

Soul-Searching Chartrand Invades World Of Thinker

By MARVEN MOSS
MONTREAL (CP)—Reggie Chartrand went soul-searching at 27, gave up the prize ring and plunged into the world of the thinker.

Now at 36 he works as a water, reads the works of such philosophers as Jean-Jacques Rousseau and Blaise Pascal, and runs a defunct-riding boxing school in a rundown white-painted building that once housed a Protestant church.

He is also a self-proclaimed separatist, a supporter of the movement seeking to shear Quebec from Confederation.

Chartrand bought his building for $15,000 a year ago in a drab east-end area where tenements are crammed together and tough-looking kids scurry about the streets.

Inside, in his cubbyhole of an office, his desk bears a telephone, a copy of Nat Finkelstein's Ring Record Book and an economic treatise by Raymond Barbeau, a top-ranking separatist figure.

Once one of Canada's leading welterweights, Chartrand is a squat, muscular man of five-foot-seven with angry, deep-set eyes, dark curly hair and the typical features of the fighter—broad nose and scar tissue around the eyes.

At 165 pounds he is 20 or so heavier than the night he fought Tony Perry here for the Canadian title in 1964 and bowed in a 12-round decision.

Why did Chartrand quit?

HIGH SCHOOL BATTLE

St. Dunstan's High School and Prince of Wales College, Charlottetown, are scheduled to play a football game this afternoon in a provincial senior 'A' interscholastic football league.

The Saints are undefeated this season in league play. Action starts at 5.30. Here are four Saints who will be trying to win the Maritime crown in intermediate 'A'. They found that it was far from a money-making venture. In fact, the surplus that Sandy made in the finals with Combines was soon lost and a lot more in the playdowns with Fredericton and Bridgewater.

He drifted to Montreal as a youth, took a $15-a-week job in a clothing factory and started campaigning in amateur boxing.

"I never had much money. My clothing was impoverished. In the summer I didn't even wear shoes. In the classroom I was a dumb-bell. In the schoolyard, with my fists, I was a champion."

Goyette Stars As Rangers Edge Bruins; Leafs Win

NEW YORK (AP)—Phil Goyette scored three goals and had an assist in leading New York Rangers to a 4-3 victory over Boston Bruins in a National Hockey League game here Wednesday night.

But it was Vic Hadfield's goal with only 50 seconds left that brought the Rangers an exciting victory.

Hadfield's goal topped off a fine performance by his linemates, Goyette and Andy Bathgate, who figured in all four New York scores.

Goyette scored the first three goals and assisted on Hadfield's winning marker while Bathgate assisted on all four.

It was a tremendous game with three goals coming in the last three minutes of play. At 17:07 of the final period Goyette apparently won the game with his third goal, giving him five for the season, but the Bruins bounced back to tie on Leo Bovin's goal at 18:06. A minute later came Hadfield's winner.

SPORTS FRONT

We'd Like To Know

WE'D surely like to be able to answer those questions fired at us regarding what to expect in the way of local hockey this season. However, we readily admit we just don't know and we have the feeling there are others out there who don't know either.

Last season Summerside Combines, RCAF Eagles and Sandy's Paradise Royals composed a league which started out rather early and concluded in mid-February. Of course, they never registered both ways but up until registration came, the general presumption was that the league was senior. That changed when the January 25 deadline came and the cards went to MAHA registrar Hanson Dowell.

Old Spain Penguins, a strictly junior club and eventual Maritime junior champions, were members of the league purely on a 'guest' basis. Naturally they couldn't help to compose the league since they were a registered junior club. Royals costed Penguins in the semi-finals and Combines sidelined the Eagles. In the seven-game final, Royals were the eventual winners 4-3.

ALREADY this season two meetings have been held in an attempt to reorganize the league but nothing has come out of these sessions but a bit of confusion. Mind you, we are not attempting to blame officials for this indecision. You can't have a hockey league executive until you have hockey fans to form a league.

Summerside Combines are the only club to date that have signified their intention of wanting to continue. Sandy Frizzell, manager of the Royals and Myron Bell, Old Spain Penguins, are weighing things carefully before committing themselves. However, both did state that they wanted no more of this 'intermediate business' and that if they went into another league it would be strictly senior. Although Royals went on last spring to win the Maritime crown in intermediate 'A', they found that it was far from a money-making venture. In fact, the surplus that Sandy made in the finals with Combines was soon lost and a lot more in the playdowns with Fredericton and Bridgewater.

And so it's senior only if Sandy decides to enter a team this season.

MYRON appears in agreement with Sandy in this regard. Both gentlemen feel that intermediate hockey has no drawing power and they'd sooner take a good beating from a team of senior calibre than win easily before a small crowd in intermediate arenas.

How the Combines feel on this matter we don't honestly know but these facts seem to point to another meeting is held Monday night at Summerside.

Meeting On Monday

WITH the airport battle won, chances are that the Eagles will come back into the fold if they do and Sandy and Myron will be kept alive.

However, there were many grumblings last season about the expense of travelling and already rumors are prevalent that attempts will be made to form leagues at Summerside and Charlottetown. The capital city has the capital city of MAHA playoffs. Some maintain that the playoffs are the only time that Charlottetown teams draw at Summerside and the same way both Summerside and the capital city have a chance to see the need of a long schedule when the fans have shown such indifference these past few seasons.

We admit the league has some things to offer in terms of success and we are really hoping when asked to give a logical solution to the problem. Combines was soon lost and then by all means let the league in on it. They'll readily buy anything which would create more fan interest and thereby put the loop on a more sound footing.

It's Getting Late

SURELY by Monday, something definite will be agreed upon. Charlie Hogan is starting this weekend to put ice in the rink and the MAHA board is expected to meet at the Charlottetown Forum open by November 15. It is indeed time that plans were finalized for the coming hockey season. We don't think it was a waste of time before.

However, better late than never.

Annual Meetings Are Now Tame

By JACK SULLIVAN
 Canadian Press Sports Editor

The official, who declined use of his name, said "I hope he hasn't talked himself out of a meeting in the Olympic team" in Tokyo next October. "It is hard to say what the repercussions will be on a person's ability to compete for a medal in such international sports as Olympic Games."

Another point most likely to be brought up is whether Steen, who finished third in the shot-put at the 1962 British Empire Games in Australia, received money for the article.

When he did, he may have talked himself right out of an amateur career, the official said. "And that would be really tough for him. We'll just have to wait and see."

Club Holds Annual Meet

Dr. Angus MacEachern is the new president of Belvedere Golf and Country Club. Dr. MacEachern was appointed at the club's annual meeting on Thursday. He succeeded Dr. J.K.L. Irwin who presided at Tuesday's meeting.
