

THE DAILY EXAMINER.

OCTOBER 12, 1893.

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

The Montreal Gazette remarks that the Canadian farmer knows well to leave well enough alone.

The Montreal Gazette points out that the original Valkyrie was a female who marked out those designated to be slain in battle, and says that some of the sisterhood must have put their seal on their yacht namesake.

It is hoped that the President of the Board of Trade will, when he writes to the Minister of Railways, enlarge upon the importance of making a Winter Time Table which will not necessitate three days absence from home on the part of passengers who have to do business at the banks and public offices in this city.

At the World's Fair, in the sheep exhibit, Canada has taken 60 first prizes against 24 for the United States; 45 seconds against 24 for the States; and 40 thirds against 23 for the States, or a total of 137 against 92. Warm and woolly Canada has done.

Reports from the country confirm the belief that the people will out the Peter-McLean combination at the first opportunity. Men of Liberal principles, who have fair play for all, are likely to support those who have so outrageously gerrymandered King's County and disfranchised the Dominion officials.

Our new Governor-General is a great Liberal. Borden Hall is not big enough for good enough for him, though it is. Dufferin, Lorne, Landsdowne and Derby, for he has forty-two persons in his train. The Government must now build a better, larger, and of course a more costly gubernatorial palace. These Liberals are dear people!

Dolphins are reported as fond of playing about ships. The dolphin of the sailor is a fish about five feet long, and is celebrated for his surprising changes when dying. The dolphin of the scientist is a cetacean, the sea porpoise, Delphinus delphis. The latter is noted for its habit of playing about the bows of rapidly moving vessels.

Mr. Smallwood, in his cable to the New York Tribune, says: "Every new sound enterprise is the more welcome because the depression of English trade continues and extends. Money is cheap, the bank rate reduced, the deficit in the revenue, which is the commercial thermometer, exceeds $6,000,000 for the half year. Sir William Harcourt's reputation as a financier is in some peril."

The English Board of Trade has just published a report upon the bankruptcies for 1892 which is anything but pleasant reading. Comparing the commercial disasters of last year with those of the year before, it is seen that the liabilities of debtors are heavier, their assets are fewer and the expenses of realizing the assets greater in 1892. The number of business failures increased by 74; the liabilities of the debtors increased by 1,065,000 pounds while the assets diminished by 245,000 pounds as compared with the previous year.

The cause of this progress in the wrong direction is attributed partly to the Baring failure and several other similar events causing widespread loss in 1891. It would appear from Sir Charles Tupper's personal investigations that the Crofter settlers in the Northwest are by no means in the deplorable condition that they were represented to be by the Secretary of State for Scotland, who said that "when the facts became known it would be many a long year before the government again undertook state colonization."

The public debt of Great Britain now stands at £671,842,842. It is curious to read that before the commencement of the reign of William III, in 1689, the national indebtedness of the mother country was .09 per cent. of the present huge total, i.e., £664,263, as compared with an aggregate now of over £671,800,000. The determination of the country to abolish slavery wherever it was possible cost its people more than £20,000,000, which was the real commencement of the national debt. After that, war was chiefly responsible for the accumulation of the loan, which has reached the enormous total of £550,132,783 when the Queen ascended the throne in 1837. Seeing that the debt now is £671,842,842, it is obvious that in the beneficent reign of Victoria it has been reduced by no less an amount than £179,688,941, or over 21 per cent. of the total indebtedness half a century ago.

The national debt is still far too large to leave those who hold consols to entertain apprehensions as to the redemption of the security so dearly loved by careful British investors; but the steady reduction that has been going on year by year is encouraging, and reveals the effects of successive Chancellors of the Exchequer to reduce the enormous load of debt incurred by the terribly expensive wars that preceded the Victorian era.

The National Union of Conservative associations, which will meet at Cardiff early in November, will elect the Earl of Dunraven, owner of the Valkyrie, to be its president. This conference of the National Union is to the Conservatives what the great annual caucus of the National Liberal federation is to the Liberals, and the highest office is an exceptional political honor. The Marquis of Bute, who has been immense money interests in the Cardiff district, was a possible candidate for the office, but the Earl of Dunraven is preferred, as he is not only a great Welsh landowner, but also a great politician. He is, therefore, the unanimous choice of his party. Although yachting is his dominant passion he is an earnest student of public affairs. He is an effective speaker, and while Under-Secretary of Colonies he displayed unexpected qualities as a discreet statesman. The conference probably will not add any new plank to the Conservative platform, which naturally can not be enlarged with the ease attending the development of the Liberal programme. The Marquis of Salisbury will make before the conference his first speech since the adjournment of parliament. He will indicate his line of policy for the Opposi-

BOARD OF TRADE.

At the meeting of the Board of Trade held last evening, the first question discussed was that of the date at which the Steam Navigation Company is to run between Charlottetown and Pictou. It was decided that, in view of the possibility of winter setting in early and unexpectedly, and in view of the fact that the Steam Navigation Company has not yet obtained a second strong screw steamer for the fall service, the Board could not advise the Government to put the Stanley upon the Charlottetown-Pictou route later than the 1st of December.

It was ordered that a communication to that effect be sent to the Department of Marine and Fisheries, and also that the Department be requested to make a despatch of freight and passenger at the summer tariff until the close of navigation. The great disadvantage under which merchant seamen labor, on account of being compelled to pay three times as much for the Province as they do for the rest of the country, was also discussed; and it was ordered that the Department be requested to grant through rates subject to a double or treble rate on the railway time table. The President was authorized to communicate with the Department of Railways, asking the extension of a double or treble rate until the 31st of November, and requesting a further extension until the 1st of December.

IN WOMAN'S KINGDOM. That is a high sounding title for a man to choose who is going to write anything about the fair sex, and it implies a great deal, does it not? And woman's kingdom—what is it? A pretty hard question to answer, truly, in these days when women's kingdom threatens to extend into the men's, and then—nobody knows where it is going to stop. I don't think the women's kingdom on the extremist's point of view; but I am of the opinion that women are capable of doing a great deal more than most men think they are. The world is progressing, and as fashions and ideas about other matters have long ago given way to modern ones, why, I ask, may not the sphere of woman's usefulness be enlarged, and if they are capable of doing work formerly performed only by men, why, in the name of goodness, should she not do it? It is not going to lower a woman any to work in the same palatial typewriter, or do manly and quick, and with more dexterity than the clumsy fingers of a man can, and her presence among men (if she be the right kind of a woman) will do more for the world than any other thing. The old-fashioned idea, that a woman's sphere of usefulness, manly, be in the home, and the mother and career of little ones, and the attendant and slave of a husband, is exploded. The old idea, that all a girl could be brought up to look forward to, was to make a good match, and then be "well" as far as the world was concerned, and long ago she has her best days. There are women doctors, women lawyers, and women through into the business places, and fill positions in large commercial houses—women cannot marry and have houses and children (to say nothing of husbands) to look after. If all the unmarried women, who sit with their hands folded, waiting for a husband, were to get busy, and earn an independent living—there is a mighty poor look out ahead of them. Many women are thrown on the world, friendless and moneyless, who, if they had the old-fashioned qualities of commonsense as to what women should do, would literally starve. A girl who has been delicately nurtured, is as apt to meet with reverses as any other class, and she will have to earn her bread and butter. If she is to be cleared from all else but the work that in former days would be considered fit for her, what is to become of her? A girl might be a very thorough and competent, yet the manual labor of a house would prove too much for her; and so, by degrees, women are beginning to fill positions with credit to themselves, and what is far more important, to the perfect satisfaction of their employers.

From all such evils as women politicians, or women doing men's work, and assuming men's manners and dress, and to their dress, I would pray fervently, "Good Lord, deliver us." For drawn, and in like things, the line must be drawn. The sphere that is a woman's, exclusively and beyond that, is man's and home. But when that cannot be her destiny, a woman need not unsex herself because she has to accept and do that which men do also. If women, to fulfill their mission, must be like men, and mothers, then a great many of the noblest and best women this world ever knew did leaving their mission unfulfilled; and general opinion held that they were not doing their duty. It is time to follow, in the completeness of their work, and the purity and true womanliness of their character.

There is a vast difference between the seeker after woman's rights in the exaggerated meaning of the word, and the woman who takes any position she can fill, for the purpose of earning an honest living, there is happy medium which is not often thought of by those who are women who earn their own living in the midst of men, prove from their better knowledge of men's failings the best wives and mothers. A woman can do a man's work, but a man cannot do a woman's. A man can supply for the needs of his home and children—a woman knows best what these needs are. A man fills a place essentially his own; a woman fills up all the empty places, and it is hard to say where she is needed most. Women's influence is imperceptible, it permeates by degrees, as a subtle perfume steals over the senses and fills them with its essence. Therefore the bright side of this vexed question as to whether women are not under pinning the value men's services have attained, will be solved the day when men realize that women are a help to them wherever they are, and that a good woman's influence is beyond measure, in reality, the "star" that leads them through the darkest night, and shows him the way to heaven.

Send 25 "Sunlight" Soap wrappers (wrappers bearing the name "Wash Your Face and Hands Sooner Than a Man") to Levy Bros., 43 Scott St., Toronto, and you will receive by post a pretty picture, free from advertising, and well worth framing. LEARN HOW TO REST.

Nothing so becoming to both Form and Spirit as Complete Fatigue.

The art of good looks is a fine art indeed, and one that deserves the encouragement it seems to be getting, on every page of every magazine, to the neglect of the shape of lotions, lemon water and skin soaps—so enthusiastically urged upon womanhood from the back pages of every magazine, and tampered in the land, are not to be treated with topping scorn; they have their place and use in the general struggle for loveliness. But, in the essential things, the Editor of Bazar, why not back up these efforts for loveliness by common sense conduct through-out each day's wear after tea?

To begin with, women sit too much, and women stand quite too much. Nothing is so wearisome as "standing about," even the best training body that has been drilled into good posture, and sitting is not resting, however cleverly woman may delude herself on this point.

The young girl who desires to keep away crow's feet and that jaded look we all know so well, and to retain the suppleness and vigor of youth, should not sit or stand for long periods, but make a couch of her own room, and rest on it.

Absolute repose comes to the third muscles only when the body is in a reclining position, and absolute repose comes to the overworking nerves only when the muscular system is perfectly at rest—relaxed.

The mind aged woman could, I am positive, work back much of the freshness and litheness of girlhood if she would be at a little pains to learn how to rest.

Five minutes of rest, flat on one's back on the floor or on a mat, smooth couch or even on a mat, an hour or so styled "rest" in an armchair or in that unpropitious tempter, the rocking chair.

Some one has said to the women of today, "Never stand when you can sit; never sit when you can lie down." This exhortation, applied with some elasticity is the best recipe for beauty I know of.

While I have little sympathy with the gospel of laziness preached so consistently by some lives, I do recommend, as a daily habit, rest, complete fatigues.

Devil's Lake Traditions. Tangago, the Tipewas, came from the north and pitched their camp on the north shore of the lake. They had reason to believe that the Sioux were encamped on the southern shore, and they planned to surprise them from the north. The Sioux had a similar thought and design, and each tribe proceeded to exterminate the other.

They met in about the middle of the lake and fought, and all were lost. The time is not fixed except that the incident occurred in the spring of the last year. The Chippewas came in canoes from the north as before. This was in 1867. The Chippewas warriors were all slain and the women, who were left behind, were taken to the north shore. The Chippewas were all slain and the women, who were left behind, were taken to the north shore.

As a preliminary trial, each candidate is placed with his back to the light at a distance of fifteen feet, and then required to count the number of colored threads with both eyes and then with each separately. If he satisfies the examiner so far, he is then tested by the use of Holmberg's colored wools, which consist of a collection of small skeins of colored Berlin wool, each of which is loosely twisted and easily disentangled.

The bundles include wools of red, orange, yellow, yellow-green, pure green, blue, violet-purple, pink, brown and grey, in various shades. These bundles are placed in a special color box for examination is selected and set apart, and the candidate is required to name the color of the bundle before him the other skeins which most closely resemble the sample and place them side by side. His knowledge of every shade of color, from the palest to the darkest, is tested by the way in which he performs his task, in the choice of colors held up to him at a distance of one foot.

One more confirmatory step of careful trial and the ordeal is over, but not entirely until then. Lastly, the probationer has not before him three skeins, of a vivid red, like the red flag used for signals on railways; of bright yellowish red, and of scarlet. If the man be red blind, he will match the red sample with a dark green or dark brown with shades which to the normal eye are darker than scarlet. The green blind will select light green or light brown to match the scarlet shades which are lighter than the sample—The Edinburgh Review.

An Old-Time Minstrel. At the instance of a Toronto reporter of engaging address, Cool Burgess has become reminiscent and recalls stage scenes of a generation past when were the palmy days of minstrelsy and Cool was in his prime. Poor old Burgess! the old-time king of fun-makers when the men and women of to-day were learning to laugh at the funny side of life, and the mystic red cavern he called his mouth, and the vocal apparatus, a facial expression, and the whole of his being, were a merry memory with most of us long after Burgess has gone where the uncounted millions of his kind sleep silently and unheeding. Whatever else may be said about Burgess, there is no doubt that he brought a great deal of pleasure into the world, and made many human beings happier. And the man who succeeds in doing that is a public benefactor, for the man who does that is a public benefactor, for the man who does that is a public benefactor.

THE GEOGRAPHIC.

SPECIAL DESPATCHES TO THE EXAMINER. VIGILANT AND VALKYRIE.

Inconsequential Race Yesterday. The Vigilant and Valkyrie tried hard yesterday to settle the question as to which is the queen yacht of the world. After alternate spells of racing, drifting and waiting for wind, they gave up the contest on the expiration of the time limit. Long before dark it was plain that the race could not be made within the limit of six hours. The windward work done by the British cutter during the first half was the fastest ever done in this country. It showed that in very light winds the Valkyrie is a dangerous competitor. Not until the six hour limit was almost expired did either boat give up the race. The boats then were fully seven miles from the finish the Vigilant leading about half a mile.

Ottawa Notes. The Supreme Court finished the Quebec list this afternoon, and before rising fled on Tuesday next as the date for the commencement of the hearing of the argument in the Manitoba school case.

The Experimental Farm authorities are making 450 tons of ensilage, known as the Robertson Mixture, this Autumn. Many farmers who have grown sudanese this year, are following out the plan suggested by Professor Robertson.

The Chicago Fair authorities have stopped the distribution of samples of grain in the courts of the different state and Canadian Provinces, consequent upon their being found infected with a caterpillar or small moth and grain weevil. Entomologist Fowler says these pests are well known. No danger need be apprehended in Canada, as the caterpillar generally kills them. Affected grain may be easily and cheaply disinfected with bisulphate of carbon.

St. John Lawyers. Several law students who applied for examination for attorneys this term have passed. It is understood that Miss Edith Hamilton, daughter of a St. John lawyer, and a niece of Judge Hamilton, has a good list. She is New Brunswick's first lady law student, and is studying in her father's office.

Nominated for Ottawa. St. John, Oct. 12. J. G. Fortes, of this city, has been informed by wire that he has yesterday unanimously nominated by the Gyscoo Liberal Conservative Association, a Liberal Conservative candidate for Ottawa at the next election.

TELEGRAPHIC NEWS. Moxon, Mich., Oct. 11.—While Ernest Goldfinch, an employe at Foster's livery barn, in the heart of the city, was throwing hay from the mow he discovered a black rat with the key tied to the handle. Goldfinch took the rat to the office, and upon examining it found that it contained about 20 sticks of dynamite, a quantity of fuse, a box of caps and matches. Miss Goldfinch, through the valise and around the matches. It is very strange that the matches were not lighted. Enough of the deadly stuff was found to blow up the entire business portion of the city. How the dynamite got there is a mystery. Authorities are looking into the matter.

LONDON, Oct. 9.—The Calcutta correspondent of the Times says: Lahore advises state that there is a serious disturbance in Cabul before the arrival of the British mission, under Sir H. M. Durand, on Monday. Malik Jan Khan, assistant commander-in-chief of the army, abused a Sepoy belonging to the Herat regiment, whereupon the Sepoy company fired a volley, killing Malik. The mutineers fled, but were caught the same day. Eleven of them were blown from the cannon's mouth. All the troops were then sworn on the Koran to strict obedience of their commanders. Farmanuz Khan has also been arrested, and the governor of Herat has been ordered to make further arrests.

AN EXPLANATION! I. S. Holmes, who was once a Baptist minister, left that denomination, for it has more before it than he could handle. He joined the Church of England and is not against it in any way, for in the Divine Service of the Church of England the whole Bible is read once a year. He intends to act independent of College and Church authorities and not found any new Church, for the good reason that Christ's Church contained a man who acted independent of Christ's College, but preached as an Evangelist and the Apostles condemned him, but Christ said, "Let him alone." Mr. Holmes expects to lecture and preach to a purely independent position as Moody and Talmage did, taking God for his help and the whole Bible for his creed, and upholding every Church as far as they believe in the Father, Son and Holy Ghost, and are willing to teach the whole Bible, and journeying through nations, kingdoms, empires and republics. It is to be hoped he will do well as the Theological Lecturer and Champion Theological Debater. Some false talk has been used against him, but he is able to prove that he is not guilty of any wrong. He told the Baptists to take his name away from their presence, but they had given him credentials to preach before that, yet he honors them while they continue honoring him for the better, and some of their best men had preached for years without asking for credentials. So you see how mistaken the plan is in some cases to condemn men, if and only if they are not on the book. Was Moody's name on the Baptist book? But the only sure way to know a man is to try him. Some of the worst men have enough relations to vote them in anything, and put their names anywhere, and put down the best of men, so that their relations will be exalted. dy li wy li pd—oct12

HAVING LEASED THE QUEEN HOTEL, Halifax, Nova Scotia.

The Lessee takes great pleasure in announcing that the rates are: Upper Floors, two in room, $1.50 per day. Single Rooms, $1.75, $2.00 and $2.50 per day, according to location.

This great reduction in rates will not in any way impair the present efficiency of the Hotel either as regards the service or cuisine. A single trial will convince any one of the fact.
