CANADIAN BIBLE SOCIETY BEQUEST

The Prince Edward Island District of the Canadian Bible Society acknowledges the generous bequest of $500.00 from the estate of the late Miss Mary MacDougall of Charlottetown and Canoe Cove, who passed away on March 15th, 1962.

Deeply interested in the world wide scope of the Canadian Bible Society during her lifetime, Miss MacDougall was a Life Member for many years. The bequest will continue her support, and will be used to assist in meeting the critical shortage of scriptures in the world today.

The object of the Bible Society is to provide the world of God for every man in his own language, without note or comment, at a price he can afford.

Island Exchange Student Tells Of First Days In Maryland

(Ed's note: Miss Sharon Baker of Margate is in Kensington, Maryland, as an exchange student sponsored by the Kensington Lions Club. The following is an account written by herself of her activities since leaving the Island.)

I left the Island July 9, a little apprehensive of what lay ahead for me in the next three weeks that I would be visiting in Maryland. I was very concerned about having to clear customs and change planes, but the Kensington Lions had arranged everything, and I was met in Montreal by the Montreal Lions, who showed me around the airport, and helped me get away on my flight to New York.

In New York I was met by the Midwide Lions who were very nice and did everything they could to make me feel at home even to getting me a window seat on the plane to Washington.

I arrived in Washington at 6.00 p.m. to be met by the press, photographers, and many lions and their wives. I must say this was my first flight and most thrilling.

I am living with Mr. and Mrs. Hale, who took me to see the broadway play Fiorella, on my first night in Washington. On Tuesday, which was a day of rest, we took off for the ball game, the all star game of the national and american league, and being a real baseball fan, I really enjoyed this, and saw President Kennedy at a distance, as well as all the baseball stars, my team won.

On Wednesday I visited Annapolis, the capital of Maryland, I think the highlights of this trip, were Maryland University, the Five Mile Bay bridge over the Chesapeake Bay, which is nearly eight miles long, the crypt of John Paul Jones the founder of the American navy, the academy itself with all its plebes. The State House where I met and talked with the Governor of Maryland, and St. Anne's Church which is believed to be one of the oldest in the United States. I also sampled Maryland crabs and enjoyed Chinese food. I visited a cat and dog cemetery, it was hard to believe, until I read the inscriptions.

On Thursday again accompanied by a lion and his wife, we toured the Lincoln Memorial, Jefferson Memorial, the Washington Memorial, which really is an impressive shrine to this great man; the Wax Museum, at times I thought the people in wax were real; and ended this tour with a visit to the Washington Cathedral. Words cannot describe the beauty of this church, and it really must be seen to be appreciated. On Thursday evening we had a cookout then with new young friends went to a show.

The success of this trip is the friendliness and hospitality of the Kensington, Maryland Lions and I hope that Christopher Selby who is visiting on our Island is enjoying himself, as much as I am.

I will send more news on tre weekend.

BRISTOL

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Leston who were on vacation here for some weeks guests of Mrs. Leston's aunt, Mrs. Joseph Walsh and Mr. Walsh and her uncle, Mr. P. R. Sinnott and Mrs. Sinnott, left over the weekend for their home in Boston.

Welcome visitors here last week included Mr. and Mrs. Jerome Deagle and members of their family. Its over forty years since Jerome Deagle left Bristol, a young man and the many changes and new faces now makes him a stranger. His aged mother and some members of his family still reside here.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Corbett, and family, were visitors here last week from Brighton, Mass., they were visiting their grandmother, Mrs. Joe Deagle and other relatives around the Island. They are a Boston born couple, but visit here every summer.

Mrs. Hilda Drake has purcrased the property of Ezra Arnold beside the new home of her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Mel Furguson.

Miss Norma Sinnott, a school teacher in Saskatchewan has arrived home to spend her vacation with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. P. R. Sinnott.

Mr. Vincent McGrath, that old veteran of the fishermen, has returned home from the Charlottetown Hospital.

It is reported that a new post office building will be erected soon in the village.

Marvin and Barry Webster, Kelvin Grove; are vacationing with relatives at Medfield and Newton Centre, Mass.

Myrna and Dale Elliott, Medfield, Mass., and Carl Howard, Newton Centre, Mass. are spending holidays with relatives at Kelvin Grove and Miscouche.

Mrs. John Kemp, left on Monday to return to her home in Toronto after spending the past week with her mother, Mrs. Mary Profitt, brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Halsey Profitt Burlington and other relatives and friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Alonzo Webster held a reception attended by the members of their family at their home at Norboro, on Monday evening, honoring their son, Lonnie and his bride, the former Sally Ann Rayner, on their return from their honeymoon trip.

Children, grandchildren and great - grandchildren of Mrs. Mary Profitt gathered at the family homestead at Burlington on Sunday honoring her daughter, Kathleen, Mrs. John Kemp of Toronto. Sixty-two members of the family were present during the afternoon. A buffet supper was served, and a suitable gift was presented to Mrs. Kemp on behalf of the family by her sister, Mrs. James Bernard.

GOODWIN-GEORGE NUPTIALS

The marriage of Margaret Goodwin, daughter of Mrs. Arthur Goodwin and the late Mr. Goodwin of the Magdalen Islands to Captain Bernard W. George, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. W. J. George of Dorval, Que. and formerly of Cinderford, Gloucestershire, England, took place recently in the Westley United Church, Montreal. The Rev. N. A. Murray officiated at the ceremony.

ELLEN'S DIARY

Time Steals The Precious Wasted Minutes Forever

"Shame on you, Time, you rascal, filching our minutes!" we say, when we must return from dawdling over the "lesser things" of our living, to the housekeeping duties that are ours. It is so easy to loiter out of doors these days: to see a colorful butterfly visiting a great white peony; to hear the wild canary's song from a high branch; to see the little herd of-home graze on the green of their pasture; to enjoy the sheen of clean-washed blade, and leaf, and flower.

And we come then to our round refreshed, to tidy the rooms, and cook the meals, and bake our loaves, and those sweets which are part of our Island fare—Now the strawberry shortcakes make their appearance on tables, to be a delicious food of season, whether they be made with a modern cake-mix as a base, or after the recipe used for baking powder biscuits, just so that they be filled and smothered with the rubyred of tre crushed and sweetened fruit and of course, odd whole berries besides. Now too the gardens give of their first-fruits to the farmwives: radishes the like of which, lads visiting there, glean and enjoy as they are. Lettuce comes. And the tapered green rounds of the onion tops, James likes as a complement to a roast, enhanced by a dressing of mayonnaise or with vinegar, sweetened, and spiced.

"If you would slip down to the garden, Ellen, with the flashlight, and get me a few onion-tops and a bit of lettuce — but no, it's dark" James said, with obvious longing, at lunchtime tonight.

Dim it was there, but not dark. And lovely. There was a little night-whisper of sound in the lawn-trees nearby-linden and willow and birch. The summer -music of the water falling through the spillways in the dam came up to us from the deep of the valley below. A car went by lane's end, lighting up the alders in passing, cutting a bright, friendly swath before it, and then all again was dim and quiet. And peaceful. So still it seemed as though the very echoes of day, had withdrawn for the night.

Clouds, we had by day. Lowering skies, and at times a mist of damp, which settled in silver scarves of li along the hills. However, at Alderlea, the day took the farmers off to their weeding, the carpenter to the roof and his shingling there.

There is fog over the stream now.

"Foggy! you wouldn't call this fog!" a visitor from an often foggbound region is reported to have chuckled to another. "Why, it's nothing like what we have at home. There it gets so thick at times we can hardly see at all. Uncle Josh was shingling his houseroof one foggy day last summer, and do you know what happened? He came to the end of a row and kept on, shingling on into the fog, before he noticed what he was at!"

There is a wisp of it above the stream tonight, moving us on, we think, toward clearing stars presently, and the joy of moonlight.

Meanwhile, dim, mild, quiet, peaceful our night is — altogether, a dear July night.

Until tomorrow — Diary — Good-night.....
