

THE MARITIME OPEN

By NICK MILLMORE

The Maritime Open

THE MARITIME Golf meet with the "mostest" (money and prestige) in the annual Open is underway at the Belvedere Golf and Winter Club this morning, 9:30 a.m., with 71 top-notch golfers trying for that important No. 1 position.

Two-year-olds can win top honors. The amateurs will be playing for fun and merchandise. In case you've had the idea that the pros will be walking off with most of the top placings, forget it. Most of the amateurs in today's tournament have both the knowledge and ability to shoot close to par, but they can't make their "Amateur" from the game they can't win the big money. Amateurs must have an eight or under handicap.

Persons covetous to walk off with a good share of the Olands Limited money are Ron Leclair and Jim Vano, instructor at Westview, Augusta, Maine. Vano has won the Maine Open twice, the Maine Junior title five successive years and the Maine Jo title. We haven't seen him hit the ball yet but they say he can drive with the best of them.

Leclair, defending Maine professional champion and medalist winner at the Rhode Island, U.S. Open, qualifying round, is warning up for the U.S. pro circuit, which he hopes to join in a couple of weeks.

One fellow we'll have our eye on through the tournament is "Butch" O'Hearn, Dartmouth. The 21-year-old O'Hearn, from a family of dedicated golfers, won the Nova Scotia Open championship last week, whipping a host of the Maritime pros. "Butch," who turned in some outstanding performances as a Junior two and three years ago, will have to be rated among the top amateur contenders.

There is a saying among Island golf critics that Mainlanders will be the "shock-out" on the Charlotteville course when the competition gets tough because most of them only play here once or twice a year and because the greens at Belvedere are faster than those of the Island pros.

Sixteen of the 71 taking part today will be from Island clubs. Leading the list will be Charlotteville Pro Cecil Dowling, and Green Gables' Errol Nicholson.

Art MacKenzie, Charlotteville, always strong on his home course, is a top contender among the pros. He has won the P.E.I.—N.B. Willingdon Cup team four times and two years ago won a host of medals including the Island championship and the Island pro circuit, also awarded.

Three mainland pros who will be "blasting off today" are, left to right, Doug Sanders, Algonquin; Don Sinclair, Riverside; and John and Al Fletcher, Royal Montreal.

Genial Sports Organizer Passes Away In Montreal

MONTREAL (CP)—Leo Dandurand, whose name became synonymous with the promotion, development and progress of major sports, died early Friday at his home in suburban Westmount. He would have been 76 July 9.

Dandurand was interested in all sports. He had a Midas touch, born of extraordinary executive ability and a genuine love for the game. It was Dandurand who, with two partners, bought Montreal Canadiens for $11,000 after the First World War and astutely built them into the famed Flying Frenchmen of hockey. The club was sold for $165,000 16 years ago.

It was Dandurand who virtually made big-time football in Montreal after the Second World War by taking over a non-sports Big Four team, reorganizing it as the Montreal Alouettes and shepherding it into a powerful club.

He broke into football in 1946 and formed the Alouettes Club. He served as president and part owner until 1951 and again as president from 1954 to 1956.

In hockey Dandurand helped to bring along such stars as Howie Morenz, Aurel Joliat, Rene Lacombe, Billy Boucher and others.

In his football venture he was associated with Lew Hayman, then general manager of Toronto Argos, and Eric Craddock, Toronto stock broker.

In partnership with the late Joe Cattarinich he was responsible for one of the first big-money horse races in the United States. It was a $100,000 race in 1905 at Chicago's Washington Park in which they invested $130,000.

Dandurand also became a director of the Louisiana Jockey Club, New Orleans, and the Fairmount Jockey Club, East St. Louis, Ill.

Dandurand became an authority on almost every sport. He was a member of newspaper men who could call him at any hour of the day or night for information or advice.

Although never connected directly with rugby and soccer, he was fond of both and attended many games.

SANTA CLAUS IS FAVORITE

Irish Sweepstake Derby Goes To The Wire Today

By ALAN HARVEY
LONELY CP Santa Claus apparently a racing freak, goes to the post today seeking the $25,000 (105,000) prize share in the Irish sweepstake derby. Defeat is considered out of the question.

"This horse is a phenomenon," said Irish expert Sped. In the Epsom Derby, he was last for a long way, then gradually picked up his field one by one and was going away at the end.

Santa Claus, winner of the June 3 Derby at Epsom, was an odds-on favorite at 4-5 overnight to defeat 19 rivals in the third running of the sweepstake, contested over 1 1/2 miles at the Curragh race course 25 miles south of Dublin.

WENT LAME IN RACE His opponents include light-raced Dielante II, owned by Lawrence Galt of Philadelphia and third to Santa in the Epsom classic; Sir Humphrey de Trafford's Louheared, which went inexplicably lame in the Epsom race; and other promising horses such as Pop Singer; Billy Pury's Anselmo, fourth at 1901 in the English Derby.

Fastidious English paddock critics sometimes refuse to take Santa Claus seriously because, they say, he has straight pasterns and a too "narrow" front.

The pattern, rather like a man's wrist, is the joint linking the hoof to the end of the cannon-bone. Turf theory is that it should be slanted to act as a shock-absorber.

The Irish pony that Santa's pasterns may be straight, all right, but that the boy colt's powerful shoulders are capable of taking the burden of his powerful galloping stride.

As for the son of Chamoisne being "narrow in front" or somewhat pigeon-chested, the Irish pony that Santa's pasterns may be straight, all right, but that the boy colt's powerful shoulders are capable of taking the burden of his powerful galloping stride.

Minor Teams Play Today The Charlotteville Minor Baseball system will get underway at Memorial Field Saturday, with practice for Little League teams and registration for Bantams.
