

Impersonal Journalism.

It is often said that the days of personal journalism are over. The meaning intended is that, whereas once the personality of the editor was plainly impressed upon his journal, now his identity is generally lost in that of his paper.

There is truth in this representation. Journalism has undergone a great change, even within the last twenty-five years. The telegraph has done much to effect this change.

To a large part of the world, the names of leading editorial writers of the large metropolitan daily newspaper are now mostly unknown.

Give Them a Chance!

That is to say, your lungs. Also all your breathing machinery. Very wonderful machinery it is. Not only the larger air-passages, but the thousands of little tubes and cavities leading from them.

When these are clogged and choked with matter which ought not to be there, your lungs cannot half do their work.

Call it cold, cough, croup, pneumonia, catarrh, consumption or any of the family of throat and nose and head and lung obstructions, all are bad.

One of the wealthiest Indians in the country is Mathias Splitlog, a full-blooded Wyandot, born in Canada, but early removed to the Ohio, and now the founder of Splitlog City in Indian territory.

Blowing up Hell Gate has been a laborious and costly work, but the end justifies the effort. Obstruction in any important channel means disaster.
