

I SAID KEEP ON TRUCKIN'...

TRUCKIN' MY BLUES AWAY!

If some of you plainclothesmen, RCMPs, narcs and campus cops would drop this course, I think we could solve our over crowding problem.

LETTERS

Dear Sir:

Last year, the girls claimed we guys were slow. I am referring particularly to the Winter Carnival Ball.

This year the tables are turned. Now it is the girls who are slow, horrifying slow in regards to the Co-Ed dance. What the hell is the matter with them? Why in Christ don't they get off their derrieres?

Are they afraid of us? Are they afraid to take a chance on us? Why? Most of us guys are just dying to be asked but no girls seem to be around to do the asking.

I thought the feeling of apathy - and I hate to use this word, but I must - had begun to disappear from campus life but it seems that it is still with us. The general census among upper classmen is that this year's crop of freshettes is definitely superior to last year's as far as general appearance is concerned. However, as far as daring or initiative are concerned, they are dead as hell. I am thoroughly fed up with their "Holier - than - thou" attitude and I do wish they would get down off their high-horses.

So come on girls. Get off your butts. Talk and lister to your fellow male students. We're not really that bad when you get to know us.

Yours very sincerely,

David Gallant

Dear David:

I am not sure whether or not you wrote your letter thinking you might get a reply, but you're going to get one anyway.

First of all I must thank-you for saying that this year's crop of freshettes is superior to last year's. But as for the fact of the "Holier - than-thou" attitude, I think you're mistaken.

I don't know you and I have never seen you, but all I can say is that when you were a freshman weren't you a little bit scared. Besides how much practice has a girl had in asking a guy out. Especially in a place where she knows only a few people.

Personally I think the freshettes did very well at asking fellows considering this is their first year here and most of them don't have a steady boyfriend.

When freshettes enter a University they are defeated before they get here. They came in with the idea that they're the smallest people on the campus, an idea propogated by the upper-classmen. Who likes being in this situation? So they try to carry themselves as upper-classmen and this could be where you get the "Holier - than- thou attitude"

We tried, you didn't.

Signed,

A Freshette

P.S.: You should attend an all male school because from what I hear that is the only place you'll ever get asked to a Co-Ed Dance.

Dear Editor

Regarding the letter to the Editor in the October 22, 1970 Cadre concerning the poster of Jesus Christ. That Poster should be in our DAILY papers then maybe some people would wake up from their dream world. Dream away Rosemary.
