Veteran Canadian Newsman Dies At Ottawa At Age 80

OTTAWA (CP)—George Hambleton, 80, a Canadian newspaper man who had been connected with major events at home and abroad for many years, died at his home here Thursday.

Mr. Hambleton worked for The Canadian Press from 1917 until his retirement just before the Second World War. He was the national news agency's first parliamentary correspondent at Ottawa and became superintendent of its Ottawa bureau. From 1928 to 1938 he was CP's first European correspondent.

Born in England, he is survived by his wife Bessie, a daughter Josephine, and a son, Hugh George, currently in Madrid, Spain.

Mr. Hambleton covered Sir Wilfrid Laurier's last election campaign in 1917 and many by W. L. Mackenzie King. Overseas he covered the League of Nations, imperial conferences, the abdication of King Edward VIII and events leading up to the Second World War.

From 1940 to 1951 he was with the information division of the external affairs department. He was adviser to the Canadian delegation at the 1948 world conference on freedom of information at Geneva.

He was the author of a book, The Parliament of Canada.

When he first came to Canada from England, he worked for the Montreal Star in the Quebec legislature press gallery from 1911 to 1916.

Former prime minister King once said in the Commons that if it was said to be so by Mr. Hambleton, it must be so.

The funeral was held Saturday at 11 a.m. in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, with burial in Ottawa.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Opening lead—six of spades.

This hand was played in a par contest conducted in London by the British Bridge World magazine in 1957. Participating in the event were 26 pairs of well-known experts from all over the world.

The high caliber of the field is reflected in the results obtained from this deal at the 13 tables at which it was played.

The directed contract was three notrump by South. The hand is not really difficult to make, but contains a play that many declarers would be likely to miss if it crawled up on them unawares.

The test comes early. Declarer wins the spade lead with the jack and plays the six of diamonds, permitting West to win the trick when he produces the jack. This play ends all hope for the defense. Regardless of what West returns, South has nine running tricks.

Note that if South starts diamonds by leading the queen instead of the six he goes down. He can get nowhere without the long diamond suit, and, once he leads the queen, he cannot establish the suit without allowing East to gain the lead for the killing spade return.

There is reason enough to play the six first. Declarer sees that he cannot be stopped if the diamonds are divided 3-2. Playing the six does not affect his chances if the suit is divided that way.

But the advantage of the six play is that South, in one case, can overcome the 4-1 break if it exists. Declarer says to himself that if West has a singleton there is a chance it is the jack, and he plays accordingly.

Since that happens to be the case, South's care is rewarded and the safety play pays off. The difficult part of the hand is that South has to have the presence of mind to make the unnatural play of the six first. Apparently, most of the experts were on their toes because ten of them played correctly and made the contract.
