British PM Goes To U.S. Today

By FRASER WIGHTON LONDON (Reuters) Prime Minister Harold Macmillan flies to Washington tonight for private talks with President Eisenhower—and perhaps a round of golf. The 64-year-old prime minister has completed a tour of the British Commonwealth since he last saw Eisenhower at the NATO heads of government meeting in Paris last December. Two months earlier, he visited Washington at the height of the furor over Russia's first Sputnik. He agreed with the president on a declaration that the countries of the non-Communist world are interdependent. Worldly events have moved swiftly since that time. The United States has suffered a recession. Chances of a summit conference are growing. Gen. Charles de Gaulle has risen to power in France. These and other developments will be discussed by Macmillan and Eisenhower during the prime minister's one week away from London. Macmillan will fly to Ottawa Wednesday for two days of talks with Prime Minister John Diefenbaker. He also will address both Houses of the Canadian Parliament at 10 a.m. Wednesday. One of the subjects for discussion in Ottawa will be arrangements for a Commonwealth economic and trade conference opening in Montreal Sept. 15, the biggest such meeting in 25 years. The Montreal conference also will figure high in the Washington discussions. Economic problems of the United States are closely linked with those of the sterling area, to which all Commonwealth countries except Canada belong. Macmillan will make no secret of his view that the defence of the non-Communist world cannot be assured or the sympathy of the uncommitted nations won by military agreements alone. It is at least as important, he feels, to build up the strongest possible credit base for the free world's trade—a task in which America, as the great creditor country, can give invaluable help.

Parliament At A Glance

By THE CANADIAN PRESS Thursday, June 5, 1958 Finance Minister Fleming tabled in the Commons a tariff board report recommending a slightly higher tariff on British wool cloth. The Commons debated a CCF bill to limit interest rates to 12 per cent on all loans not already controlled by federal law. Hazen Argue (CCF—Assiniboia), the bill's sponsor, said controls are needed on "fabulously" high interest rates being charged by many. Egan Chambers (PC—Montreal St. Lawrence-St. George) sympathized with Mr. Argue's motives but said the measure might backfire by limiting consumer buying. William M. Bendickson (L—Kenora—Rainy River) proposed committee study of the whole question. Senator Ralph Horner (PC—Saskatchewan) said the idea of saving to become wealthy is as outdated as the ox cart: "we must spend more to get rich today." Friday, June 6, 1958 The Commons meets at 11 a.m. EDT to discuss works department estimates. The Senate is adjourned until 8 p.m. Tuesday.

Urge Expansion Of King's College

Expansion of facilities at the University of King's College in Halifax and in church schools is demanded an immediate necessity, Canon H. L. Puxley, president of the university, has reported to the Anglican Church Diocesan Synod here. His report said enrolment last year at King's was the highest in history. Canon Puxley said a second residence costing $500,000 must be built within three to five years. The Canada Council would pay half the cost if the college embarks on a building program, he said. At present the King's College development fund has $1,006,016 in pledges and $614,223 in cash donations. The report of Lloyd R. Gesner, headmaster of King's College School at Windsor, N. S., said boys must now be refused admission because of lack of space. It was hoped that a financial campaign now in progress would permit completion of a new 10-classroom building next September. The delegates unanimously approved a resolution asking the Provincial Education Department to remove the alleged inaccuracies.

Large Crowd At Hank Snow Show

Decked out in the finest of finery, a bright yellow outfit bejeweled with sparklers, Hank Snow the Singing Ranger, came back to his old stomping grounds last night and thrilled a crowd of country and western fans at the Sport Arena. It's been quite some time since he was last here but there are still those who can recall the infancy of the career of Hank when his "golden voice" echoed throughout "Old Home Week". Along with the Rainbow Ranch Boys, Cowboy Copus, Stoney Cooper and his better half, Wilma Lee, the Hank Snow Show included the newlyweds, Jimmy Rodgers Snow son of the famous senior Snow, and Carolee, the daughter of Stoney and Wilma. The Rainbow Ranch Boys, donning a powder blue western outfit, formed the background for the arrangements of Cowboy Copus, and Jimmie Snow. Included among Hank's repertoire for the evening were the hits of yesterday such as Carribbean, I'm Moving On, I've Got a Tangled Mind, Let Me Go Lover, as well as his current hit paraders, Big Wheels and I'm Hurtin' All Over. As if keeping with the mood of things Jimmie and Carolee combined their talents on Just Married and Dreaming.

Anglican Synod Synod Report Is Critical Of History Text

Canada, he said, allowed civil marriages. FUND RAISING CAMPAIGN An amendment to a resolution and the resolution itself were defeated yesterday following a closed debating period at the Synod. The debate highlighted the Synod's final day as the pro's and con's of the matter were discussed throughout the morning and up until 4:30 in the afternoon. The resolution as it was originally set forth called for an Executive Committee to request the Synod to approve the appointment of a Director of Stewardship, to take charge of a fund raising campaign with in the Diocese, visiting each parish and bringing the donations up to their potential. The amendment to the resolution stated that the Diocese should appoint the Wells organization, who are a professional outfit dealing solely in fund raising work for churches, for a three-year period and that following that period a Director of Stewardship be appointed to keep the new high standards of the canvass. A standing vote brought about a count of 76-74 in favor of the Wells organization. However, a committee headed by lay member R.D. Sutton moved a vote by order. By this means the clergy and the laymen cast a separate vote and the count of the two separate votes must be either for or against. If the clergy vote for the resolution and the laymen against it the resolution is defeated. When the vote was done through ballot the clergy voted for the amendment and the laymen against it. When the original resolution was out to vote, also by order, the clergy voted against and the laymen for; thus defeating the resolution and its amendment and leaving the Synod where they were six hours before. REPORTS Several reports were also heard before the delegates convened for the supper hour. Included were those of the laymen and lay readers' and the report of the Cathedral Church of All Saints in Halifax, the mother church of the Diocese. It was noted by E.B.N. Cochran, Dean of Nova Scotia and Rector of All Saints, that work on the structure and installation of a new heating system had cost the church in the vicinity of $30,000. In addition to this, it was noted that the church had obtained a parcel of land between the church and the Cathedral Tennis Courts from the city and Rev. Cochran felt that it was time to construct a Diocesan Center. In relationship to this, he brought forth a resolution, which was carried to the effect that by the fall of 1960, the Center be completed so that the Diocese will be able to celebrate its 250th Anniversary of the beginning of Anglican Church life in Nova Scotia and also the 50th Anniversary of the erection of All Saints. It was also noted in the resolution that this would be a co-operative effort composed of the following bodies: The Synod of the Diocese of Nova Scotia, the Dean and Chapter, the Cathedral congregation in the church of England, Institute. The report of the Diocesan Council of Social Service was commenced just before Bishop Waterman ordered a recess. However two resolutions, one dealing with the establishment of Family Courts and the other to urge the Nova Scotia govern-
