

Keep in mind that Scott's Emulsion contains the hypophosphites. These alone make it of great value for all affections of the nervous system.

It also contains glycerine, a most valuable, soothing and healing agent. Then there is the cod-liver oil, acknowledged by all physicians as the best remedy for poor blood and loss in weight.

These three great remedial agents blended into a creamy Emulsion, make a remarkable tissue builder.

The Transvaal War

Notes of the War.

General White makes the charge that the Boers have fired, if not exactly on a flag of truce, at least on a truce party. The good manners shown by Joubert's forces when first they began proceedings seem not to have been deeply enough rooted to stand the wear of the campaign.

Pictures of the mules' stampede at Nicholson's Nek are coming to hand, rather ahead of the mails. The affair was evidently a very mixed one. The mules went out with a mountain battery, the guns thereof being strapped on their backs. In the stampede they became part of a field battery attached to guns mounted on carriages—that or the artists are ignorant.

At the banquet in the city of London recently the Duke of Cambridge speaking on the war, said: We ought never to have allowed ourselves to be in the position in which the outbreak of war found us. I could cry over the valuable lives which might have been spared had we been better prepared.

Lord Salisbury in his Guildhall speech paid a special tribute to the work the Natal volunteers have done during the past few weeks. Their death and casualty list has been also drawing attention to the same work. The Natal troops are a credit to their country.

The statement from Ladysmith that the British guns do not reply to the Boer artillery because the concrete beds for the guns have not yet hardened, is interpreted in some quarters to mean simply that the British are husbanding their ammunition, as the Boer fire is only a trick to get the British to waste shells.

There is a curious romance connected with the family of the late General Sir William Symons, the first British general officer to fall in the African war. In 1780 the great-grandfather of the dead officer mysteriously disappeared, and the estate was about to pass into the hands of strangers when a claimant appeared. He was the son of a man who had lived for years in Liverpool, working there as a day laborer. The claimant, who was the grandfather of General Symons, succeeded in establishing his claim, and was recognized as the rightful heir to the property. The late general was created a knight in 1898.

The Montreal Star remarks that "there seems to be a good opportunity now for Canadian packing houses to make extensive sales of provisions for the British army in Africa. It is to be hoped that any food sent from Canada for the soldiers will be first-class. According to the cable reports one of the transport ships was delayed in its departure from England because great quantities of bad meat had to be thrown into the sea. The punishment for supplying bad provisions to soldiers should be very severe. It is bad enough to sell spoiled food to the general public, who are in a position to choose for themselves and are not obliged to purchase from any one dealer. But the soldier is at the mercy of the contractor, who supplies him with food. To send bad food to men who are fighting in defence of the Empire is as bad as to betray them to the enemy, and the punishment should be equally severe.

Lord Salisbury exercised characteristic reticence in speaking of the policy of the Imperial Government in South Africa, after the war is over, though he made it quite clear that foreign interference would not be tolerated. There is no reason why it should. This is a domestic affair of the British Empire, as to which no other nation has a right to speak. When the Boers fired the first shot after they had crossed the Natal frontier, they put an end to the conventions of 1881 and 1884, on which their independence rested. An act of war wipes out all treaties, and in the view of international law, the Transvaal, although in a state of rebellion, is now part of the British Empire. The Queen referred to it as "that portion of my empire," in the speech proffering Parliament, and there can be no question that its former status will never be restored. As Lord Rosebery put it, no conceivable Government could think of repeating the mistake made after Majuba. It was the ill-conceived policy of allowing the Boers to refuse equal rights to British subjects and to arm themselves for an attempt to overthrow British supremacy in South Africa that caused all the present troubles. The London Chronicle's view that Lord Salisbury intends to respect the national rights of the republics in the final settlement is absurd. The republics as such have no national rights. If the Boers get equal treatment as British subjects, it is all they can expect. One of the conditions Lord Salisbury lays down for the final settlement is "security against the recurrence of any such exertion in the future." The Boers will certainly not come out of the conflict with the power to give all this trouble over again. The establishment on a sure foundation of British supremacy and the realization of the idea of a united South African Dominion are the chief boons to be gained by the Empire at the cost of an enormous expenditure of money, and the lives of many brave men. They would not be lightly sacrificed by any government, after the experience of the last few years, and certainly not by a Government which has Lord Salisbury and Mr. Chamberlain among its leading members.—Montreal Gazette.

IT'S TOO RISKY

To undergo an operation for itching. Piles when Dr. A. W. Chase's Ointment is a surer, cheaper, easier way to cure.

Cruel, barbarous methods belong to the dark ages of the past. There was a time when a surgical operation was considered the only possible cure for piles. Not so now. Occasionally there is still found a physician who adheres to this dangerous and expensive method, but to every one who still believes in using the knife, ninety and nine recommend the use of Dr. Chase's Ointment.

Dr. C. M. Harlan, writing in The American Journal of Health, said: "We know that 'Dr. Chase's Ointment' meets all the requisitions of the highest standard of worth, that it will be held in high esteem wherever it is used, and consequently we endorse it to every reader."

By force of merit alone Dr. Chase's Ointment has won its way into this wide, wide world, until it has made the name of Dr. Chase familiar in almost every home, and won for the venerable discoverer the title of "America's Greatest Physician."

Dr. Chase's Ointment has never been known to fail as a cure for piles. It matters not whether blind, itching, bleeding or protruding. Dr. Chase's Ointment is an absolute and perfect cure.

PRISONER RELEASED. Victim of Kidney Disease Escapes From its Clutches by Means of Dodd's Kidney Pills

Sharbot Lake, Nov. 6.—Twenty years ago this month, John Nicholas Babcock first noticed the symptoms of Gravel and other Kidney troubles. Since that day he has never been free from pain until immediately previous to the report of his complete cure which appeared recently. He has been like a prisoner sentenced for life but his sentence has been up to-day.

He says: "After twenty years of pain caused by Gravel and other kidney trouble, I am pleased to make it known that I have been completely cured by one box of Dodd's Kidney Pills. During these years I have spent hundreds of dollars without receiving any lasting relief."
