Unitarian Service Appeals For Refugee Assistance

A deeply moving appeal on behalf of the destitute children of Asia was made by Dr. Lotta Hirschmanova, of Ottawa, when she addressed a meeting sponsored by the Charlottetown Business and Professional Women's Club at Prince of Wales College Monday evening.

Dr. Hirschmanova is the executive director of the non-denominational Unitarian Service committee, an all-Canadian, voluntary relief and rehabilitation agency whose assistance is extended, in the name of Canada, to those in greatest need, regardless of creed, nationality, color or caste.

Dr. Hirschmanova was born in Prague, Czechoslovakia, and is a graduate of the Universities of Prague and the Sorbonne, Paris, holding a Doctorate in Philosophy and diplomas in social science and journalism.

Because of her open opposition to Hitler as a newspaper woman after the Munich Agreement, she was forced to flee to France where, for two years, she used her training to assist thousands of other refugees. She was granted asylum in Canada, landing with just $70 in her purse and a burning desire to help those left behind.

Scientists called the satellite the forerunner of flights to Mars and Venus in the near future and said that, of course, man would finally learn something from the hidden side of the moon.

A leading scientist, Professor Evgeny Fedorov, assured the world the Soviet Union had no territorial claims on the moon or any intention of building military bases there.

In her interesting and informative address "The Magic Keys", Dr. Hirschmanova told of her recent visit to Korea, India and Hong Kong. She told of the appalling conditions of poverty, hunger and disease among the people in many of the areas which she visited.

Under its current appeal the USC is faced with the task of raising $225,000 to finance 62 projects in 11 countries of the world. The five-point program emphasizes child care, education and training, medical assistance, construction and leadership development and emergency relief through large-scale feeding and clothing projects.

MISSING THE BOAT
In concluding her talk Dr. Hirschmanova said "During this latest survey, I was obsessed with the thought that we, from the West, were missing the boat in Asia. I am convinced that each of us possesses a set of magic keys that can open the doorway to a better tomorrow for all the world's children. These keys are sensitivity to the needs of others, intelligent planning and action, and all the money that is needed to do the job today, tomorrow is too late."

Following Dr. Hirschmanova's talk a film "Up by the Mountains" shown which gave the audience some idea of the conditions as described in her address.

Miss Iphigenie Arsenault introduced the speaker and urged all members of all live wire organizations in Charlottetown and the surrounding districts to do more for refugee work. Miss Arsenault added that, at the request of the United Nations, the year from June 30th, 1959 to July 15, 1960 would be known as World Refugee Year.

Mr. Fred Osborne graciously and feelingly thanked Dr. Hirschmanova for her inspiring address. Much was served by the committee in charge.

COMMITTEE FORMED
After Dr. Hirschmanova's appeal a USC Depot committee was formed with representatives from eight organizations pledging the support of their members. Permission has been obtained from Mayor Edwin Johnston for the use of a room in the City Hall to store the packages received.

Fire Chief Herb Jewell has agreed to accept all packages and have them placed in this room. The committee will appoint volunteers to go one day a week to sort the cartons and help in other ways.

Members of the committee appointed are as follows: Chairman, Mrs. Fred Osborne; publicity, Mrs. Robert Large; secretary, Mrs. Jack Ravak; treasurer, Mrs. Dane Crosby.

Basilica Laymen Hear Talk On Problems Of Adolescence

The frequency of undesirable behaviour, the seriousness of the offenses committed and the attitude towards authority must all be considered carefully before labelling any child as a delinquent, youth committee chairman Michael Hennessey told the Basilica Laymen's association last night.

Guest speaker at the organization's October meeting, Mr. Hennessey's theme was "Toward a Better Understanding of Juvenile Delinquency."

In the absence of the president, M.F. Hagan, vice-president J. Elmer Blanchard presided. Brief reports were delivered by the chairman of the entertainment and building committees, Rt. Rev. Patrick McMahon, rector of the Basilica parish, spoke briefly after the group discussion which followed Mr. Hennessey's talk.

DIFFICULT PERIOD
The adolescent years were perhaps the most difficult for both child and parent, Mr. Hennessey said.

He pointed out that adolescence was normally characterized by a continual state of inner confusion and anxiety; loyalty and devotion to groups; and eagerness for adult acceptance.

"To help an adolescent we must make him understand that these problems and uncertainties are natural," Mr. Hennessey said. "Parents must remember that the child is not an adult."

He added that the adolescent's need for encouragement should not imply a relaxation of discipline. The guest speaker recalled that many groups were making many attempts to solve the problem of juvenile delinquency, but no one cure could be found.

REQUIRES UNDERSTANDING
"The solution requires an understanding of the whole child and a genuine interest by the parents in the child," he said.

Three questions were debated by the several groups into which the large audience was divided: namely — Is there a juvenile delinquency problem on P.E.I.? What are some of the ways in which parents can help their adolescent children? In what way should the home be the cradle of human personality?

The groups agreed that the delinquency problem did not appear to be serious in this province. However a growing and serious disregard for parental and school authority was noted.

PARENTS BEST
The groups also felt that parents could best help adolescents by showing a genuine interest in their activities, particularly in school work. It was also decided that the home was the most important single factor in developing in children traits of honesty, kindness, love, respect for authority, patience and other equally important virtues.

DELEGATE POWER
"We are working constantly to make the structure of administration and government more simple and efficient, to decentralize many functions of government, to reduce the governmental and administrative staff, to strive against any sign of bureaucracy, to maintain strongly justice and legality, lawfulness."

WELLINGTON'S NEW FIRE ENGINE INSPECTED

Councillors, clerk, and fire chief of Wellington are seen yesterday afternoon examining their new 800-gallon capacity fire fighting truck purchased by the village for $1,800 from Memramcook, N.B. Apparently in excellent condition, the 1942 Dodge truck will provide a mobile fire fighting vehicle for the members of the volunteer fire department, and will supplement a stationary pumper engine attached to a well which has been drilled in the center of the village. The well is enclosed in a fire hall which also provides accommodation for the fire hose, and other fire-fighting equipment. During the past five years the village of Wellington has suffered from severe fire losses. From left to right, are Fire Chief Cedric Arsenault, Council Chairman Fidele C. Gallant, Village Clerk Joseph Gaudet, Councillor Faustin Richard, and Fireman Edmund C. Arsenault.

Mrs. C.A. Scharfe (the former Margaret Matthews) has been visiting in Summerside, the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Inman. It is 16 and a half years since Mrs. Scharfe visited her native province. She also visited with Mrs. H.W. Matthews in Alberton and Mrs. William Hayes in Charlottetown.

EXPRESSES PLEASURE
Stating that he was "extremely happy" to see so many friends calling at Strathairn Saturday afternoon, Premier Walter R. Shaw yesterday told the Guardian he had not expected such a tremendous crowd. "I thought if 300 people visited us it would be a large number. I never thought to see 1,500. They were still calling at the house after we went to bed. It makes me very happy."

Lunar

The flying laboratory — which the Russians are calling an "automatic interplanetary station" and which Professor Vsevolod Sharonov of Leningrad Monday called "a complete automatic observatory" — will complete its swing around earth's natural satellite and then orbit back toward the parent planet.

The latest word from Tass was that it would approach within 7,000 kilometres (4,350 miles) of the moon at its closest point. The original announcement said 10,000 kilometres (6,210 miles) would be the nearest.

NOT DIFFERENT
Scientists expect pictures taken by the satellite's camera of the far side of the moon to show the same crater scars familiar to all moon-gazers.

Much more interesting to most scientists is what the flying laboratory, crammed with instruments, will tell on its expected glide back to a vast, cigar-shaped orbit around the earth.

Observatory teams in the Soviet Union were geared to begin tracking the satellite after it emerges from its photo mission behind the moon and starts on the way back.

The satellite is expected to unfold more information on the composition of space between the moon and earth, which will be valuable to man when he ventures out into that void.

Professor I. A. Khvostikov, a Soviet scientist, explained to Moscow radio listeners what science hopes to learn from this first flight back from the moon. The flying laboratory reported on radiation and magnetic fields on the way up to the moon, he explained. It will do the same on the way down.

DOUBLE CHECK
Thus, a double check is possible on these phenomena in a short space of time. This will enable science to tell whether radiation and magnetic intensities are fairly constant or fluctuate.

Tass emphasized the satellite is moving slower than the first two Soviet moonshots of last January and last month. The slower speed is to prevent the satellite from escaping the pull of the moon, which must send it circling back toward earth. Otherwise, the satellite would fly off

After seventeen years of faithful service at Bedford Station post office Mrs. B.A. McIntyre has retired.

She and her husband were very pleasantly surprised and presented with a well-filled purse and address, on behalf of all the patrons of Bedford Station, both local and rural, which spoke feelingly of the kind associations enjoyed.

Mrs. McIntyre was also a recipient of a beautiful gift from Ten Mile House Women's Institute.

Both Mrs. McIntyre and her husband are deeply grateful for the kindness and generosity of the people with whom they came in contact over the years, and will cherish the happy memories during their retirement.

HEARS DECISION
"The president," said Hagerty, "has received word of the action of the policy committee of the steelworkers union in rejecting proposals made by management."

"The president wants me to express his keen disappointment that there has been no meeting of minds to date in settling this steel strike through collective bargaining."

"Secondly, the matter of the dock strike now is before the president. There again, he would insist that this strike, which is tying up the ports of our country, be settled and settled promptly."

Although the strike has been under way only five days as compared to the 83 days the steel strike has been running, the government is understood to regard the dock tie-up as the more urgent matter.

That shutdown caught shippers unprepared and losses in perishable commodities have been heavy. The economic impact has roiled Washington with demands for government action.

DRIVER FAINTS ON WAY TO DOCTOR
James Tuplin, 65, of New Annapolis was taken to hospital in Summerside with chest injuries and a minor head laceration after he had apparently fainted for the second time yesterday morning. The first caused him to strike his head at home, and the second resulting in the above accident while enroute to Summerside to see a doctor in connection with the first fall. The car left the road about a half-mile from his home, travelling almost parallel with the highway for about 300 feet before crashing through a lawn fence and striking a tree on the lawn at the home of Edsel Dalzell in New Annapolis.
