If Vanderbilt should leave $5,000 to each working journalist in New York I believe it would keep his memory fresher than so much money spent in a marble mausoleum. Zenophon has done more for Xerxes than a thousand tombstones. When I die I intend to what money I have left to the press clubs of the country. I should consider it good sound sense to will $5,000 each to the press clubs of New York, Chicago, St. Louis, St. Paul and Kansas City.—Eli Perkins
