

The McKay Burglary Case.

FURTHER EVIDENCE TAKEN—THE PRISONERS MAKE STATEMENTS—BOTH SENT UP FOR TRIAL IN THE SUPREME COURT.

The enquiry into the charge of burglary preferred against William Hill and Francis Fleming, was resumed this forenoon. There was a large number of spectators present.

THOS. A. ROOD was the first witness examined. He said he was the son of Mr. John Rood, of Milton. He remembered Tuesday, the 10th of July. He saw four strange persons in their hay loft that morning—three men and a boy. About fifteen minutes after he saw them, two of the four came into the house and asked for breakfast. All four came down from the loft previous to this, and stood at the stable door a little while. He was in the room while the two were eating their breakfast. One of the men had his hand in a sling. He said he got it scalded with hot lard. He had a brown moustache, but otherwise clean shaven face. Noticed nothing peculiar about the other man. The two prisoners are the persons who had breakfast at our place. Did not notice that one of them was lame. John Moreside came into the house while the men were at breakfast. The men told my mother they were going to Georgetown, but were on the wrong road.

JANE BULLMAN was next sworn. She said she lived at New Glasgow, and was at home on Wednesday, the 11th July. Two strange men called at her place on the afternoon of that day. They asked for something to eat. They said they had come a long distance, and were on their way to Summerside. One of the men had one foot cut off; the other wore a brown moustache, but no other whiskers. The prisoners in the dock are the men who were at our place. The men went toward New Glasgow Bridge after leaving our place. Witness helped get some bread and milk for the two men.

JOSEPH PINEO said he was a tailor by trade, and lived and worked on the Rustico Road, some two miles from McKay's shop. He remembered Tuesday, the 10th. He was at Peter Martin's shop, where he worked, on that day. Martin and his wife were away, and witness had charge of the shop. About tea time two men came into the shop and asked for a fig of tobacco. They got the tobacco, tendering 25 cents in payment. Witness could not change the money, and the men, after taking a bite of the fig, returned it. One of the men had a club foot. The other man wore a moustache, but did not know that he had any whiskers. Witness identified Hill as the man who had the club foot; but could not swear that Fleming was the man who was with him. To the best of his belief, however, he was the man.

FRED JORDAN was next called. He is a son of the man who keeps the cemetery in the Royalty. On Sunday the 8th July he saw three men and a boy in the railway station there. They were sitting down reading. Witness sat in the station a while and then went home. At dinner time he went down to the station again and on his way met two of the men going up to the house. In the station he saw the other man and the boy. He then returned to the house and saw the other two men at dinner. After dinner he again went down to the station and saw the man and boy going along the track. The other two men resumed their reading after dinner. After a while the man and boy returned to the station and witness left all four there together. In the evening witness again returned to the station and saw one of the men bandaging up his arm. One of the men had his foot cut off at the instep. Francis Fleming is the man who had his arm bandaged up; Hill is the man who had his foot cut off; John Fleming (the boy) is the one who went along the track with the other man. The fourth man was a good deal darker than the others, and had a light moustache. He wore a round felt hat. Fleming wore a hard hat.

HENRY C. JORDAN said he was keeper of the Cemetery in the Royalty and the father of the last witness. He was positive it was on the 8th of July (Sunday) that his son was down to the station. His testimony corroborated that of the previous witness.

This was all the evidence the court deemed it necessary to receive, and His Honor intimated his intention of sending the men up for trial in the Supreme Court. The prisoner Hill then rose and asked permission to make a statement. His request was complied with and he spoke as follows: The fourth man referred to in the evidence was the man with whom I went to Rustico, and not the prisoner Fleming. Although this man was somewhat darker than Fleming he resembled him very much. Both of us had met Fleming on several previous occasions. I think it was on the morning of Tuesday that we separated from Fleming and went to Rustico. Fleming told us that he was going to Souris. I came back on Thursday, and on the next day (Friday) met Fleming. He told me that he had been up to Mount Stewart, and said that it was no use of his going any further, as he did not get the information he wanted about his brother. We were together off and on from that time till we were arrested.

Francis Fleming then made a statement. He said:—On the Saturday before Sunday, the 8th, I met this man Hill and the other man. On Sunday we were in the Cemetery Station. On Monday we went over the road where the waterworks are being built. We intended sleeping that night in an old barn off the road, but did not do so because it was too open. Instead we went to the barn where the boy (Rodd) says he saw us next morning, and stopped there all night. Hill and I had breakfast there. I asked the lady of the house if the road went to Georgetown. I was told that it did not. I then returned back, coming as far as the station. Then I separated from Hill and the other man, they saying they were going some place to see about fishing. I came down to the Junction then and went towards Mount Stewart in company with the boy. That night I stopped at the house of the man I suppose is named Fitzpatrick. The previous statement I made is all right.

His Honor then ordered that the two men—Hill and Fleming—be remanded to jail to stand trial in the Supreme Court, and that the boy, John Fleming, be also held as a material witness.

SPECIAL DESPATCHES TO THE EXAMINER.

The Fishery Treaty.

WASHINGTON, July 23.

In the Senate to-day, Senators Davies and Stewart argued against the Fishery Treaty. Senator Stewart suggested that there should be honorable negotiations opened between the United States, Great Britain and Canada, to blot out all wrongs or imaginary wrongs, suffered or supposed to have been suffered on both sides and the foundation of a union of the great English speaking race. England should name a sum to be paid for the Canadas, and the Dominion should make conditions of union. The United States should respond in a spirit of concession and generosity. If no treaty could be made on these terms, all negotiations should cease until it was time for reflection and consideration and for all existing irritation to pass away.

News Notes From Ottawa.

OTTAWA, July 23.

A special cable says that the prizes won by the Canadian team at Wimbledon aggregate three hundred and twenty three pounds, being a larger amount than last year.

Two hundred and fifty more leclanders are expected at Quebec to-day, bound for the Northwest. Mrs. Donaldson, widow of the late Major Donaldson, while walking along the Edge Cliff at the foot of Parks Street to-day tripped and fell over it. The Cliff is 75 feet high and the lady was instantly killed. To-day the Liberals of Halton nominated John Haldie to contest the riding for the Commons.

The Skeena River Troubles.

OTTAWA, July 23.

The Government has not received any further news from British Columbia regarding the trouble with the Indians on the Skeena River. It is scarcely likely that any news will be received for a day or two, as it must go from Essington to Victoria before it can be telegraphed here. Essington is two or three days' steam from Victoria, and no steamer was expected down before H. M. S. Caroline's return.

At Dalhousie.

DALHOUSIE, July 23.

The Governor General and party arrived here this afternoon from the Cascapedia, and after waiting for a few hours at the Inch Arran House, left by special train for Quebec.

Sir John A. Macdonald will leave here to-morrow to visit Sir George Stephen at St. Octave.

Disastrous Fires.

STOCKHOLM, July 23.

Disastrous fires in the timber regions of Northern Sweden have destroyed the town of Sundesvall and two neighboring villages. The loss is estimated at $9,000,000.

ELENSBURG, Wt., July 23.

The coal mining town of Rosdin, 28 miles from here, was burned yesterday. The entire population of 1500 is homeless. Nothing was saved. About 250 houses were burned and nothing is left but the Coal Company's office and depot. Loss, $500,000.

Drowned in the River.

CAIRO, July 23.

A despatch from Wady Halfa says that three boats loaded with native fugitives, who left that place during the attack of dervishes on the 20th inst., sunk in the river and 150 persons were drowned.

Personal.

A letter received by a Minister of the Crown in Ottawa from Sir John Macdonald, intimates that the Premier's health is good, and that he is enjoying his well-earned holiday.

The honorary degree of Master of Arts has been conferred by Dartmouth College upon Mr. Stephen O'Meara, the news editor of the Boston Journal. Mr. O'Meara has also been chosen Treasurer of the New England Association.

Mr. Sidney Rauschenberg, of New York, who is connected with one of the New York hospitals, was in the city last week, and this morning leaves for P. E. Island. Mr. R. is travelling through the province gathering information for a series of articles he is to write on the climate, etc., for some southern papers. St. John Telegraph.

Dr. Anderson, of Prince of Wales College, who was at the teachers' convention, remained in St. John over Sunday. He informs the Sun that during a residence of 35 years in Prince Edward Island he has only been ill once. Dr. Anderson is not unwilling to give the climate of the little province due credit for its share in this result, but claims something for the sturdy constitution which he brought from Aberdeenshire.—St. John Sun.

Mrs. Bessie Starr Keefe was born in the Annapolis Valley, in sight of Blomidon, spent her childhood in Yarmouth, N. S., graduated with honor in the Liberal Arts Course of the Wesleyan College, Hamilton, Ontario, 1876, and in the same year was married to the Rev. B. B. Keefe, of the Niagara Methodist Conference. She has filled with great distinction responsible positions in the Ontario W. C. T. U. Her latest triumph, which may be classed as brilliant, was won during the International Council of Women in Washington, where, amid the delegates of the various nations, she was readily accorded a first place, both in committee and on the platform.

COMPLIMENTARY.—Prior to his departure from Summerside—where he has been stationed for the past three years—Rev. Benjamin Chappelle, A. M. (Methodist), was presented with several addresses and testimonials of the most flattering nature. The members of the session of the Presbyterian Church, on behalf of the congregation in their letter, addressed to Mr. Chappelle's "broad and liberal views on all religious questions" while the address of the Literary and Scientific Society, headed by Capt. Joseph Read said "our object in the address is to encourage you to maintain that spirit of charity and fair play—that broad and generous treatment of the feelings and sentiments of others, with whose opinions you did not agree, that kind and pleasant look, as well as word and deed which made your presence a happy influence for good." The Rev. gentleman left for his new field of labor on Thursday last at Campbellton, N. B., followed by the well wishes of all our people.

INCIDENT FIRE.—Says the Summerside Pioneer: What might have been a serious accident occurred in the Y. M. C. A. building of this town Sunday evening. Just as the evening service was over and the people were going out, the large chandelier hanging from the centre of the ceiling, fell with a crash, the oil from one lamp splashing on Miss McSween the organist, who was in the rear of the crowd. The floor caught fire and being saturated with oil began to blaze quite lively, but the flames were finally smothered with rugs, etc. Had the people been a minute later in leaving, we would probably have a different story to tell. Strange to say this was only prevented by the stewards forgetting to take up the collection.
