LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Plans First—Then Bids—Then Results.

SIR,—One of the reasons why Charlottetown accomplishes so little that is enterprising, or calculated to make her beauty visible to strangers, is that she always begins at the wrong end. Her imagination is let loose on the profits, before the first practical suggestion comes to the top. Discussion takes its strides on party lines, instead of party walls. The shadows of selfishness throw out long impossibilities, before there is substance enough to shade a cent. If an improvement ever possesses a popular interest, (as the hotel and bathing now does) there springs up immediately such a crop of mushroom opinion that the thing goes to sleep, and the debate dies. However, one certainty remains:—In spite of apathy, of crookedness, and selfish greed,—a first class hotel and a full fledged bathing establishment, are as surely among the future events of our neglected city, as the fact of a long felt want of them, belongs to the past. The despairing may look forward with hope, and those who identify the interests of the place with their own, may feel assured that their day of progress is not far off. Right there at Douses' wharf, there is a property that furnishes a site for this double scheme, no where else to be found so complete and perfect for the double purpose. The area both land and water, are ample; the title unexceptionable; the prospect indestructible; the facilities for every kind of sport and pleasure, inexhaustible and the owner? Well, "Barkus is willin'." The first thing to do is to raise a fund for procuring plans combining the two schemes. I propose to raise $100 from twenty persons, at $5 each (my own subscription is ready and will be gladly put down), for first, second and third prizes to skilled architects, to be divided into sums of $50, $30 and $20. With the plans this inducement will secure, there would be no lack of capital to carry out the full programme, for every natural advantage required for the two purposes of Hoteling and Bathing, are self-existent at Douse's Wharf, and only require a little push and common sense to so shape them, that not only Charlottetown, but the whole Island, would pulse with satisfaction over the boom of prosperity that would surely tion of the furlough till election day. Gen. Grant wrote on the back of the papers: "If Col. Blank is able to travel over his district to electioneer for Congress he is able to be with his regiment, and he is hereby ordered to join it immediately or be dismissed from the service." Gen. Grant could obey orders as well as give them. He walked down on the wharf at City Point one day, absorbed in thought. The inevitable cigar was in his mouth. A negro guard touched his arm and said:—"No smoking on the dock, sah." "Are those your orders?" asked the General, looking up. "Yes, sah," replied the watchman, courteously but decidedly. "Very good orders," said Grant, as he threw his cigar in the water. The attack of Fort Donelson, which established Grant's fame, is said to have been decided upon by a simple circumstance. The day before the attack most of the troops had marched a long distance, part of it in a bitter cold night. A council of war was called to determine whether an immediate attack should be made, or whether the troops should have a day of rest. The officers were in favor of rest. Grant said nothing, but appeared absorbed in thought. Presently, when every one had expressed an opinion, he said: "There was a deserter came in this morning. Let us see him and hear what he has to say." The man was sent for and came in. Grant looked in his haversack and then asked: "Where are you from?" "Fort Donelson," "Got six days rations in your haversack, have you not?" "Yes, sir," "When were they served out?" "Yesterday morning." The same to all the troops?" "Yes, sir," "Gentlemen, troops do not have six days' rations served out to them in a fort if they mean to stay there. These men mean to retreat—not to fight. We will attack at once."

The North-west Rebellion.

In an instructive and fairly written paper on "The Half-breed and Indian Insurrection," contributed by the Rev. John McLean, of Blood reserve, Fort McLeod, Alberta, to the August number of the Canadian Methodist Magazine, the author says, with regard to the causes of the trouble:—"It is unjust to ascribe all the mistakes to the perverseness of one or two individuals, even though strong assertions may be sustained by the voice of the people. The good done by the department seems to be lost sight of at the present time, as the evils arising from many causes are being especially ferreted out. Perfection in any system is not gained in a day. By the assistance of the department, the Indians have made progress in agriculture. Men who in former years regarded labor as degrading, have now learned to toil. Schools have been established and satisfactory progress made in education. The physical and well-being of the Indian has been attended to with a good measure of success."

Crop Reports.

The experience of the Northwest two seasons ago when the prevalence of unusual meteorological conditions caused considerable damage to the wheat crop, showed the disadvantage of a country being dependent on even so splendid a cereal. Fortunately what has been learned in Minnesota and Dakota, where the climate is of the same general character as in the Canadian territories, proves that diversified farming is attended with great success. The crop reports from these States just published indicate that in certain localities where the spring wheat has been a failure, oats, barley, flax, hay or root crops have turned out magnificently. Hay seems never to fail in that region, the natural grasses of the country being among the finest and most nutritious known. Of late, too, corn-raising has been attended with rare success, good returns being obtained on ground that ten years back was generally pronounced unadapted for that branch of agriculture.

A Petrified Giant.

Two men have recently discovered in a cave near Victoria, B. C., what seems to be the upper part of the body of a petrified giant. The material is of the hardest kind of granite, with rims of quartz running through it. The face is almost perfect. The eyes and nose have fallen in, and the ears have gone, leaving holes. The ribs can be seen and counted in the stone. The arms are broken off below the shoulders, and the legs at the thighs. Several parts are perfect, and show the body to be that of a largely developed man about ten feet high. At the places where the legs and arms are broken off there is a cylindrical shaped substance of darker color than the external part, which is supposed to represent the bone.

Riel's Wife Distracted with Grief and Utterly Destitute.

When Mrs. Riel, who resides a few miles out of Winnipeg, heard of her husband's sentence, she became frantic and rushed from her house to the woods, where she hid. She was only partially clothed and in bare feet, and was nearly dead when found by her friends. So terrible is the shock she may never recover her reason. A great deal of sympathy is felt for her and her children, and a subscription list has been started for them, as they are penniless.

Return of Tuttle's Comet.

A cable message received at the Harvard College Observatory from Keil, Prussia, announces the discovery at Nice, France, of Tuttle's comet of 1858. This comet was originally seen by Tuttle, assistant, Harvard College Observatory, and is known to be periodical and its return has been expected for a year. The following position was predicted by cable. Aug. 9, 6.12, Greenwich time, right ascension 7 hours, 23 minutes, 43 seconds; declination north, 28 deg. 1, 24, nominal.

AYER'S

restores, with the gloss and freshness of youth, faded or gray hair to a natural, rich brown color, or deep black, as may be desired. By its use light or red hair may be darkened, thin hair thickened, and baldness often, though not always, cured. It checks falling of the hair, and stimulates a weak and sickly growth to vigor. It prevents and cures scurf and dandruff, and heals nearly every disease peculiar to the scalp. As a Ladies' Hair Dressing, the Vigor is unequalled; it contains neither oil nor dye, renders the hair soft, glossy, and silken in appearance, and imparts a delicate, agreeable, and lasting perfume.

Mr. C. P. BRIDGER writes from Kirby, O., July 3, 1882: "Last fall my hair commenced falling out, and in a short time I became nearly bald. I used part of a bottle of AYER'S HAIR VIGOR, which stopped the falling of the hair, and started a new growth. I have now a full head of hair growing vigorously, and am convinced that but for the use of your preparation I should have been entirely bald."

J. W. BOWEN, proprietor of the McArthur (Ohio) Enquirer, says: "AYER'S HAIR VIGOR is a most excellent preparation for the hair. I speak of it from my own experience. Its use promotes the growth of new hair, and makes it glossy and soft. The VIGOR is also a sure cure for dandruff. Not within my knowledge has the preparation ever failed to give entire satisfaction."

Mr. ANGE FAIRBAIN, leader of the celebrated "Fairbairn Family" of Scottish Vocalists, writes from Boston, Mass., Feb. 6, 1884: "Ever since my hair began to give signs of the change which denoting time procureth, I have used AYER'S HAIR VIGOR, and so have been able to maintain an appearance of youthfulness—a matter of considerable consequence to ministers, orators, actors, and in fact every one who lives in the eyes of the public."

Mrs. O. A. PASCOTT, writing from 18 Elm St., Charlestown, Mass., April 14, 1882, says: "Two years ago about two-thirds of my hair came off. It thinned very rapidly, and I was fast growing bald. On using AYER'S HAIR VIGOR the falling stopped and a new growth commenced, and in about a month my head was completely covered with short hair. It has continued to grow, and is now as good as before it fell. I regularly use but one bottle of the VIGOR, but now use it occasionally as a dressing."

We have hundreds of similar testimonials to the efficacy of AYER'S HAIR VIGOR. It needs but a trial to convince the most skeptical of its value.
