Supreme Court Orders Retrial

SUMMERSIDE — It was erroneously stated yesterday morning in the Guardian that an appeal in the case of Roy Joseph S. Somers, Summerside, charged with assault had opened in Supreme Court Tuesday before Judge W. E. Darby.

Instead of an appeal, it is a retrial ordered by the Supreme Court after an appeal had been made by defence lawyer G. Bruce MacDonald.

$50 Penalty Is Imposed

MR. MACDONALD appealed the decision of town police court Magistrate R. S. Hinton, Q.C., before whom the case was heard originally. The Supreme Court heard the appeal and ordered a retrial, this one to be in county court before Judge W. E. Darby.

The accused is charged with the assault of grocery store operator Mrs. Georgie Arsenault, last December.

A number of crown witnesses were heard yesterday in a trial which adjourned the case to July 14.

When the case was first heard before Magistrate Hinton, G. Bruce MacDonald of Summerside was acting for the accused but since that interval John P. Nicholson of Charlottetown was retained as lawyer for the defence. Crown prosecutor is George R. McMahon.

Summer Tours Are Underway

MONCTON — Hundreds of young Canadians are streaming across the continent aboard Canadian National trains with the start of another summer's centennial experiment in communication.

The tours are sponsored by the Canadian Centennial Commission, to help young people learn more about their country and fellow Canadians. If the teenagers' enthusiasm is any indication of its success, the project rates A-1.

Each student party consists of two dozen young people and two escorts. The teenagers are chosen on the basis of their scholastic ability, personality and leadership abilities.

They are taking advantage of CN's dormette sleeper accommodations, designed for the comfort of groups such as this. Complimentary meals are part of CN's service.

Tuesday afternoon, a student party and escorts arrived from Saint John at Moncton aboard the railiner to connect with the Ocean Limited to Montreal. The young people are from the western half of New Brunswick, bound for Burlington, Ont.
