DISHORNING CATTLE.

The Operation and its After Effects Productive of Extreme Torture.

Professor McCall, for many years principal of the Glasgow Veterinary college, speaking of the practice of dis-horning cattle, said: "I have heard the evidence of Professor Walley, and I agree with him that the operation is one of extreme torture at the time and afterward. There must be more or less pain until the wound is entirely healed.
 Under the most favorable circumstances it must be painful for ten days. The operation does not benefit the animal in the least nor the flesh as food. But if the animal is vicious I consider it sufficient to remove the tips of the horns. I have known of an animal from which the tips of the horns had been removed to take to butting again, but very rarely.
 Even then he did not do much damage."

George Andrew Leper, fellow of the Royal College of Veterinary Surgeons, said: "I consider the practice of dis-horning cruel because it causes fearful pain and is absolutely unnecessary. I have heard the previous evidence and agree with it."

Professor William Pritchard of the Royal College of Veterinary Surgeons, London, and for 20 years professor at the Royal Veterinary college, Camden Town, had heard the previous evidence and agreed that the operation tortures the animal and is unnecessary.

Professor Cox, Fellow of the Royal College of Veterinary Surgeons and for some time its president, said, "In my opinion dishorning is extremely cruel and quite unnecessary."

Professor J. Macqueen, for ten years professor at the Glasgow College of Veterinary Surgeons and afterward at the Royal Veterinary college, Camden Town, said: "The operation is not necessary, and, if performed at all, should be done on the animal before it is 6 or 8 months old. That prevents the horns growing, and the operation is comparatively painless."—Our Animal Friends.

The Man Fish.

Matthew Buchinger, mentioned in old English wonder books as the "man fish," was the most remarkable monstrosity of his time. He had neither hands, arms, feet nor legs. From his shoulders grew two finlike excrescences, and along his back there were several rows of scales. He had the lidless eyes characteristic of the fish species and a queer puckered mouth and no ears.

Picking Oakum.

Picking oakum looks very simple, but it is dreadful work. It soon wears the skin off your finger tips, and the monotony of it is perfectly maddening.
 The usual amount a prisoner in an English jail has to pick in a day is 3½ pounds.

It is calculated from Revelation xxi, 16, that there is ample room in heaven for 297,000,000,000 people, or as many as the world would produce in 100,000 centuries.

The population of the earth at the time of the Emperor Augustus is estimated at 54,000,000. It is estimated now to be about 1,400,000,000.

A Dr. Johnson Story.

In glancing through the recently published work on that worthy bore, Dr.
 Johnson, I failed to discover the following anecdote. It is carefully preserved by a family whose Scotch ancestors took a rise out of the great lexicographer:

Hostess—Dr. Johnson, what do you think of our Scotch broth?

Dr. Johnson—Madam, in my opinion it's only fit for pigs.

Hostess—Then have some more.— London Figaro.

Civilizing a Chimpanzee.

"It's wonderful," said the man who is always earnest, "to see how they can develop the intellects of the lower animals. There is no telling how much we may be able to benefit them by systematic education."

"What suggested that idea?"

"A chimpanzee that I saw. He was one in a perfectly wild condition. Now they have by patient training taught him to smoke a pipe, play cards and drink whisky!"—London Answers.

Barrie's Candor.

J. M. Barrie is more conscious of his limitations than are some of his fellow workers of the period. At the repeated solicitation of his journalist friends he consented some time ago to write the life of the late Alexander Russell of The Scotsman, but he immediately relinquished the task when he perceived that biographical writing lay altogether outside his particular sphere of work.

The proverb "Necessity is the mother of invention" can hardly be traced to one independent source. The idea was expressed by Persius, the Roman satirist about 60 A. D., and is found, in the precise form now quoted, in Richard Franck's "Northern Memoirs" (printed in London, 1694), and in various later English writers.
