Glasseco Report is Riddled
By Commerce College Dean

By ROBERT RICE
OTTAWA (CP) — A former president of the Institute of Public Administration of Canada has riddled the Glasseco report on provincial administration with a salvo of criticism.
Thomas McLeod, dean of the college of commerce of the University of Saskatchewan, attacked the five-volume report of the Glasseco royal commission as illogical, ill-conceived, confused, unscientific, impractical and inadequate.
His scathing critique was applauded enthusiastically not only by Canadian administrators at the start of a three-day convention last week but also by private business.
George F. Davidson, deputy head of the federal government's new bureau of government organization, told the convention last week that the "substantial agreement" with many of Dean McLeod's remarks.

kind of shells they used being what it is. It strikes me as a good example of a bad game warden."
A former deputy provincial treasurer in Saskatchewan who now heads Saskatchewan's royal commission on taxation, Dean McLeod questioned whether "what final price the U.S. will pay for Canada's share of power from the plant."
Eustace A. Fitz is a Minister Paul Martin, who headed the Canadian negotiating team, told a press conference he held last week.
"Very good progress" was made in the 15th round of negotiations and that another bargaining session possibly will take place Oct. 4. This is a few days after the Sept. 10 British Columbia election.
The technical working groups to have their first organization meeting here today will attempt to get final answers to sticky issues that remain to be settled. While Martin declined to discuss the exact functions of the technical working groups, it appeared they will attempt to bridge the gap between the two millia Premier W. A. C. Bennett wants for each kilowatt-hour of Columbia river power. B.C. releases to the U.S. and the four mills that the U.S. has indicated American consumers are prepared to pay.

WASHINGTON (CP) — Canada and the United States made further progress here in their complex Columbia River power treaty negotiations. They set up technical working groups to study how the multi-million dollar project is to be financed and what final price the U.S. will pay for Canada's share of power from the plant.

in another paper by Prof. John S. Morgan of the School of Social Work, University of Toronto. Both speakers recommended that local governments be given much wider powers in administering welfare programs.
Miss Leigh said local officials are in the best position to make decisions on welfare cases but municipalities are desperately short of tax revenue. She said a federal-provincial municipal confederation should be held to clearly define the welfare role of each level of government and to make more equitable fiscal arrangements.

Welfare
In Canada
Said Failure

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada's approach to welfare is a dismal failure that a conference of federal, provincial and municipal governments is needed to clear up, says a prominent Vancouver social worker, said members of her profession are seeking an administrative morass, powerlessness to help a growing army of unemployed and destitute Canadians.
She said local welfare officers are trapped in a maze of unnecessary regulations, penny pinching government accountants and inspectors, a multiplicity of narrow services, inadequate financial resources and a serious shortage of trained personnel.

his son is enrolled at Ramsay High and he asks:
"How temporary is temporary? I want my boy in school."
"I don't think you have to worry about your boy not going to school," says Robert Arthur, the chairman.
Dr. Then Wright, superintendent of schools, tells the board he will continue to hear 500 signatures calling for all the city's schools to be closed. He says 100 persons who signed the petition actually have children in the schools.

The good players play well, but they don't play perfectly. Bridge is too tough a game, and mistakes from time to time, and the top experts are judged largely by their infrequency of error.
This hand was played in New York in the match between Great Britain and the United States in 1955. I happened to be kibitzing the British star
