

Relief of Lucknow.

[EXTRACT FROM TENNYSON'S LATEST POEM.]

Banner of England, not for a season, O banner of Britain hast thou floated in conquering battle or flapt to the battle-cry!

Ay, but the foe sprung his mine many times, and it chanced on a day soon as the blast of that underground thunder clap echoed away.

Then on another wild morning, another wild earthquake out-tore clean from our lines of defence ten or twelve good paces or more.

Mark him—he falls! then another, and him, too, and down goes he. Had they been bold enough then, who can tell but the traitors had won?

Thanks to the kindly dark faces who fought with us, faithful a few, fought with the bravest amongst us, and drove them, and smote them, and slew.

Hark, canonade, fusillade! is it true what was told by the scout? Outram and Havelock breaking their way through the fell mutineers!

All on a sudden the garrison utter a jubilant shout. Havelock's glorious Highlanders answer with conquering cheers.

Blessing the wholesome white faces of Havelock's good Fusiliers, kissing the war-hardened hand of the Highlander wet with their tears!

Dance to the pibroch!—saved!—we are saved!—is it you?—is it you? Saved by the valour of Havelock, saved by the blessing of Heaven!

And ever aloft on the palace roof the old banner of England blew.

An Asparagus Bed.

He who lives in the country and has no asparagus bed has at least one heavy sin of omission on his conscience for which he never can give an adequate excuse.

George Eliot's Sayings.

See this difference between the impression a man makes on you when you walk by his side in familiar talk, or look at him in his home, and the figure he makes when seen from a lofty historical level.

The beginning of hardship is like the first taste of bitter food; it seems for a moment unbearable; yet if there is nothing else to satisfy our hunger, we take another bite, and find it possible to go on.

The finest language, I believe, is chiefly made up of unimposing words, such as "light," "sounded," "stars," "music,"—words really not worth looking at, or hearing, in themselves, any more than "chips," or "sawdust;" it is only that they happen to be the signs of something unspeakably great and beautiful.

When death, the great reconciler, has come, it is never our tenderness that we repent of, but our severity.

There is no despair so absolute as that which comes with the first moments of our first great sorrow—when we have not yet known what it is to have suffered and be healed, to have despaired and to have recovered hope.

The mother's yearning, that completest type of the life in another life, which is the essence of real human love, feels the presence of the cherished child, even in the base, degraded man.

WHY BEES WORK IN THE DARK.—A life-time might be spent in investigating the mysteries hidden in a bee-hive, and still half of the secrets would be undiscovered.

Use PLAIN WORDS.—Who can enjoy a chat with a man who always talks of women as females, and of man as an individual; who never begins a thing, but always commences it; who does not choose, but elects; who does not help, but facilitates; who does not supply, but caters; nor buy, but always purchases; who calls a beggar a mendicant; with whom a servant is always a domestic, where he is not a menial; who does not say anything, but states it, and does not end, but terminates it; who calls a house a residence, in which he does not live, but resides; with whom a place is a locality; and things do not happen but transpire?

The Greatest Medical Discovery since the Creation of Man, or since the Commencement of the Christian Era.

There never has been a time when the healing of so many different diseases has been caused by outward application as the present. It is an undoubted fact that over half of the entire population of the globe resort to the use of ordinary plasters.

Physicians in all ages have thoroughly tested and well know the effect of Capsicum; and it has always been more or less used as a medical agent for an outward application; but it is only of very recent date that its advantages in a porous plaster have been discovered.

DR. MELVIN'S CAPSICUM POROUS PLASTER is acknowledged by all who have used them, to act quicker than any other plaster they ever before tried, and that one of these plasters will do more real service than a hundred of the ordinary kind.
