

Glad spirit of Christmas derived from home gifts

Christmas is a family affair, and especially so when the entire family gets together and choose a house gift that will bring enjoyment to the family as a unit. Every gaily wrapped package brings forth a gleeful squeal of delight. But the gift that causes a chorus of happy sounds is the gift that Santa has marked "To All of Us." It might be a gift on a grand scale, planned months in advance in order to be ready on Christmas Day. Such a gift is the addition of an extra room to serve as family recreation center, or needed bedroom. While dad takes care of the construction, mom and the children can select the furnishings and decor. Furniture gifts of sofas, chairs, decorator tables, space-saving and storing units also require advance planning and purchasing. Several stores should be visited for comparison purposes and the final choice made at a family council where each member can state his preference. Most stores have convenient credit plans set up for these major items. HAPPY HOURS An organ or piano is another house gift that will provide the family with many happy hours together. This gift, too, should be purchased only after a family conference and a family member has had a chance to play it. Wall fixtures, knick knacks, throw pillows, ashtrays and candy dishes are house gifts that fit the youngsters' Christmas budgets and give them a chance to show their pride in their home—and their flair for interior decorating. Mother usually receives her share of house gifts, many intended for the kitchen. Family Santas can make this Christmas special with gifts of handsome dinnerware, crystal and glassware. For other, out-of-the-ordinary ways to surprise mom, why not match her kitchen-decor to a spice rack or canister set. Since mom is the hostess of the household, a thoughtful family eases her job with gifts of trays, utility carts, serving dishes and bring-to-the-table cookware. SOURCE OF PRIDE Beautiful table linen is always a source of pride for the hostess. This, too, can be a gift from everyone to Mom. A lounge chair or footstool for dad's favorite corner, a comfortable desk chair are welcome gifts dad will gladly share with the house. A lamp or desk accessories reminiscent of dad's favorite sport or hobby are other ideal house gifts that have special meaning for dad. A home billiard table with accessories, playing cards and poker chips can be the family's way of helping dad, the host, entertain at home. Teen-agers might like eye-catching gifts of bedspreads or paintings to enliven their individual rooms. Even younger children go for house gifts such as chests or shelves to store their toys and favorite possessions. PLEASE HER MORE Giving a handbag to a Christmas Miss? Add double pleasure by adding a matched set of accessories—wallet, key, eyeglass and cigarette cases.

Santa knows womans needs

Santas a man who understands women. Therefore, he knows that Mrs. Santa, like almost any homemaker, will really be thrilled with the gift of an automatic water heater! It isn't a gift that immediately appears to be especially luxurious and glamorous, and yet what could be more luxurious, even glamorous, than the gift of more leisure, more ease. A modern water heater, in the correct "family size," contributes vitally to a homemaker's hours of relaxation by providing the volume of heated water essential to automatic hot-water laundering. If she has an automatic washer, she needs an up-to-date water heater. Keeping pace with the many family needs for plenty of hot water is another virtue of the new water heaters which the homemaker will appreciate.
