction without a difference, and a mischievous one at that.

Communist China would be better in than out of every disarmament conference as well as every session of the U.N. General Assembly. The real trouble, we fancy, stems from the anomalous position which Chiang Kai-shek's Formosan regime occupies, and the imagined need at Washington of maintaining the fiction that this regime represents not itself but the 600 million Chinese on the mainland as well.

Washington policy was framed years ago in the expectation of an early successful invasion of mainland China by Chiang's forces with American aid. President Kennedy has never subscribed to this idea, and recently has been so far from welcoming that invasion that he has welcomed that invasion attempt on either side would not be tolerated. Time now for this enlightened attitude to be reflected in Washington policy with respect to Red China's admission to the United Nations. The example set at the Geneva discussions may prove a significant step in this direction.

EDITORIAL NOTES A spokesman for the eighth world congress of nudist societies, meeting in West Germany, has declared that "our chief aim is to be finally recognized by society." Well, not recognizing a nudist would be a darn difficult achievement.

Newspapers are regarded as an essential of modern daily life—as much so as milk and bread. A depends upon bringing the great and growing gap between the wealthy and the poor in this hemisphere and the underdeveloped, poverty-ridden south of the continent, and the untold effort, we are beginning to learn that to move out of the cramped, but present, and pre-logical conditions of a static tribal or feudal society is fully as Calvin MacDonald, who claims he became a Communist to serve as an agent for the RCMP, is continuing with his self-appointed task of issuing "revelations" and making "exposés." If he was a secret agent, the one thing to be expected of members of the K is to expose. If he wasn't, he is becoming a bore.

Real Cousteau, deputy federal leader of the Social Credit party, was quoted this week as saying his party will vote for any — that's right, any — no-confidence motion offered in the next sitting of the Commons. If he sticks to that stand, the life of the minority government is apt to be much shorter than has been suggested by any of the forecasts heard to date.

THE WALL BUILDER

SOME LESSONS FROM SPACE

As New Men View New Worlds

By ADLAI E. STEVENSON, U.S. Ambassador to the United Nations

Reviewed From the Saturday Review

"How beautiful is our earth!" exclaimed Major Gargarin as he came down from space. "Man, that view is tremendous," cried Colonel Gherasim, looking at the same view. These two men have more in common than either has with the ideologists of conquest. This is not just Pollyanna talk. Wars start in the blind, angry hearts of men. But it is hard to hate those who toil and hope to discover beside you, in a common man a man a venture. The Glens of our world could be new men in a quite new sense — the new men who, having seen our little planet in a whole new perspective, will be ready to accept as a profound spiritual insight the unity of mankind.

When I had the good fortune to conduct the astronauts and their families at the U.S. United Nations, and to witness the welcome that greeted them from room among all the fellows, I had a sense that men such as these belong to the new world which could one day be a great stride in the way of peace. And I believe they felt the same. Colonel Glenn said, I recall: "As space science and space technology grow... and become more ambitious, we shall be relying more and more on international team work... We have an infinite amount to learn both from nature and from each other. We must learn that we will be able to learn together and work together in peace."

These are the words of our "new men" — not a narrow arrogant, but a generous, and a sense of the great human family. Let no obstacles, however formidable, ever blind us to that vision.

This same spirit must animate the new world that is being deeply convinced that the tranquility of the human family in the future depends on the great and growing gap between the wealthy and the poor in this hemisphere and the underdeveloped, poverty-ridden south of the continent, and the untold effort, we are beginning to learn that to move out of the cramped, but present, and pre-logical conditions of a static tribal or feudal society is fully as

There may be misinterpretation of the reports that Canada had "borrowed" more than $1,000,000,000 to stabilize the dollar. This is not a new total amount named would be made available if needed by the borrower, but the great deal of the line of credit may never be needed, and upon that part of the interest has priority paid.

There may be misinterpretation of the reports that Canada had "borrowed" more than $1,000,000,000 to stabilize the dollar. This is not a new total amount named would be made available if needed by the borrower, but the great deal of the line of credit may never be needed, and upon that part of the interest has priority paid.

There may be misinterpretation of the reports that Canada had "borrowed" more than $1,000,000,000 to stabilize the dollar. This is not a new total amount named would be made available if needed by the borrower, but the great deal of the line of credit may never be needed, and upon that part of the interest has priority paid.

There may be misinterpretation of the reports that Canada had "borrowed" more than $1,000,000,000 to stabilize the dollar. This is not a new total amount named would be made available if needed by the borrower, but the great deal of the line of credit may never be needed, and upon that part of the interest has priority paid.

There may be misinterpretation of the reports that Canada had "borrowed" more than $1,000,000,000 to stabilize the dollar. This is not a new total amount named would be made available if needed by the borrower, but the great deal of the line of credit may never be needed, and upon that part of the interest has priority paid.

There may be misinterpretation of the reports that Canada had "borrowed" more than $1,000,000,000 to stabilize the dollar. This is not a new total amount named would be made available if needed by the borrower, but the great deal of the line of credit may never be needed, and upon that part of the interest has priority paid.

There may be misinterpretation of the reports that Canada had "borrowed" more than $1,000,000,000 to stabilize the dollar. This is not a new total amount named would be made available if needed by the borrower, but the great deal of the line of credit may never be needed, and upon that part of the interest has priority paid.

There may be misinterpretation of the reports that Canada had "borrowed" more than $1,000,000,000 to stabilize the dollar. This is not a new total amount named would be made available if needed by the borrower, but the great deal of the line of credit may never be needed, and upon that part of the interest has priority paid.

There may be misinterpretation of the reports that Canada had "borrowed" more than $1,000,000,000 to stabilize the dollar. This is not a new total amount named would be made available if needed by the borrower, but the great deal of the line of credit may never be needed, and upon that part of the interest has priority paid.

There may be misinterpretation of the reports that Canada had "borrowed" more than $1,000,000,000 to stabilize the dollar. This is not a new total amount named would be made available if needed by the borrower, but the great deal of the line of credit may never be needed, and upon that part of the interest has priority paid.

There may be misinterpretation of the reports that Canada had "borrowed" more than $1,000,000,000 to stabilize the dollar. This is not a new total amount named would be made available if needed by the borrower, but the great deal of the line of credit may never be needed, and upon that part of the interest has priority paid.

There may be misinterpretation of the reports that Canada had "borrowed" more than $1,000,000,000 to stabilize the dollar. This is not a new total amount named would be made available if needed by the borrower, but the great deal of the line of credit may never be needed, and upon that part of the interest has priority paid.

There may be misinterpretation of the reports that Canada had "borrowed" more than $1,000,000,000 to stabilize the dollar. This is not a new total amount named would be made available if needed by the borrower, but the great deal of the line of credit may never be needed, and upon that part of the interest has priority paid.

Remedy Found For Acute Gout

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen (C.M.D., F.R.C.P.)... ringworm agent, is effective also in the treatment of acute gout. Dr. Stanley L. Walker and Dr. Anthony W. Nissen of Brooklyn, N.Y., revealed the importance of this new remedy in 15 of 20 victims of the disease. This is understandable because of the fact that the chemical structure resembling colchicine, an old reliable for more than 200 years for acute attack. Improvement occurs within a few days following which there is an interval of several lasting months or years. In contrast to griseofulvin, colchicine does not cause the characteristic febrile reaction, even in large doses.

The clinical effects of colchicine come from its ability to ease swelling and inflammation in the involved joints. The painful and exquisitely tender big toe, for example, begins to feel better in 24 hours or less. Provided adequate doses are used. Colchicine is not a new remedy. But the period of freedom from pain gets shorter and shorter with each acute attack, and in time unless the uric acid level of the blood is kept down by the use of a drug such as probenecid.

Tablets containing a mixture of probenecid and colchicine are frequently in testing. The first takes care of the acute attack, and the second reduces the uric acid level. Two tablets a day of the combination decreases the uric acid level, and this is a small price to pay for relief from this century old ailment.

The kings of old and the famous victims of gout would have given their kingdoms for the new remedies. But there is no convincing evidence that gout can be done less than a concept fostered by writers and cartoonists from way back when. It is a metabolic disorder.

When probenecid is used, the excretion of uric acid is increased by the kidneys. Drink at least three quarts of liquid a day to help the uric acid crystallize in the urine and forming stones. (Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions, but the mail stamped, self-addressed envelope addresses request.)

F.A. writes: What can you give a drunken person to sober him up?

Simulants such as coffee help to sober a drunk person. Simulants such as a cold shower or an emetic that makes the individual vomit, and emetics are more modern remedies. Chloral hydrate, or the barbiturates, are more modern remedies to sober up a man who has had too much to drink. The alcohol is broken down by the liver, and he does to make the body eliminate the chemical at a faster rate.

HEAD BLOOD F.R.P. writes: Please explain the effects of a high blood pressure on the blood in the head.

Blood in the head does not strangle but thoughts do occasionally. The flow of blood from the head is increased if it is compressed by a tumor or is blocked by a clot.

Mrs. A. writes: This is a borderline diabetes.

A person with the mildest form of diabetes. The glucose tolerance test is only a test for diagnosing this condition. In your case, the result of the test may have been borderline.

POLY IN STOMACH L. writes: I have a stomach problem with a stomach poly.

It should be removed because of the possibility of malignancy. OUR YESTERDAYS (From the Guardian Files) TWENTY FIVE YEARS AGO (Aug. 4, 1937)

James W. O'Brien of Alton, was elected president at the annual meeting of the West Coast Liberal Association held yesterday at O'Leary.

Bill Maich, of Brantford, Ontario, claimant of the dominion heavyweight title, arrived in the city last night. He is scheduled to fight tonight with a young scrapper from Souda.

TEN YEARS AGO (Aug. 4, 1927) The speaker at Rotary today was O.L. Hedges, associate editor of Hunting and Fishing magazine with headquarters in Boston. He is an expert fisherman; conditions change, and some times a change does mean to be able to get a good catch.

Col. G. Elliott Fall was elected potato dealer representative on the P.E. Island Marketing Board at a meeting yesterday afternoon in the cultural room of the Vocational School.

MOVING ● Furniture moved any time. ● New temperature controlled, sprinkled, steel warehoused. ● Experienced men and equipment in moving equipment.

Jenkins Transfer Ltd. 2-1206

ROTHESAY COLLEGIATE SCHOOL 'Founded 1877' An Old New Brunswick School for Boys GRADES 7 THROUGH SENIOR MATRICULATION Why Train in Responsibility and Discipline? For many reasons but chiefly because of the advantages the School offers, such as: —The strong Christian influence —The small classes taught by experienced men —The sound Physical and Athletic programme —The Guidance of Master of Character and Personality

The Training in Responsibility and Discipline. For illustrated Brochure, details of Costs, Scholarships and Bursaries, etc., write to the Headmaster, C. H. BONNYCASTLE, B.A., LL.D., ROTHESAY, NEW BRUNSWICK

A Question of Blame

In a statement appearing elsewhere in today's Guardian, Attorney-General McQuaid has replied to an editorial published on this page yesterday under the title: "A Question of Justice." The editorial was based upon a Summerside report telling of an "unfortunate misunderstanding" through which a man was held in jail for a week there on a charge which "should never have come before the court."

The main purpose of Mr. McQuaid's statement is to establish that this needless jailing did not result from any failure on the part of the attorney-general's department, or the circumstance that the victim of crown prosecutor has been acquitted in Prince County since July 31.

It is a pleasure to accept Mr. McQuaid's statement on this point. It is unfortunate, however, that there has not been similar clarity in explaining or fixing the blame for the circumstance under which a man subsequently cleared was held in jail unnecessarily for a week.

Wherever the slip took place, and the latest suggestion is that it was a local Summerside matter, it was a bad one.

Meanwhile, if any good thing has come out of this situation, it lies in this declaration, which we accept, by Mr. McQuaid: "There will certainly be no denial of justice" to any citizen of this province on the part of the attorney-general's department so long as I have charge of the administration of that department."

Consistency Lacking

Tribilingual question in Canada has cropped up again, this time in British Columbia.

The controversy is occasioned by the comment alleged to have been made in Vancouver last week by Mr. Noe Bazinet, secretary-general of the French Catholic School Trustees Association of Canada, that the constitutional right of French Canadians to bilingual education is being ignored in Canada's most westerly province.

But the Hon. Leslie Raymond Peterson, minister of education in the Bennett government of British Columbia, who is almost as fluent in French as he is in English, says Mr. Bazinet's remarks were neither fair nor according to fact, that his government is doing everything possible to stress French as one of the official languages within British Columbia's education system, and that, outside of Quebec, British Columbia is the only Canadian province that makes the study of French compulsory from grade 8 up through high school.

"We are anxious," Mr. Peterson said, "that students learn how to speak this beautiful language."

It would appear from this exchange, that it is Mr. Peterson who is doing his best to be conciliatory and Mr. Bazinet who is being the dogmatist. If Quebec were showing a more open mind than it has so far shown toward the efforts of those who are waging the struggle for federal financial assistance from the federal government to the various provincial departments of education, then there might be more consistency in what Mr. Bazinet is attempting to do not only in British Columbia but in the other provinces.

So long, however, as each province, by virtue of the authority granted it under the British North

'Candy Store' For Bees

New York Times

Some call it bee balm or Oswego tea, some know it as wild bergamot, but botanists list it as Monarda didyma. Butterflies bumblebees and hummingbirds are attracted to its bright red, yellow or white flowers. It is a touch of color to every patch of it that blooms. It is the candy store of the bee world, the special treat of misadventurer swarms, and any gardener who has a patch of it will find it a most welcome sight. Its lure for the nectar gatherers, however, is only one aspect of this toupee-headed member of the mint family. Its blossom is a fragrant, spicy blend of lavender, clove, and eucalyptus, but it is the