

Ottawa Report

By Patrick Nicholson

John Diefenbaker is best known in Parliament for his continuing advocacy of a Bill of Rights for Canadians; recently he has been appointed spokesman on external affairs for the Conservative Party. So when he returned last week from his six weeks tour of Europe and the Near East, addressing the Hebrew University in Jerusalem on the subject of Human Rights and discussing economic co-operation with the leaders of our NATO allies, he might have been expected to talk about these two subjects in which he specializes.

His first day back in Ottawa was spent in the Supreme Court where Diefenbaker QC used his golden tongue as an advocate in an important law case, while Diefenbaker M.P. gave the government a receipt from his usual barrage of pertinent and probing questions. As soon as his case was over, I dropped into his office and found him putting away his white Cossacks.

"Tell me about your trip, John," I asked him. "You know, it's a most remarkable thing," he replied, spreading himself into his large armchair where he always sprawls comfortably while talking. "Shepherds tend their sheep on that same hill outside Bethlehem."

I recalled that verse in St. Luke's gospel, describing the birth of Christ. "And there were in the same country shepherds abiding in the field, keeping watch over their flock by night. And, lo, the angel of the Lord came upon them..."

Holy Land Shrines

For thirty minutes, John kept me enthralled with the most vivid travelogue I have ever heard. His facile command of words supplying a wonderful commentary on the interesting high spots of the Holy Land which his sharp mind had picked out in his two weeks visit there.

He spoke of Nazareth, the scene of the Annunciation, and of the site of Joseph's workshop. He described the place in Tel-Aviv where Joseph and Mary hid the baby Jesus on their flight into Egypt to save him from Herod's persecution. He visited the scene of the Last Supper, although this was related as taking place in a large upper room, the ground level of Jerusalem has been raised in the past nineteen centuries through the destruction of the city, so that today one goes down not up to the site of the famous room, and there is the stone seat upon which the Lord sat.

Out towards the Mount of Olives, the garden of Gethsemane, the same today as it was in the year 30 A.D. even with five trees still standing which grew there in our Lord's day. It is a surprisingly tiny garden, says John, only about fifty feet by sixty feet, and in this respect his mental image of biblical times had been changed. For he had imagined the garden to be a large, open place where Christ would have found solitude.

Pilate's Courtroom

As a lawyer himself, he was doubly interested to visit Pilate's famous courtroom; on its two thousand year old floor, he saw cuts into the stone in the design of crosses within circles, on which the soldiers had played their dice games.

So, from the grotto birthplace through the scenes of life and crucifixion to Mount Tabor, the place of the resurrection, John and his wife Olive had followed the steps of the Master, to experience what was evidently one of the most memorable and moving events of his life.

The reason for his visit to the Holy Land was to give two lectures on Human Rights at the Hebrew University of Jerusalem, on the invitation of the Zionist Association of Canada. While there as an honoured guest, with the Premier of the State of Israel as his titular host, he was enabled to see what most of us know well only from histories twenty centuries old: the sacred places in Israel and Trans-Jordan. To say that he was interested and impressed is an understatement, as his lucky audiences will learn when he delivers to them the interesting and impressive speeches which he is now sure to be asked to make back here in Canada on his visit to the Holy Land. For in John Diefenbaker we now have a politician with a first hand knowledge of a subject of greater interest and wider appeal than a steady diet of political topics.

Dawson-Boudreau Wedding

A pretty wedding took place at the First Baptist Church in Halifax, May 1 (Saturday) at 3 p.m. when Betty Lou Allen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. K. C. Boudreau and Ullie Gathorne Dawson of only son of Col. and Mrs. U. G. Dawson, both of Yarmouth, formerly of Charlottetown, P.E.I., were united in marriage. Rev. H. M. DeWolfe performed the ceremony. Organist was Mr. Eric Farrant, and soloist, Miss Ann Johnson who sang "Oh Perfect Love" at the signing of the register.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a white alenon lace over taffeta with fitted bodice and a full skirt which fell into a graceful train. Her headpiece was a coronet of seeded pearls and a finger-tip veil of lace. Lace-mitts completed her costume. She carried a bouquet of red roses and white stephanotis.

Her sister, Patricia who was

Let's Talk It Over

We have on the highway between St. Elanors and Miscouche a very treacherous stretch of road, and in the past few years there have been three major accidents there. This stretch is located a little west of the road which turns in to the R. C. A. P. airport. It is a long, rather deceptively gentle curve with fairly long straightaways stretches on either side. We have noticed more than once that if you take either of the straightaways at a moderately fast speed, the curve proves troublesome. There seems to be more bend to it than meets the eye. Some sort of warning to drivers approaching from either side might help.

The Summerside Town Council is certainly taking the right step in instituting a major repair program for a half dozen or more streets in the town. Sections of these streets, Russell, Ottawa, Granville, and others on the hill, are in a deplorable condition, and patching hasn't been very helpful.

Two things which always come together are fast approaching us as May gets ready to give place to June. The most beautiful and balmy days of all the year and grading examinations! What a pity it is that children must do their hardest studying when the lure of the out-of-doors is calling to them with the most seductive voice of all months in the year! Some school systems permit pupils who have done well in their year's work to skip these last and most "sudden death" examinations in any case, and the fact that they take children away from Nature when it is at its brightest makes them still less desirable.

bridesmaid, wore a pink point depeint net over taffeta, bouffant bodice and matching stole. She carried a bouquet of white 'mums'.

Mr. Harry Roberts was the best man, and ushers were Messrs Richard Forsythe and Edgar Malay. Mrs. Boudreau, mother of the bride, wore a gown of navy blue lace over pink taffeta with matching navy blue accessories and a corsage of pink roses. The groom's mother wore a gown of blue grey pebble satin, gray accessories and a platinum fox throw; her corsage was red roses.

A reception was held in the church parlor. Rev. H. H. DeWolfe proposed the toast to the bride, and Mrs. Albert Holmes presided at the table.

For travelling the bride wore a pale blue ottoman cord dress, white accessories and fur jacket. The young couple will reside in Halifax.

Mosher-Henderson Wedding

A profusion of spring flowers and potted plants against a background of greenery created the floral setting in the Bedeque United Church for a pretty wedding on Tuesday afternoon, May 11 at 2 o'clock when Noreen Muncey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George P. Henderson, was united in marriage to Robert E. Mosher, son of Captain and Mrs. Allan Mosher of Montague. Rev. George K. Ward performed the double ring ceremony. Mrs. Walter Craig was in charge of the wedding music and accompanied Miss Audrey Woodside, cousin of the bride, as she sang "O Perfect Love" previous to the ceremony and "I'll Walk Beside You" during the signing of the register.

The bride was given in marriage by her father and attended by her sister, Miss Adele Henderson. Mr. Cecil Mosher was his brother's groomsmen. Messrs. Sidney Green and Allan Martin ushered the guests to their places which were marked with bows of white satin ribbon and sprigs of pink flowers.

The bride chose a floor length wedding gown of white nylon net over satin with bodice and bolero of lace, the collar of which was trimmed with pearls and sequins. A halo of white blossoms held in place a finger tip veil of embroidered net and she carried a cascade bouquet of red sweetheart roses.

The bridesmaid was gowned in orchid net over taffeta with matching floral headpiece and mitts. She carried a cascade bouquet of yellow and orchid 'mums'. Mr. Henderson chose for her daughter's wedding a two-piece dress of navy with matching accessories and mink neckpiece. Her corsage was of pink carnations. The groom's mother was attired in navy crepe with navy and white hat and navy accessories. Her corsage was of red carnations.

Following the ceremony a Reception for 45 guests was held at Linden Lodge, Bedeque, where the bride's table was centred with a three-tier wedding cake, topped with two wedding bells and surrounded by pink flowers and lighted tapers. Mrs. Charles Henderson, aunt of the bride, and Mrs. Harold Crockett presided over the tea cups, while Mrs. Sidney Green, Mrs. Kenneth Henderson, Miss Alice Moor, R.N., and Mrs. Robert Affleck assisted in serving. Mrs. Allan Martin was in charge of the guest book.

For a wedding trip by automobile to points of interest in Canada and eastern United States, the bride changed to a navy French tailored suit with navy and white accessories and corsage of pink carnations. On return they will reside in Dartmouth, N.S., where the groom is in the employ of G. B. Murphy, jeweler. The bride is a graduate of Prince County Hospital and has been on the nursing staff of the Victoria General Hospital, Halifax, N.S.

Newsy Notes

Automatic machines have been devised to prepare the tinplate and fabricate the can bodies. The sheets of tinplate that have been coated and lithographed, are fed into a slitter that cuts the body blanks. These enter a long body-making machine that completes the cylindrical body. The ends are made in a separate operation by punching them out by another machine on a punch press. These ends are then curled on the edges as they pass upward through the machine to fold into the flange of the cylindrical body. A sealing compound of liquid synthetic rubber is applied within the groove to serve as a sealing medium between the body and the ends. When the can leaves the flanger, it enters the double-seamer, and the end is put on similarly to the operation of sealing a can with the hand-sealer in common use. From the double-seamer, the cans are tested for air-leaks, and faulty ones are automatically rejected.

Canada's First Cannery

Mr. Tristram Halliday started the first cannery in Canada on the shore of the Bay of Fundy in 1839, to can salmon. Fruit canning followed, in 1870, at Grimsby, Ont. In what is known as the Niagara fruit belt. It was only near the end of the 19th century that fruit and vegetable canning became general in Ontario; the canning of lobsters and shell fish in the Maritimes and the great canning industry of salmon that started in British Columbia. There pioneers packed only a very small volume of food annually compared with the canning of fruit and vegetables in Canada today, which has now passed the $250,000,000 mark.

The canning industry provides a market for great quantities of farm and horticultural products annually. The British Columbia salmon catch that is canned has an annual market value of 50 million dollars. We observed large areas of peas being grown in the Fraser Delta, B.C. where the pea-canning facilities supply both the seed and the fertilizer. The owner prepares the land and plants the peas. Men and equipment from the canning factory harvest, vine and process the crop. The homely tin can makes possible the stock piling of essential foods for any emergency in peace or war; for without food industry and nations can be paralyzed and made ineffective.

FIGHT WITH SHOVELS

DETROIT, (CP)—Two neighbors in nearby Flat Rock squared off with shovels Sunday and fought to the end. Alexander E. Marks, 28, landed in hospital with critical head injuries. Hilton Holtz, 39, landed in jail for investigation of felonious assault. Marks could not be questioned but Holtz told police the fight happened after he criticized his neighbor's driving.

Strange But True

Of course, every home boasted a grandfather clock, or a smaller one, with complete wooden works—save for the metal pendulum.

About 20 years ago this writer purchased one of those wooden works clocks from the late Mrs. John Stevenson of North River, for $5. Reckoned I had an antique par excellence, so the next year we stowed it away in the auto and hit the trail for New York's Mohawk Valley. When we'd crossed the border I showed my valuable clock to an antique dealer in Maine. "No dice," he said. "I have four of the same vintage in stock and you can have your pick of 'em for $4 each."

In Massachusetts we made another stop at one of those wayside antique shops. Again I got my wonderful old clock out of moth balls and sang its age, and pointed out its wooden works to the proprietor.

"Hum," said the dealer in old, old things. "Such clocks are quite common. So common in fact that I wouldn't give you a dime for a dozen. Can't sell them now." That settled my experience in the antique business. Today the wonderful old time-piece which I'd hoped would net me a tidy sum, serves as a medicine cabinet in my cousin's home at Fultonville, N.Y.

YOSHIDA TO SEEK LOAN

TOKYO (AP)—Prime Minister Yoshida will seek a $120,000,000 loan to buy United States farm surpluses when he visits the U.S. on his world tour, the newspaper Asahi said today. Asahi said the Japanese government plans to use the loan to buy surplus wheat, raw cotton, barley and soybeans. Yoshida will leave June 4 for a visit to the United States, Canada, Britain, continental Europe, India and Pakistan.
