spirit doesn't hit some until a week or two after this date, but there are good reasons for the early deadline. These are two:

- (1) The agencies to whom we hand over the toys need time to distribute them.
- (2) Exams.

Just one more thing: these kids know, as we all do, that Santa doesn't give toys that don't work. We hope that you are not offended by our asking for toys that are in good shape. Or new. We don't want to seem ungrateful for whatever you are willing to give. It's just that things broken, things worn, are things with which these children are already quite familiar.

Thank you.

Dear Editor:
Over the past few weeks it has come to the attention of myself, and others, that yourself and Tony Reddin are not in love. The letters you have been writing to each other have been taking up much space in the SUN. I feel this is not the purpose of the SUN. If Mr. Reddin is so interested in having everyone hear his view on nuclear power, print it up and distribute it on his own. There are many more pressing issues to be discussed than whether or not an article has been published, or whether or not the CADRE was a good paper. I feel if there is any more discussion on this topic yourself (and friends) and Tony Reddin (and friends) should keep it to yourselves and not in the SUN, or closet yourselves in a room and fight it out.

Dear Editor:
STOP THIS DIALOGUE PLEASE.

I had followed with keen interest the dialogue between you and one Tony Reddin regarding his article on nuclear energy in the past THREE issues of the SUN. I read the first issue with great enthusiasm as it was news to me. I am afraid to say that my enthusiasm to read this very issue started obeying the law of diminishing returns as the number of people that got involved in the issue grew over every publication of the SUN. This last publication bored me to death!

I do not know your past experience with Mr. Reddin, but the fact as to whether or not you guys have an axe to grind is beyond all reasonable doubt. I do not wish to go into the pros and cons that I have already gathered from your lengthy discussion. I wish to plead to you on behalf of myself and all the students who look upon the SUN as a source of news and information to stop this dialogue. Use the space for any future letters on the pros and cons of this issue for the publication of other items - including ads.

The intention of this letter should not be misunderstood by all the parties interested in this issue. I have my personal views about the issue. Unfortunately, the week I wanted to air my views saw many views that were identical to mine in either way - although mine would specifically have been aimed at a reconciliation rather than taking sides.

Once again, I wish to thank you in advance for stopping this dialogue and its boomeranging effects.

Concerned Student.

Dear Editor:

It bothers me to hear people talking of student apathy regarding Student Union activities at UPEI. I think that the attitude of the Student Councillors and executive members in handling the students is the main reason why most students are nonchalant about Student Unionism on this campus.

I do not know the UPEISU constitution very well, but I know that we are supposed to have at least two general meetings every year, one within the first 6 weeks of each semester. If this is true, then what is going on here? Are the executive members afraid to face the student populace? Your answer is as right as mine.

Just only two more weeks of lectures to go in this semester, yet there has been no general meeting of the Student Union. How can those of us who are neither councillors nor executive members air our views and get to know what is going on?

Well, for whatever reason a general meeting has been that delayed, I strongly feel that it is not to the best interest of the students. I know that most executive members and councillors may say, why the heck is this guy having a hang-up over the fact that a general meeting hasn't been called. After all, how many of the students attend the general meetings when they are called.

Yes, it is a fact that not many people attend these meetings, but some of us do attend, and in fact, I have attended every general meeting that I have ever heard of since I have been on this campus. I feel that the students deserve some accounts at this stage as to the comings and goings of everybody else on the rank and file of the Union officials, and everything else, especially the newly-opened Panther Lounge. A general meeting is surely overdue now.

Dear Editor:

Just a letter to let the readers know that last Thursday night (Nov. 16) there was a dance held on campus that was most enjoyable. For those that
