

MR. AND MRS. F. F. SIMMONS, JR., AND ATTENDANTS

Pretty Summer Wedding Solemnized At Malpeque

The United Church, Malpeque, was the scene of a pretty summer wedding recently when Joyce Elizabeth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Bryant, became the bride of Freeman Frederick Simmons, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Freeman Simmons, North Bedford. Rev. C.R. Webber of Summerside performed the double ring ceremony.

The church was attractively decorated with summer flowers. Mrs. J.B. Andrews was in charge of the wedding music and accompanied Miss Elizabeth Brookings, who sang "The Lord's Prayer" previous to the ceremony and "I'll Walk Beside You" during the signing of the register.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was lovely in her wedding gown of lace and tulle over taffeta. The fitted bodice, with long torso, featured long fitted sleeves forming points over the hands. The dress had a Sabrina neckline and the skirt made of tier upon tier of lace fell softly from the long styled bodice, a deep fold from either side formed a floor length detached panel with pointed edge. She wore a chapel veil with sequin and pearl trim and she carried a cascade bouquet of Better Time roses.

Miss Georgie Lockhart, maid of honor, was gowned in shrimp silk taffeta with a matching semi-pique hat and gloves. She carried a Colonial bouquet of white Indianapolis mums.

The Misses Miriam Hyde and Dorothy Simmons were identically gowned in aqua silk taffeta with matching semi-pique hats and they carried Colonial bouquets of pale pink carnations.

Mr. Arnold Waugh was the groomsmen, while Messrs. Wilfred Waugh and Stavert Huestis ushered the guests to the marked pews.

Mrs. Bryant chose for her daughter's wedding a dress of teal blue lace over taffeta with navy and white accessories and a corsage of pink carnations. The groom's mother was attired in navy with white accessories and a corsage of white carnations.

Mrs. Fred Champion, grand-mother of the bride was attired in a turquoise dress with white accessories and a corsage of white feathered carnations.

A reception for eighty-five guests was held at Mulberry Lodge where the bride's table with its attractive decoration of lilies of the valley was centered with a three-tier wedding cake.

For the honeymoon trip through the Maritimes the bride changed to a navy linen sheath dress with navy and white check duster and white accessories. Her corsage was of pale pink carnations. Photo by Sears of the Read Studio.

ELLEN'S DIARY

Canada-You Are My Home, My Land, I Dearly Love

And now with her parting smile she June-month brings us up to honor presently an anniversary of Canada's birth. On a summer day she was born, a small young thing away back in the now quaint years. Now she matures, growing ever more venerable. Her voice is listened to with increasing respect in the councils of nations. One of Britain's fine daughters in her mother's house she is "but mistress in my own."

Wide and far-flung are Canada's boundaries her eastern shores washed by the bold blue breakers of the Atlantic. West, a broad continent apart, her shores are lavied by the warmer Pacific. South her lands dip in sunny orchards and vineyards, and northward in strange tundras and wildernesses, touched lightly by Summer, she claims her name as "The Lady of the Snows."

"What is Canada?" we asked Mack our eight-year-old, with more curiosity this evening.

"Oh I don't know", he shrugged off the query which smacked too much of the recent tests of school. "I guess, Canada is ten provinces—and more territory... lots more" he said, "and we're not the youngest Province although we are the smallest."

"We're the Million Acre Farm" Granddaughter smiled, "And The Garden of the Gulf"

"And a green and red crescent set in a silver sea" we added.

"Anyway we belong to Canada" Mack nodded.

And what a great country ours is—and is destined to be, so rich and so fair.

"But the destiny of a country depends not on its material resources. It depends on the character of her people" the Rev. Dr. Grant an early Canadian writer says. "Here too is full ground for confidence. We (Canadians) is everything 'are sprung of earth's first blood, have titles manifold.' We come of a race that never counted the number of its foes, nor the number of its friends, nor freedom, loyalty or God, was concerned."

Proud words but Canadian have a proud heritage to keep. How shall we best do this One says: "He serves his country best Who lives pure life, and doeth righteous deed, And walks straight paths, however others stray; And leaves his sons as uttermost bequest. A stainless record that all men may read."

And what, the thought comes to mind, does Canada mean to us? It is a farm caught against a hillside, in a valley of the mill-stream. Only an ordinary farm as Island farms go, but with its meadows and groves, its paths worn through the years, a place very dear. It is a husband and home, many loved ones and friends. It is freedom under the laws of the Land. It is a school, and churches where we may worship, a village store and a community hall. And over the fields to far-off horizons and nearer about, other homes sending out (now) their friendly twinkling lights. To us "This then is our Canada... this favored land Held in the precious hollow of God's Hand."

Until Wednesday—Diary Good-night.

MARY HAWORTH

Mother-in-law Gradually Severs Family Relations

Dear Mary Haworth—Just before Dick and I married, his father died. My heart went out to his mother and although we refused to live with her, we did make our home in the same town.

She and I became very close and I listened while she talked out her grief; and then helped her, as best I could, to face the great change in her life. I grew to love her as a mother.

My own family life was always full of loving closeness; and I have many friends, and close friends. I love my husband and children, and am a good wife and mother. But somehow Dick's mother is drifting away from our love; even my brother-in-law and his wife feel it.

She has attached herself to another family, and makes it her own. She spends all her free time and special days with them, and lets us know that we aren't welcome when she is entertaining her friends. She can't wait for us to leave on Sundays, so she can join these people. She doesn't even invite us to her birthday parties; and if we drop in she makes it embarrassingly clear that we are intruding. . . . ASKED TO JOIN

She acts like a child, tasting freedom for the first time; and jealously guards her friends, to keep them for herself. Her friends have asked us to join them a few times and liked us very much. It isn't that we want her undying devotion or to crash in upon her friendships. All we want is acceptance as her family.

It is awfully hard to have your love turned back upon you; to be told that you have to go home now, because mother has to get ready to go out (when you were asked to spend the evening). . . . I could cry when I think how much family love she is missing. She is building up to a lonely old age, I think. Please help me to help her. Or if I am wrong, please help me to quiet my mind. . . . B. F.

PRIVACY OF LIFE

Dear B.F.: In your long letter, here condensed, you say that your mother-in-law, let's call her Mrs. F., was "very dominated by her husband, and lived only for her family, when they were all together." Yet the family would go off and leave her alone on weekends.

Nowadays the tables are turned; she has no time for family. Recently she even refused to travel 100 miles to see her own mother, when the latter became desperately ill. Also she has alienated herself from her sis-
