CIVIL LIBERTIES ENDANGERED

Bar Association Warned In Crime-Fight Problem

By KEITH KINCAD
HALIFAX (CP)—If existing crime-fighting methods are not successful, Parliament may pass laws which would result in restriction of individual freedom, the Canadian Bar Association was warned Tuesday.

John Hensinger, a Toronto lawyer who has made a study of the duties and rights of citizens related to the rights of police to make arrests, said both sides are often ignorant of an individual's rights.

While individuals have rights, often glossed over by authorities, citizens must not exercise them selfishly to the detriment of the society as a whole. Eventually they will be lost, he said, the association's civil liberties section at the annual meeting.

Since the Second World War there has been a disquieting increase in crime and a public demand for better law enforcement will lead to Parliament intervening, he said. Civil liberties removed by legislation are seldom returned.

BALANCE NEEDED
Mr. Hensinger said a balance must be preserved between order and liberty, but if there is general public welfare suffering, the newspaper's responsibility is to insist on change. Those who prize our existing liberties have the responsibility of demonstrating they can exercise them without any serious breakdown in public order or resulting in any lessening of the general welfare of the community.

Rescue At Sea On Road Noted

DEFENDANT IS CONFUSED

SEABROOK, N.H. (AP)—Defendant John Hansala, 46, was confused. The municipal court judge, himself, said he never had an experience like that before.

Hansala remained in the judge's hall a good hour before he had a look before him only a week before, and was fined for driving too fast on Route 85, a New Hampshire toll road. Judge Richard L. H. 11 was a reminder.

And now, said Hansala, he was in court again, charged with driving too slowly on the same road.

The state trooper told the judge he clocked Hansala at a steady 40 miles an hour for six miles in the route 95 passing lane.

It was the first time, commented the judge, that the same motorist had come before him in succeeding weeks charged with violating both extremes of the New Hampshire speed statutes.

"Guilty as charged," said the judge. Hansala was pulled out a $10 bill to pay for another driving lesson.

Because of his advanced age—the former president celebrated his 81st birthday on August 10—any surgery presented an element of danger. But Columbia Presbyterian Medical Center said it was its patient.

Bombs And Jobless Spark Anglican Fears

By CARL MOLLINS
KINGSTON (CP)—The danger of nuclear war, the miseries of unemployment and a catalogue of other social ills were impressed Tuesday on the 304 bishops, clergy and laymen who speak for the Anglican Church of Canada in general synod.

The church leaders advocated "a major thrust toward a continuing campaign to abolish nuclear weapons by international agreement."

They recorded "urgent concern" for the unemployed and commended every constructive method to help them without work.

The synod grappled for four hours with the issues. It spoke finally in a voice tempered by the need to accommodate differing attitudes on nuclear weapons, peace, unemployment, industrial problems, leisure, family life and interest rates.

Debate featured a flurry of amendments that altered the wording of five of the 10 main resolutions as originally drafted by the Anglican council for social service and its committees.

CAN EXERT INFLUENCE
The assembly recorded its belief that nations which renounce nuclear weapons can exert an important "moral influence" on world affairs but recognized the "grave dilemma" faced by governments mindful of defence.

"Yet this synod records its conviction that the only sane course open to humanity is never to use a nuclear weapon and to use which is regarded continuously as a matter of utmost urgency for the abolition by international agreement of nuclear bombs and of other weapons of similar destructive power, the use of which is repugnant to the Christian conscience."

The contract, providing for a total wage increase of eight per cent an hour and setting up a special fund to provide laid-off workers with a measure of security, will be retroactive to the beginning of this year and will run to the end of 1963.

Terms already have been accepted by the railways. The formal signing is expected to take place in about two or three months, after the three new railroads involved in the dispute and the 15 CLC-affiliated unions bargaining with the non-ops put the terms of settlement into contract language.
