B.C. Holly Crop Expected To Be Best In Five Years

By ROGER STONEBANKS

VICTORIA (CP)—The price and the production are about the same, but Vancouver Island holly growers say this year's crop will be the best in five years.

"Although we're always optimistic, this is the best crop since 1958," says D. R. Philbrick of Victoria, manager of the Vancouver Island Holly Growers Association.

"This year's crop has magnificent leaf color and the berries are prolific—all we can do now is hope the weather doesn't get cold."

Holly is sensitive and doesn't take to extremes of heat or cold. Vancouver Island's moderate climate, together with good soil and good moisture, results in its producing 90 per cent of Canadian-grown holly.

"The rest comes from the Fraser Valley east of Vancouver," says Mr. Philbrick.

PRODUCES MOST

Figures were not available for imports from the United States, but Vancouver Island "definitely produces most of the holly for Christmas," he says.

Housewives can expect to pay about the same prices they have paid in the last three or four years, he says.

That will be between $1.50 to $1.75 a pound in the east and 50 to 60 cents on the west coast —"the difference is due to packaging and transportation."

This year's crop is expected to be a little under 50 tons and should be worth about $50,000. Best production year was 1958 with 52 tons.

Mr. Philbrick estimates about half the output will be sold in the industrial belt encompassing Oshawa, Toronto and Hamilton.

Fifty tons may sound like a little but packaged in small cardboard boxes they will fill 14 boxcars, 7,000 pounds to each boxcar.

CHIEF CENTRE

The chief centre for holly-growing is in the Saanish Peninsula just north of Victoria and one of the oldest farms is managed by Mr. Philbrick at the Queen Alexander Solarium in Cordova Bay.

It was here that Fred Pemberton pioneered commercial holly growing in 1913 and in its heyday the farm had 56,00 trees.

Nearby construction and mounting costs combined to reduce the number of trees to the present 450. Mr. Philbrick expects to produce 20,000 pounds of holly from these trees this year.

One of the early problems was a withering of holly leaves and it took years to find the reason. In those days, apples and holly were exported together and ethylene gas from apples in the ripening process affected the sensitive holly.

"Since then, we've always kept apples—and other fruit—away from holly," says Mr. Philbrick.

Sculptor Back In Good Graces Of The Kremlin

MOSCOW (AP)—Soviet sculptor Ernst Neizvestni, once damned for his work by Nikita Khrushchev, appears to be back in the good graces of the Kemlin.

Neizvestni was accused by the premier last winter of having produced in marble a "nauseating concoction" of a little boy with big outspread ears. The work was admired by Western critics.

Neizvestni has produced a number of sculptured pieces in marble and bronze which have won praise abroad and condemnation here.

Now Tass discloses that he has received three commissions from the ministry of culture for statues of noted Soviet scientists. The fact that a reporter from the Soviet news agency was sent to interview him appeared to be the final seal of approval.

Tass published a story by Alexander Romanov, who began by saying simply that he had visited Neizvestni "a few days ago."

Thursday, when other correspondents went to see him, the sculptor made little comment other than to say that he was somewhat surprised when the Tass staffer came to see him. Since the condemnation of his work by Khrushchev, newspapers and magazines had not written a friendly word about him.

DELAY TRIAL

PRETORIA, South Africa (Reuters)—The sabotage trial of Nelson Mandela, former leader of the banned African National Congress and known as "the Black Pimpernel," and nine others was adjourned Wednesday for six days to enable the defence to prepare its case.
