Folks Showered With Star-dust Observer Finds

By ROBERT GEIGER
Associated Press Staff Writer

DENVER, Col., July 20—Working a star dust "mine" he discovered on his house roof has led Harvey H. Nininger, curator of meteors at the Colorado Museum of Natural History, to conclude that 19,000 times as much star dust falls on the earth as most scientists estimated previously.

(On the night of July 11 a huge meteor swept over Western Ontario. A few days later an 88-pound meteorite that Dan Solomon found in his beetfield near Dresden, Ont. was sold to an oil exploration man for $4, the beet farmer being glad to get rid of it at the price, as his wife was frightened when the falling rock landed near her.)

Scientifically, star dust is the stuff brushed off the surface of falling meteors by air friction. Nininger, who has made a lifetime study of meteors, says these particles settle on earth, increase its size and weight, boost the pull of gravity and change the length of days and years.

Scientists had "guessed" that about 6,000 tons of it fall upon the earth annually. Nininger's preliminary investigations indicate the amount is closer to 113,000,000 tons.

In about 17,000,000,000 years this would make a mile deep crust of celestial dust on the earth.

"That is enough star dust to make geologists and astronomers sit up and take notice," says Nininger.

"Meteors fall at the rate of about 4,800 miles a minute. The friction of the meteor against air makes that of a buzz saw going through hard maple very mild by comparison. This terrific friction causes a thin layer of the meteor's surface to melt," the scientist said.

For months Nininger has been investigating. He tied magnets to small observation balloons and tethered them high over the mountains west of Denver. The magnets came down loaded with meteor dust.

He calculated the amount of meteor dust that fall on measured surfaces over a period of weeks, in the way the weather bureau measures snow and rain fall. Then he applied this calculation to the earth's surface.

"Don't worry about star dust coming down to bury civilization," he says. "The amount that settles is equal to no more than the thickness of a newspaper page in 1,000 years."

RECIPE FOR MEAT WAS EXPENSIVE

SAINT JOHN, N. B., July 21—(CP)—The most expensive three-quarters of a pound of meat ever heard of in these parts has been in the possession of local customs officials for a week.

Mrs. M. Sandler, New York, wrote her daughter-in-law, Mrs. N. Sandler, of nearby Fairville, a recipe for pickled meat and mailed a sample separately. Original cost of the meat was about 20 cents, postage from New York was 26 cents.

Mrs. N. Sandler's husband to whom the meat was addressed at Fairville was advised that the Veterinary Director General, Ottawa, had ruled it would be necessary for him to furnish a sworn affidavit that the meat originated in the United States and was [illegible] personal use and not for resale.

Expenses of [illegible] ...rville to Saint John and return, and getting the affadavit, have brought the cost of the meat to $6.56. But Sandler will have to make another trip to the city and pay a Justice of the Peace for a second affidavit. The first one was made out for his father-in-law in whose care the meat was addressed. Officials said Sandler himself should fill the affidavit.

Toronto Dignitary Visits The Island

At Rustico church on July 16, was joyfully celebrated the first public visit of His Excellency the Most Rev. J. C. McGuigan to his native home. Young and old united in making memorable the celebration which was inaugurated by a Pontifical High Mass sung by the distinguished prelate with his cousin, Rev. James Murphy as High priest; Rev. J. C. Pitre, pastor of Rustico, and Rev. W. McGuigan, cousin of the celebrant, as deacons of honor; Rev. Louis Duggan of the cathedral staff as deacon; Rev. T. Butler as subdeacon; and Rev. Eric Robin as Master of Ceremonies. Rev. Douglas McNeill of North Rustico was present in the sanctuary.

The parish altar boys who served were: Cross bearer, Leo Gallant; acolytes, Henri Doiron and Gerard Pineau; censer bearers, James Gallant and Adrien Pineau; Urbain Doiron, Alyre Pineau and Clarence Blanchard were missal, mitre and crozier bearers respectively.

Archbishop McGuigan

As the procession from the presbytery entered the church, the choir under the direction of Mr. Andre Gallant sang "Jubilate Deo". His Excellency advanced to bless the window which he donated in memory of his revered parents. At this moment, the picture of his venerable mother who died only a year ago, mentally appeared to us and unconsciously we repeated:

"Thy own sweet smile I see
The same that oft in childhood solaced me"

Then began the Holy Sacrifice of the Mass always so impressive but even more so when adorned by the beautiful religious ceremonies and vestments of a Pontifical High Mass. The century-old St. Augustine church added to the grandeur of the event for it had been decorated to honor one of the most eminent Canadian dignitaries of the Catholic Church.

At the Gospel, the pastor read an address of welcome in French and the following one in English:

Dearly beloved brethren: It is our happy privilege to have with us today one of the most illustrious sons of this old parish of Rustico. Almost a year ago, as we were preparing for the feast of our century-old church, our hearts were gladdened with the expectation that we would have with us on that occasion, our most distinguished son in the person of His Excellency Archbishop McGuigan. However, we were saddened when news reached us a short while prior to that memorable day that due to the stress of Episcopal duties, His Excellency could not be with us to celebrate the festive occasion. He assured us, however, that he would visit his dear old native parish later and today that promise has become for us a reality.

It is not my intention this morning to dwell in detail upon the successful career of this eminent prelate. His priestly life is an open book, each page of which we have all read with eagerness. His whole career has been one of unusual brilliancy and scholarly attainment, a career of which we his co-parishioners are justly proud. Today we feel that no greater honor could be given to us than to have His Excellency offer up for us for the first time since his consecration the Holy Sacrifice of the Mass. Although distance separates him from his native parish, he has always cherished fond memories of the good people of Rustico and especially this grand old church in which he so often worshipped in his youth and where he received so frequently the sacraments which enriched the soul of his boyhood days. I think we are not presuming too much when we say that this church holds for him loving and lasting memories, for here he received the sacraments of Baptism, Penance, Eucharist, Confirmation and lastly Holy Orders.

Those memories are so dear to him that he wished to place in this sanctuary a souvenir portraying his close association with the church of his native parish. The beautiful memorial window in memory of his beloved parents adorns this Sanctuary and symbolizes the outstanding events from the days of his childhood to the day when he stood before this altar, a priest of God. To him it recalls hallowed memories of happy days, to us it will recall in grateful remembrance a noble churchman whose career has been an object of our just pride.

As we kneel before God's altar during the Holy Sacrifice of the Mass, from our hearts will frequently go forth a prayer that his apostolic labors may continue to bear fruit a hundred fold in the Metropolitan See of Toronto.

On behalf of the parishioners of St. Augustine's Parish I thank Your Excellency not only for the precious gift that now embellishes our sanctuary but also for your gracious presence here on this occasion which I can assure Your Excellency will be a memorable one in the history of this parish."

The visiting prelate after thanking the people for their expressions of welcome, praise and gratitude and after paying eloquent tribute both to the former pastor of Rustico, Rt. Rev. Mgr. Chiasson, who had taught him his catechism and given him his first holy communion and also to the present rector, co-parishioner and acquaintance of his youth, recalled cherished and pious souvenirs of his boyhood days in the parish. Then in earnest and inspiring language, the speaker referred to the far-reaching effects which the good examples of parents have on their children and he urged the people to cling to the noble faith of their ancestors; to be loyal to King, Home and Country; to practice brotherly charity with their neighbors; to love and serve God faithfully. Begging God's choicest blessings, he offered the Mass which he was about to celebrate for the material and spiritual welfare of those present as well as for the repose of the souls of their deceased friends.

The hearts of the congregation which filled the church to capacity were filled with emotion by the generous and sincere words of their former co-parishioner. They felt that his soul throbbed in unison with that of the poet who wrote:

Still o'er these scenes my memory wakes
And fondly broods with miser care;
Time but the impression stronger makes
As streams, their channels deeper wear.

After Mass, an address was read in French by Mr. Emile Doucet and the following one in English by Mr. Curley of Hunter River:

Rejoicing in the special and esteemed privilege that is ours today, gladly we tender you our best and most cordial greetings to bid you welcome, a thousand welcomes to your old home parish. Though your stay among us be ever so brief, we are more grateful than words can tell, for your goodness and kindly consideration in coming to your own St. Augustine's for this joyous occasion.

Most sincerely, too, we thank Your Excellency, for the beautiful memorial you so graciously donated to our church, in affectionate remembrance of your beloved parents. Truly and well, does the artistic design of this magnificent window symbolize the supernatural gifts that have so richly blessed your life since first the sanctifying water of grace made you a child of God.

Yes, here in this cherished sanctuary, Holy Mother Church endowed you with her undying treasurers of Faith and Love, in her sacraments of Baptism, the Blessed Eucharist, Confirmation and Holy Orders. The Memorial you have dedicated this morning reverently recalls these memorable events of your life. Thus the commemoration of these hallowed ceremonies enshrines the revered memory of your dear father and mother. Wisely and faithfully, did these worthy Christians watch over their children, guiding them, by their own inspiring example, in the ways of Truth and Virtue — the way that, for Your Excellency, led in God's own time to His Altar of Sacrifice.

As we think of them now—your dear departed parents, the present scenes to blend into the past and we visualize them as they came and went among us. Kindly and gratefully we remember them, for their goodness of heart, their friendly words and deeds. We know you, too, must be with them in thought, as you recall how often in other years, you knelt beside them in this old church and how they joyed in your joy, on the grand, never-to-be-forgotten days when God's ineffable Sacraments brought His Haven into your soul.

Well may it be said such lives, as those your dear departed parents led, nobly exemplify the true Christian's unfailing hope, with its blessed fruition, that wins the Master's own infallible praise: "Well done, good and faithful servant!"

Although we deeply regretted Your Excellency could not be with us for our Centennial Celebration last summer, our gladness today seems all the greater for our disappointment then. With all due reverence, we feel you really belong here—to Rustico—once a Bishop's See but better known now as the native parish of three illustrious Archbishops. The spirit and the dignity of the Episcopate, it would seem, was destined to abide with the sons of St. Augustine's although, long since, its Bishopric was transferred to St. Dunstan's.

Not without reason, then, and a just pride, do we hold, in benediction and reverent affection, Your Excellency, with the late saintly and scholarly Archbishop O'Brien of Halifax and his present successor in that historic See the distinguished Archbishop McNally. No need to say that for us the descendants of the Breton and the Gall of our storied parish, Rustico's Trinity of Prelates is a royal record—yea, a crowning glory.

Thus, revered Excellency, as we greet you, on this memorable day, our hearts would voice their most sincere tribute of loyal, affectionate homage. Since the days you were with us here since the glorious May morning of your Holy Ordination, twenty-one years ago, your apostolic life and work tell how blessedly, in this "short space you have lived a long time." In your splendid achievements as priest and prelate, we rejoice. Our kindliest wishes and prayers follow you in your great Archdiocese of Toronto as they did in your far western See of Regina. May the Lord of the Harvest, bounteously bless and fruitify your labors for His honor and glory in St. Michael's cherished fold!

Our last word said, we beg you, dear Archbishop, to give us your apostolic blessing, in remembrance of your beloved parents who, as they lived among us, in the distant past, truly fulfilled the Apostle's behest: "Walk in love."

A spiritual bouquet was then presented as a testimony of the gratitude of the parishioners.

His Excellency replied that he would treasure these beautifully illuminated addresses and that he appreciated their spiritual offering for "Prayer moves the Hand which rules the universe."

The Archbishop and priests then retired to the rectory where dinner was served by the capable house-keeper, Mrs. Dunn, assisted by Mrs. Louis Pineau.

At 4.30, Solemn Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament was given by His Excellency, who, once more rejoiced in the privilege of benefiting his friends by calling down God's blessings upon them.

A never-to-be-forgotten day had ended its joys; the long anticipated visit was nearing its close; but a lasting bond of affection and gratitude had been sealed which, till His Excellency's next visit will link his name with ours as we raise our hebits in prayer to our mutual Father in Heaven.

That group 1 be admitted without entrance examinations and study such subjects as will be equivalent to subjects taught in any high school in the Dominion, so that upon completing first and second year at Prince of Wales College this group will be eligible for admission to any college in the Dominion, and that group 2 or those studying for teachers' certificates, continue the first year course as it now stands, that they be examined at the end of first year for their teachers' certificates, and upon passing such examinations be given their credit of second class license.
