11,000 In Brigade
The 27th Brigade, now roughly 11,000 strong all told, was authorized in May. The statement said "by the end of August the Government was satisfied that individual and unit training had reached that point where it could be dispatched overseas in the late autumn."

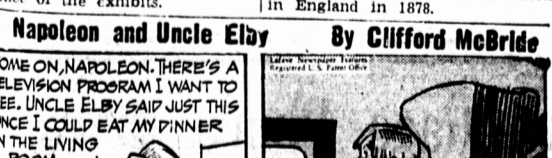

The brigade—a brigade group—is an outsize brigade or one equipped with arms it would not have if it weren't a separate formation—is mainly concentrated at Valcartier, Que.

Its formation marked a departure for peacetime in that 32 reserve army units were asked to raise its manpower.

Community Centre Planned For Kensington

A community centre for Kensington. That is the ambitious and praiseworthy project envisaged by the people of this progressive town and sponsored by the Junior Chamber of Commerce, the Community Centre and the Athletic Association there.

The idea of a community centre in the town is one that has been discussed for some time in the councils of the three organizations and by the leading business men of the community.

Today the first step will be taken to raise money for the establishment of a fund which before too long will be large enough to justify the sponsors in finalizing plans for this community centre.

The mammoth supper and street dance which opens this afternoon and continues into the night will undoubtedly attract large numbers of people and the proceeds will be used to establish this fund.

The community project has the enthusiastic support of the ladies who are determined to outdo the men of the town in working for the successful outcome of operation "Community Centre."

Should the undertaking succeed, and judging from the success of other projects sponsored by this progressive town it will, then Kensington will have something that many towns talk about but not so often attain. A place where all community efforts are centralized, drama clubs, choral clubs and many other worthy movements. Later it is hoped that a bowling alley will be installed in the basement.

Visitors to the town today will have the opportunity of seeing that the street paving programme has been completed and at 7:45 P.M. the streets will be officially opened by Town and Provincial Government officials.—S.

night. A crowd gathered at Buckingham Palace after the King's illness and the Queen's return were announced. But the royal car entered the palace grounds from the rear.

Princess Elizabeth and the Duke had planned to fly to London tonight in preparation for their departure for Canada Sept. 25.

The King's illness apparently will make no difference in the royal couple's plans. A Buckingham Palace spokesman said there was "no question of cancelling their trip" and that they would leave as scheduled next Tuesday.

The bulletin, issued unexpectedly from the palace, was signed by physicians who have made close studies of x-rays photographs of the King's chest. It said:

"During the King's recent illness a series of examinations have been carried out including radiology and bronchoscopy.

The investigations now show structural changes to have developed in the lung. His Majesty has been advised to stay in London for further treatment."

BRITONS ANXIOUS
The bulletin heightened the anxiety of Britons who have been concerned for several years about the Monarch's health.

The King has looked worn and tired in newspaper photographs published in recent months, and there has been much worried comment in the newspapers about this.

The bulletin indicated that a bronchoscope was used in the examination of the King. It is an instrument introduced into the mouth and passed down into the larynx and windpipe, to enable doctors to detect and remove foreign substances from the bronchial tubes.

Queen Mary drove to the palace during the day and stayed for 90 minutes.

An announcement in November, 1948, that the King was suffering from "an obstruction to the circulation through the arteries of the leg" was the first indication that his health was not perfectly sound.

That announcement was followed by cancellation of all public engagements for some months including a planned tour of Australia and New Zealand. The tour later was arranged for 1952. It was said at that time that although the King's resistance was low and he was tired, there was no cause for concern.

In March of the following year an operation known as "lumbar sympathectomy" was performed to improve the blood supply to the right leg.

The King convalesced from the successful operation until June 21, 1949, when he carried out his first public engagement after his illness.

The King's lung condition follows an attack of catarrhal inflammation of the lung last June.

Among the doctors signing the bulletin were Sir Daniel Davies and Sir Horace Evans, physicians to the King since 1949. Clement Price Thomas, who lectures on the surgical treatment of tuberculosis, and Dr. George Cordiner, the radiologist whom the King visited at his consulting rooms 10 days ago.

MINISTER STRESSES

their efforts in making the Fair a success.

Enlargement Planned
Mr. W. R. Shaw, Deputy Minister of Agriculture, who introduced Mr. Baker stated that it is the desire of the Agricultural Department to enlarge the competitions into at least a two day affair.

"This is our first attempt at centralizing in one provincial feature the youth projects of various kinds," he stated. "I am very highly pleased with the results and the interest displayed. The young people participating have come from all over Prince Edward Island and there are practically no absentees."

"The showing of livestock was particularly edifying and the junior exhibitors showed an example in sportsmanship and promptness in getting their animals in the ring that might be copied with advantage by the older exhibitors at the Provincial Exhibition.

"The skill and attention of the juniors is also a compliment of the training received under the direction of the Fieldmen of the Department of Agriculture. I am very highly satisfied with this fine educational project in all its divisions among the boys and girls of the Province," he concluded.

Model Farms
Where Savage Battles Fought
By Jack Henry
CLEVES, Germany, Sept. 18 (Reuters)—Reclaimed forest land where British and Canadian troops fought their most savage battles against the Germans in the Second World War is today being successfully farmed by Germans expelled from East Europe.

In the northwest corner of the Reichswald, a large forest which skirts part of the German-Dutch border, three new agricultural communities are rising rapidly on cleared forest land which still bears the scars of fierce fighting between crack Canadian-British infantry and Hitler's elite SS troops during the final months of the war.

A grim reminder of heavy Allied losses in this area is the cemetery containing the graves of 7,800 dead within the boundaries of the new farming district.

The German settlers, some of whom have been tilling the land in this area for more than a year, frequently stand in quiet homage on the roadway facing the long lines of white crosses.

The three agricultural settlements represent one of the most impressive achievements of German initiative in post-war land reform and in resettling refugees from the east.

The North Rhine-Westphalian government has spent between 9,000,000 and 10,000,000 marks since 1948 on the project.

In this period, 380 families numbering 2,000 persons have been established in new homes with a future in a modernized German agriculture.

Today, hundreds of near-white concrete homes with red-tiled roofs stand in orderly rows along new roads surrounded by cultivated land.

S'ide Home, School Welfare Group Banquet

The annual banquet of the Home and School Welfare Group of Summerside held a first evening in Robson's Restaurant opened the season's meetings. The president, Mr. A. H. Hubley and Mr. R. T. Henthorn led a singsong with Mrs. Creelman MacArthur as accompanist, prior to the dinner.

An attractive arrangement of gladiolus adorned the head table and the smaller tables, in cabaret style, were centered with bouquets of sweet peas. The flowers were donated by Dr. and Mrs. W. B. Howatt, Mr. and Mrs. George T. Clarke and Mr. and Mrs. Keith Compton.

The program was in charge of Mrs. C. G. Robinson and the following numbers were rendered: Vocal solos "For You Alone" and "Sylvia" by Mr. Ivor Phillips; vocal solos "Valley of Laughter" and "Last Night" by Mrs. Clarence Mercer; piano solos Sonata in C by Scarlatti and waltz in E minor by Chopin by Mr. G. Chaisson, instructor in music at the High School.

The following guests were present: Mr. Conlon J. Justice and Mrs. Thane A. Campbell, Mr. and Mrs. J. Watson MacNaught, Mr. and Mrs. R. MacNevin, Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Agnew, Mrs. Arras Arsenault, Mr. and Mrs. Ira MacDonald, Mr. and Mrs. Ned Conlon, Mr. Thomas Hall and Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Sheen.

Appreciation was expressed to Mr. Conlon for records loaned from station CJRW and to Mr. Clarence Mercer for the availability of the school record player for dancing which was enjoyed by the many present. Mr. J. R. Murphy called the square dances.—S.

HIT SNAG

ern Mediterranean countries; that Denmark will accept the will of the majority.

Asks Adjournment
Denmark's Foreign Minister, Ole Bjorn Kraft, brought at least a 24-hour suspension in the secret discussion this morning by asking for a "brief adjournment" so he could communicate with his government in Copenhagen.

Norway, linked with Denmark in hostility to the move to project the coalition far beyond the North Atlantic area, backed the arguments against it anew by saying she would not stand in the way of admission if the majority favored it. That left it well up to Denmark, a country of 4,000,000 persons.

Mr. Kraft, a wartime underground worker who survived five Nazi bullets, went from the meeting to cable Copenhagen a full report on the situation and to seek new instructions from the all-party group which charts Denmark's foreign policy.

More than two hours of discussion yesterday also showed that the admission of 13th and 14th members enjoys no universal popularity among the existing members—the U. S., U. K., Canada, France, Italy, Portugal, Denmark, Norway, Holland, Belgium, Luxembourg and Iceland.

Canada Favors Admission
Canada's External Affairs Minister Pearson put this country on record as favoring full membership as the best course in the circumstances. The United States and United Kingdom came out strongly for it.

The Danes and Norwegians are reported to have suggested that a Mediterranean pact would be better, that the alliance should not jeopardize the security of existing members by further diluting their strength, that the 12-nation setup is only beginning to function properly and expanded machinery would cause new problems.

This hostility was not confined to those two. Holland, for one, went along in a number of points but indicated that she would not veto admission—which any member can do since unanimous consent is necessary.

Turkey and Greece have asked for full membership in the pact and have indicated they don't like the idea of a separate Mediterranean alliance.
