THE BABY'S NAME.

"Mordant" she called him. In a novel book His mother found the name she gave to him. I didn't like it, for I'd kinder took A sort of notion favorable to "Jim," But when she looked up at me from the bed, Half dead, but happy, an she said: "I want That you shall name him, after all." I said, "Why, blame it all, of course it is Mordant."

Ehe knew the way I felt about such names An that this was a sacrifice—for she Had often heard me say that honest "James" Had just about the proper ring for me— But though 'twas disappointment still I thought She was the one that had the right to choose An I—there wasn't any question—ought To reconcile my wishes to her views.

He was so delicate, so teeny small, But smarter than the cracker of a whip, I don't believe he ever cried at all— Sometimes he'd pucker up his little lip An look at you until you was ashamed Of all the sins you knew he knew you'd done.

I often thought he grieved because we'd named By such a name a helpless little one. An thinking that when we two was alone I called him by the name I liked so well. His mother would 'a' grieved if she'd 'a' known, But neither Jim ner we would ever tell. We never told. He'd laugh an crow to hear Me whisper so happily to him, "Yer name's Mordant, old boy, when mother's near, But when there's only me about it's Jim."

We never told our little secret an We never will—we never, never will. Somewhere off yonder in a flow'ry land A seekin in the sunshine all alone, The God that give an then that sent for him, Mordant's the name carved on the little stone, Ent in my heart the name is always Jim. —Chicago Record.

WATER FOR ONE.

An Authority Tells How Much is Needed by Persons in Various Occupations.

According to Professor Allen, we should drink from one-third to two-fifths as many ounces as we weigh pounds. Therefore for a man weighing 168 pounds there would be required 56 to 64 ounces daily, or from 1½ to 4 pints. This is a very indefinite answer. The amount of water required depends on the season of the year, the amount of work done and the kind of food eaten. In hot weather we require more than in cold, because of the greater loss through the skin, though this is in part made up by the lesser amount passed away through the kidneys. If a man labors very hard, he requires more than if his labor is light. A man working in a foundry, where the temperature is high and the perspiration profuse, not infrequently drinks three or four gallons daily. If the food is stimulating and salty, more water is required than if it is bland.

Vegetarians and those who use much fruit require less water than those who eat salt fish and pork, and often get along on none except what is in their food. In most cases our instincts tell us how much water to drink far better than any hard or fixed rule. For ages they have been acquiring a knowledge of how much to drink and transmitting that knowledge to descendants, and if we follow them we shall not go far out of the way.

It is of more use to us to know that pure water is essential and that impure water is one of the most dangerous drinks than to know how much of it is required daily. If one lives in a region where the water is bad, it should be boiled and put away in bottles well corked in an ice chest, and in addition one should eat all the fruit one can if fruit agrees. Fruits contain not only pure water, but salts which are needed to carry on healthfully the functions of life.—Journal of Hygiene.

A Friend in Need.

A young man was tried for murder, having killed a member of a rival faction in a faction fight. The judge, reluctant to sentence him to death on account of his youth, turned to him and said, "Is there any one in court who could speak as to your character?" The youth looked round the court and then said sadly, "There is no man here, my lord, that I know." At that my grandfather chanced to walk into the grand jury gallery. He saw at once how matters stood. He called out, "You are a queer boy that don't know a friend when you see him!"

The boy was quick witted. He answered, "Oh, then, it is myself that is proud to see your honor here this day!" "Well," said the judge, "Sir Ver, since you know that boy, will you tell us what you know of him?" "I will, my lord," said my grandfather, "and what I can tell you is this: That from the very first day that ever I say him to his minute I never knew anything of him that was not good." The old tenant ended his tale by striking his hands together and exclaiming, "And he never to have clapped his eye upon the boy till this minute!" The boy escaped being hanged.—Recollections of Aubrey Vere.
