Howie Young Suspended By Campbell For 5 Games

MONTREAL (CP)—Clarence Campbell, National Hockey League president, Tuesday suspended Chicago defenceman Howie Young for five games because of his conduct during a game in Toronto Jan. 4. The suspension was made effective from Jan. 7.

The Toronto club claimed that Young used intemperate language while in the penalty box and spat toward a box seat occupied by Stafford Smythe, Toronto's NHL governor, striking a woman in the face.

"The use of the obscene language and the spitting are not contested by anyone," Campbell said. "In fact, at the official hearing which Chicago club officials attended, Young admitted without reservation that he had done the things of which he was accused."

The NHL president said Young has publicly apologized in writing to "all of the people who were the victims of his actions."

"I do not believe that any useful purpose would be served by a protracted suspension," he said. "Young is fully aware of the seriousness of his actions as they affect his career now, and as any similar conduct may do in the future."

HAS MISSED 3 GAMES

Since the suspension took effect Jan. 7, Young already has missed three games—against Detroit Jan. 9 and Jan. 11, and against Montreal Jan. 12.

Chicago's next two games are against Montreal Thursday and New York Saturday.

Mr. Campbell said the report of NHL referee-in-chief Carl Voss on the incident was supported by all witnesses and by motion pictures of the game.

"In his own defence, Young said he was being heckled vigorously by spectators and he was particularly angry because his hecklers included the owner of the opposing team.

"Actions of this kind cannot be tolerated or condoned on any standard of civilized conduct, regardless of the degree of provocation offered," Campbell said.

"Professional athletes must accept heckling as part of their vocation and maintain decent responses to it."

The NHL president returned to Montreal Monday after gathering evidence in Toronto and Chicago during the weekend.

O'Leary Maroons To Meet Juniors

SUMMERSIDE — The O'Leary Maroons, unless snowbound in Western Prince will take on the undefeated Summerside Junior Legionaires in a regular Prince County Hockey league fixture at Civic Stadium tonight at 8.30 p.m.

The Maroons, leading Borden Nationals 6-5 with less than two minutes left in the game Monday night, were upset by the Nats 7-6 for their second loss in a row.

In their last game the Legion team whipped the Texaco Combines 12-4 in one of the Junior's more impressive performances to date.

The Summerside boys will tonight be without the services of defenceman Don Campbell of Kensington. Campbell suffered a three stitch gash below the left eye in the game against the Combines and his face was swollen so as to impair his vision.

Lloyd "Toy Toy" Gallant is reported to have suffered a badly bruised heel in the game against the Combines and Wayne Trainor is recovering from a bruised shin. Both may miss tonight's contest.

A possible new addition to the Junior's line-up tonight is John Beer, a former star in Summerside minor hockey ranks. There is also a possibility that Dave Lawlor will join the club later in the week.

Olympic Squad Chosen Tuesday

ZURICH, Switzerland (CP)—The 17 men who will make up Canada's team in the 1964 Winter Olympic Games hockey tournament were named Tuesday by Rev. David Bauer, coach of the Canadian Olympics.

Bauer had to cut four of the 21 men travelling with the Olympics, currently in the midst of a 10-game exhibition tour preceding the opening of the Olympic Games here Jan. 29.

The four, who will remain with the team through its tour and during the games in Innsbruck, Austria, but will not play in the Olympic tournament are:

Goalie Rick Broadbelt of Montreal, defenceman Jack Wilson of Victoria, and forwards Al McLean of New Westminster, B.C., and David Merrifield of Port Arthur, Ont.

Bauer announced the names of the 17 chosen for the Olympic competition when the Canadian team passed through here en route to Moscow where two exhibition games are scheduled Wednesday and Friday. The Canadians played to a 4-4 tie with a squad of Canadian professionals now playing hockey in Europe in a game in Geneva Monday night. They now have three victories and a tie in four games in Europe.

DEADLINE MONDAY

Monday was the deadline under Olympic regulations for naming the 17 men who will make up the team contesting the Olympic Games hockey tournament.

The 17 named are:

Goalies Ken Broderick, Etobicoke, Ont., and Seth Martin, Trail, B.C.

Defence: Hank Akervall, Port Arthur; Barry MacKenzie, Weston, Ont.; Ross Morrison, Toronto; Terry O'Malley, Toronto.

Forwards: Gary Begg, Moosomin, Sask.; Roger Bourbonnais, Riviere Qui Barre, Alta.; Ray Cadieux, St. Adele, Que.; Gary Dineen, Montreal; Bob Forhan Newmarket, Ont.; Marsh Johnston, Birch Hills, Sask.; Terry Clancy, Ottawa; Brian Conacher, Toronto; Paul Conlin, Kitchener, Ont.; George Swarbrick, Moose Jaw, Sask.; and Rod Seiling, Elmira, Ont.

Hockey Match Is Postponed

The opening game of the Charlottetown Junior Hockey League which was scheduled for last night was postponed due to the storm.

The official opening will now take place next Tuesday evening at the Charlottetown Forum.

However, this Sunday afternoon the opening game will get underway as North River Juniors clash with the Canadian Legionaires.

CANADIANS PLAY AMONG THEMSELVES

Here's some spirited action in Geneva, Switzerland as Canada's National Hockey team, which will play in the Olympics, meets team made up of Canadian professionals playing with European clubs. Roger Bourbonnais, right, of the National Team, tries for goal in first period as Goalie Rigolet, only Swiss member of the professional team, blocks. He is assisted by M. Vachon, 9, of the pro team. Game, watched by 9,000 persons, ended in a 4-4 tie. (CP Wirephoto by cable from Geneva)

Rough & Tough Wrestling Is Well Liked By Kiniski

By STEPHEN SCOTT

VANCOUVER (CP)—By anybody's standards he is a successful businessman.

He looked the part as he sat, conservatively dressed, in the restaurant of Vancouver's most fashionable hotel.

Smoking a fat cigar, he addressed the waitress as "dear" and left a good tip.

After an interview, in which he confided he once earned $80,000 in a year, he drove away in an expensive car.

His business: "Rasslin'."

"It's a good business," said Gene Kiniski, 33, one of the bad guys of professional wrestling in Canada and the United States.

"In what other business do you need nothing more than a pair of wool trunks?"

As an afterthought he admits it's not quite that simple.

There's promotion — keeping one's name in front of the public—and image.

He accepts as his fot the image of a big (six-foot-four, 272 pounds) rough, tough bad-guy fighter.

"With my pushed in nose, flattened ears . . . my face, nobody is going to like me. I give them what they want. If I do only one thing wrong in a fight people are going to say 'that rat Kiniski'."

IT'S A BORE

But while notoriety may be good business, it's also "a bore."

There are the insults—sometimes so bad he has a hard time containing himself.

He has been stabbed, mostly with hatpins but once with a knife, and burned with cigarettes and cigars as he walked away from the ring.

"You've got to build up a crust," Kiniski says, adding that he has had lots of practice.

"When I was a kid I used to be called a bohunk although I was born in Canada."

And it can be difficult for his son, such as the time another boy said: "Ah, your old man is a dirty wrestler."

Fortunately, the reputation doesn't seem to affect his life outside the ring much.

"They treat me well here, don't they?" he remarked when asked about it.

As he travels Kiniski runs into the same questions over and over. How much does he earn? Is wrestling fixed?

"They say wrestling is rehearsed. But if a wrestler comes 1,000 miles in one direction to meet a wrestler who comes 1,000 miles in another, how can the fight be rehearsed?"

Kiniski says he really isn't concerned about what people think of wrestling as long as they continue to pack arenas and watch it on television. Those who criticize wrestling are probably jealous of its popularity, he says.

PLAYED FOOTBALL

Kiniski, whose mother is an Edmonton alderman, was born in the Alberta capital and graduated from high school there.

He was working in the Edmonton thermal electric plant when someone suggested he apply for an athletic scholarship at the University of Arizona. He went to Tucson, got the scholarship and played for the football team, taking mechanical engineering and later physical education.

Rod Fenton, now a wrestling promoter in Vancouver, caught him sneaking into a match in Tucson and threw him out. A couple of weeks later he was working for Fenton as an usher.

He later accepted Fenton's invitation to wrestle professionally. Edmonton Eskimos football team hired him in 1952 but he left two years later over a salary dispute and became a full-time wrestler.

He has held just about every title except the world championship.

Souris Town Hockey Loop Is Revived

SOURIS — The old Souris Town Hockey League is to be revived.

This is the league which started about 35 years ago, but died out after a number of years. It was revived about 15 years ago but was disbanded again after about two seasons.

The names of the three teams which will form the league will be the same as those in the old league—the Teddies, coached by Henry Larter; the Vics, coached by Art Peterson, Sr., and the Beavers, coached by William Acorn.

The players are to be drawn from four Souris area teams: the Crossbones, Flyers, Red Point Flyers, and Souris Regional High School.

All games will be played at the Souris rink Wednesday nights and the first game is scheduled for tonight at 8 o'clock with the Teddies meeting the Beavers.

SPORTS FRONT

By PIUS CALLAGHAN

Praise For Official

THE Charlottetown Minor Hockey Association is enjoying one of its greatest seasons. Things are humming all the time and Ivan Doherty and his associates are thinking up new promotional ideas every other day.

However, not one of these men are too busy to forget to give a pat on the back to one of their workers when such a pat should be forthcoming. And so it was after Saturday's action at The Forum that a young man by the name of Les Barnes was getting bouquets tossed his way.

Les refereed the 'game of the week' and did a noble job of keeping things in check. He ruled with a firm hand and never once let the game get away from him. He was the sole boss of the situation.

The CMHA president and his co-workers were delighted with the way Les handled himself and folks will see plenty more of him before this season's program is completed.

ONE of the spectators watching Barnes work Saturday night was the veteran hockey star, Roy 'Buck' Whitlock. Last week Canadian Legion sports officer, Charlie Ryan, was successful in obtaining 'Buck' to coach the Legion's juvenile squad. This is the team which is entered in The Charlottetown Area Junior loop. However, the Legionaires will be seeking juvenile honors in Maritime playdowns.

'Buck' will have about 40 players from which to select a team. There's plenty of talent among these lads. Indeed some observers are predicting that these juveniles will make things tough for the bona fide juniors in the new loop.

We talked with Whitlock about his new chore and he's extremely happy about the chance to work with the youngsters. If the Old Lamplighter can teach his pupils a few of his own tricks, the opposing goalies will have plenty of headaches.

Welcome, Mr. Sentner

THE chief administrator (that's a nicer term than manager) will be none other than Harry 'The Barber' Sentner who was associated with the Penguins all the time they were in existence.

Of course, Harry lays claim to association with just about every branch of hockey. He managed the Abbies to a Maritime midget crown a few years back, was with Penguins last season when they took the Maritime junior crown and was in the same position when the Old Spainers reached the Maritime finals in senior play.

To say Harry will be interested in these juveniles is putting it mildly. There'll be talk galore around that barber chair the rest of the winter and voices will likely be a bit loud at times.

It's very fine to see the Legion sponsoring a club. In all branches of sports, the Canadian Legion has shown strong support for the youngsters. Last summer they sponsored the juvenile baseball club which Charlie Ryan led to a Maritime crown. The Charlottetown Minor Hockey Association is indeed fortunate in having the Legion support one of the clubs when comes under the CMHA jurisdiction. It will be a great combination, the Legion and this Charlottetown hockey body.

Big Game At Gardens

TORONTO Maple Leafs get a chance tonight to gain ground on the idle Chicago Black Hawks in this hot National League race.

Leafs host New York Rangers tonight but it could be a hard night for the Imlachmen. Rangers are fighting desperately for a playoff spot and another loss tonight would hurt a whole lot. Going into tonight's game, Leafs have two games in hand on the Hawks. A triumph over the Rangers would put Leafs in sole possession of second, just one point back of the Black Hawks. With one game still in hand, Leafs would be in great shape.

But Leafs' fans shouldn't count that victory in advance tonight. The Rangers crushed Chicago a few weeks ago and the same thing could happen in Maple Leaf Gardens to Frank Mahovlich and company.

It's a big game for both clubs.

CURLING DRAW FOR BELVEDERE

An invitational bonspiel between Charlottetown Curling Club members and Belvedere members is being staged tonight at Belvedere Golf and Winter Club. It's open house to all Charlottetown Curling Club members. A dance will be held from 10 until one o'clock.
