SPECIAL DESPATCHES TO THE EXAMINER

The Behring Sea Question.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 12.

An article by Congressman Felton appears in the Argonaut, treating at considerable length the question of the rights and title of the United States in the Behring Sea. Felton was a member of the Conferrence Committee between the Senate and House in the last Congress which passed a bill amendatory of laws regulating the seal fishery in the Behring Sea. The writer first cites well known facts on which Russia's title to the Behring Sea was based and gives a history of Russia's control of Alaska and the Behring Sea up to the date of the cession of the same to the United States. In 1868 Russia ceded to the United States all that part of the Behring Sea east of a given line running nearly north-east and north-west through this sea and retained the title and control over that part of the Behring Sea lying west of the said line. The writer then says: "It is a matter of history that Russia, from her discovery of Behring Sea down to its cession to the United States, controlled the navigation of its waters and the taking off its marine life. To this end her navy patrolled it, and in pursuance of her laws has taken, confiscated and burned the marauding vessels. She has since pursued and is now pursuing the same policy in her part of the Behring Sea." Referring to the fact that the United States and Great Britain entered protests with Russia against a certain manifesto issued by that government in 1821, claiming certain rights over Northern Pacific waters, and Felton says that these protests evidently had reference to waters south of Behring Sea. He adds, "The sovereignity asserted and maintained by Russia over that Sea from its discovery to its partition and cession to the United States, a period of over 140 years, never has been officially questioned or denied, and whatever title Russia had at the date of its transfer to the United States must be conceded to our government until it is established that Russia had no title to the same, which the writer appehends cannot be successfully accomplished.

Messrs. J. F. Willis & Co., Charlottetown, P. E. Island:

GENTLEMEN,—I am perfectly satisfied with the splendid R. S. Williams & Son piano with which you have supplied me, and I wish hereby to add my testimony to its general excellence. I find the tone full and rich and the touch elastic, even and sympathetic. I can heartily recommend your pianos and have the fullest confidence in the general accuracy of the opinion herein given concerning them. The solidity of construction, and the quality of the material used, together with the evident care displayed in their manufacture, prove them to be instruments of first-class character.
